

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THIRD ANNUAL REPORT.

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE
ALEXANDER HUGH BRUCE, LORD BALFOUR OF BURLEIGH,
SECRETARY FOR SCOTLAND.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD FOR SCOTLAND, EDINBURGH.

January 1898.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR LORDSHIP,

WE, the Local Government Board for Scotland, have the honour to submit this our Third Annual Report, under the Statute 57 and 58 Vict. cap. 58, entitled The Local Government Scotland Act, 1894.

Sir John Skelton having at 31st March last retired from the office of Chairman and Vice-President of the Board, we passed the following minute :—

“The Board cannot allow the Vice-President to retire from office without expressing their high sense of his pre-eminent services to the country and the department with which he has been identified for the long period of twenty-nine years.

“Mr. Skelton succeeded the late Sir William Walker as Secretary of the Board of Supervision in 1868, and became Chairman in 1892. It is not too much to say that the steady decline of pauperism, from his appointment as Secretary onwards, has been in large measure due to his grasp of the true principles of Poor Law administration, and to the encouragement and help which he afforded to those engaged in the local administration of relief.

“To the administration of the Public Health Act passed in 1867 Mr. Skelton devoted anxious care, and the success which has attended it is mainly due to his capacity for organisation, and to his most useful handbook on the subject. The Board have often had evidence of the value attached to his counsel and advice by the Local Authorities and officials by whom he was so frequently consulted.

"The changes introduced by the passing of the Local Government Acts of 1889 and 1894 required much delicate handling; in such cases difficulties were sure to occur. That there has been in this case so little friction is largely due to the tact and discretion with which Mr. Skelton guided the action of the Board of Supervision in its closing years and the Local Government Board during its early difficulties.

"Mr. Skelton carries with him on his retirement the earnest good wishes of his colleagues, and their hope that he may long enjoy the repose and honour which his public services have so well merited."

The following letter was received from Sir John in reply to our minute:—

"I have to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 31st, enclosing extract minute of the Local Government Board of that date with reference to my retirement from the office of Vice-President.

"I have to thank the Board very sincerely for the cordial and generous terms in which they refer to my service during the past twenty-nine years.

"I have from the beginning been very much interested in the work of the office; and I learn with satisfaction that, in the opinion of my colleagues, I have not been altogether unsuccessful in promoting efficient administration.

"I have seen many changes in the department, but I can say with confidence that my experience of the members and the staff has always been pleasant in the extreme. I am satisfied that in no other office has there been steadier devotion to duty or a more anxious desire to consult the public interest. Our relations with the local bodies on the one hand, and with the Scottish Office on the other, have always been satisfactory. For the constant courtesy and assistance I have received from one and all I cannot be too grateful."

We saw with the greatest satisfaction that the name of our late Vice-President was included in the list of those who were honoured by Her Majesty on the occasion of her Diamond Jubilee. Unfortunately his state of health was such that he did not long survive. We heard of his death with the greatest regret; but his name must always be most intimately associated with the vigorous growth of the Poor Law and Public Health systems of Scotland during the latter part of this century.

As Local Government Board we are charged with the supervision of the various Acts relating to local administration, and we propose to deal with the matters coming under our jurisdiction in the following order:—1. Poor Law. 2. Audit. 3. Local Government. 4. Public Health. 5. Vaccination.

No. 5.

Of the 99,503 poor persons relieved, 64,646 were Paupers (or separate individuals), and 34,857 were their Dependants.

A classification of the 64,646 separate individuals (Paupers) relieved shows that on 15th May last the Sane Poor numbered 52,364 or 81·00 per cent., and the Lunatic Poor 12,282 or 19·00 per cent.

Classifying the Sane Poor according to age it is found that of individuals relieved—

21,964 or 41·95 per cent. were 65 years of age and upwards,
5,862 or 11·19 per cent. were children, and 24,538 or 46·86 per cent. were between the ages of (say) 14 and 65.

Of the 5862 Children relieved at 15th May,
2857 were orphans,
1310 were deserted children, and
1695 were separated from their parents.

It is found that 4993 or 85·18 per cent. of these Children were boarded out,—1918 or 32·72 per cent. being placed with relatives, and 3075 or 52·46 per cent. being under the care of strangers.

Nearly twelve per cent. of the Paupers chargeable to Scotland were natives of England and Ireland, the total of that class at 15th May being 11,772, of whom 10,293 were born in Ireland.

* Prior to 1896, 14th May.

It will be observed that there has, during the past year, been a total increase of Pauperism of 1501—an increase of 952 Paupers and 549 Dependants. Allowing, however, for the estimated increase of population, the increase of Pauperism per thousand of population is not great.

Compared with 1868, the year of highest recorded Pauperism, the number of Poor per thousand of population has fallen from 41 to 24—a decrease of 17 per thousand of the population.

The following Table exhibits the results obtained from Returns of the number of Poor relieved on the 14th of September, the 14th of January, and the 15th of May, during each of the last ten years :—

† Since the date of this Report we have prepared a comparative statement of pauperism in Scotland in January 1897 and 1898, specifying the number of poor relieved in parishes having town populations above 30,000. The total number of poor, including dependants, relieved on 15th January 1898 was 101,408, being 24 per thousand of the estimated population, and 1 per thousand less than at 14th January 1888. * Prior to 1896, 14th May.

This Table shows that there has been an increase of 1158 Ordinary Paupers and of 343 Lunatic Paupers in 1896-97 compared with the previous year.

It is seen that since 1868 the Ordinary Poor have decreased from 130,441 to 87,221—a diminution from 40 per thousand to 21 per thousand of the estimated populations in these years,—that is, taking the increase of population into account there has been a relative decrease in the Ordinary Poor of nearly 48 per cent.

During the same period the number of Lunatic Poor has increased from 5,790 to 12,282, an increase from 1·8 to 2·9 per thousand of the estimated population, or allowing for the increased population 65 per cent.

The Table also shows that the ratio of Lunatic Poor to the Poor of all classes has almost trebled since 1868, having risen from 42 per thousand to 123 per thousand.

† According to a Return prepared for the House of Commons at a later date, the valuation in 1874 was £18,920,714.

The whole sum derived from Church Collections in Assessed Parishes during the year ended 15th May 1897, as returned to us, was £44,189, of which £6,979 is stated to have been expended on Relief of the Poor. Of this sum, however, £4 was handed over to the Parish Councils; and expended by them. It would appear, therefore, that the sum of £6,975 derived from Church Collections was actually applied by the Kirk-Sessions to the relief of persons in their respective parishes who required assistance. But these funds are generally employed to afford aid to persons who have fallen into temporary difficulties, with a view to prevent them from becoming chargeable to the parish as paupers; and it is probable that few of the persons so assisted have also been chargeable to the funds raised by assessment.

population of the Parishes to which Poorhouse accommodation is thus at present available amounts to 3,969,219. The total population of the Parishes to which Poorhouse accommodation is still not available is 56,428. The Tables showing the number of Poorhouses in operation, and the Parishes forming the various Poorhouse Combinations in Scotland, are printed in the Appendix. These Tables indicate the number of inmates of Poorhouses as at 1st January and 1st July 1897; the number who were receiving indoor relief during the half-years ended 31st December 1896 and 30th June 1897; the number of those on the Sick-List, and of those who died as well as those who were Lunatic; and the number of children who were at School. These Tables also exhibit the average weekly cost per head of inmates actually in the Poorhouse during the year ended 15th May 1897 for maintenance and education; and the average weekly expenditure per head of inmates for whom there is accommodation in the Poorhouse for the same period, under the following heads, viz.:—Management, including salaries, wages, rations, and estimated value of lodging of officials; House Accommodation; and Medical Relief.

We have sanctioned (1) the occupation of Peebles Combination Poorhouse by a number of inmates not exceeding 72, (2) of an additional ward with accommodation for 20 females in Shetland Combination Poorhouse, (3) alterations accommodating 93 additional paupers at Paisley Poorhouse, and (4) the occupation of the upper floor of the Lews Combination Poorhouse by 34 inmates. We also sanctioned the use of the ground floor of this last Poorhouse ad interim for probationary purposes. In Paisley Poorhouse we likewise sanctioned the use of certain wards for hospital purposes until the contemplated permanent extension of the hospital has been carried out.

We have approved and signed plans of alterations on, or additions to, the Poorhouses of Kelso Combination, Barony, Edinburgh (Craiglockhart), Kyle Combination, Edinburgh (Craigleith), Dalkeith Combination, Old Monkland, Upper Strathearn Combination, Greenock, Govan Combination, Inveresk Combination, Cunninghame Combination, Glasgow, and Hamilton Combination.

In Cunninghame Combination Poorhouse we sanctioned experimentally for twelve months certain arrangements for the separation of the more respectable inmates, and the dietary scale submitted in connection therewith.

We approved resolutions of the Parish Councils of Coldingham (formerly in Kelso Poorhouse Combination) and Eyemouth to join East Lothian Poorhouse Combination, and of Whitsome to join Kelso Poorhouse Combination; and concurred in the agreement of the House Committees to admit those parishes into the Combinations.

We sanctioned the purchase by the Parish of Forres from the Parish of Elgin of three additional shares in the Poorhouse of Morayshire Combination.

We sanctioned, on condition that a certain recommendation was given effect to, an alteration in connection with the dietary of Shetland Combination Poorhouse; and we also approved ad interim suggested alterations in the dietaries of the Poorhouses of Inverness <sup>Poor Law.</sup> and Kirkpatrick-Fleming Combination.

Deaths.

The number of Paupers who died during the year was 6,854, and Dependants 753.

At your Lordship's request we have examined the claims by Parish Councils to participate in the contributions of £20,000 in respect of Poor Law Medical Relief and Trained Sick Nursing in Poorhouses, and of £115,500 for maintenance of Pauper Lunatics, with a view of certifying the amounts to be distributed under Section 22 (4 and 5) of the Local Government (Scotland) Act of 1889 and Section 2 (3) of the Education and Local Taxation Account (Scotland) Act, 1892.

The number of Parishes which have this year resolved to comply with the conditions annexed to participation in the Medical Relief Grant is 799. Of these, one failed to establish a claim, the expenditure on Medical Relief not having amounted to the fixed minimum. Last year 794 Parishes established their claims; this year 798. The detailed account of the distribution, showing the amount expended on Medical Relief to the poor in each Parish for which vouchers have been produced and the sum apportioned to it from the Grant, will be found in the Appendix, the total amount distributed being £19,985 16s. 4d., including £2,386 15s. 2d. in respect of trained sick-nursing in Poorhouses. The Grant was distributed at the rate of 7s. 10½d. per £ of vouched expenditure.

The whole sum expended on Medical Relief to the Poor in all Parishes in Scotland, whether participating in the Grant or not, during the year ending 15th May 1897, according to the annual returns of the Inspectors, was £52,440, which is equal to 3¼d. per head of the population of Scotland in 1891, and 10s. 6½d. per head of persons on the roll at 15th May last.

A detailed account of the distribution of the Grant in aid of the Cost of Maintenance of Pauper Lunatics will be found in the Appendix, showing the Parishes participating, the total cost of maintenance, the cost of maintenance in accordance with the scheme of participation, and the amount due to each Parish from the Grant. The Grant was distributed at the rate of 10s. 5d. per £ of admissible expenditure.

Sheriffs.
App. (B.)
No. 1.

The total number of applications to Sheriffs on the ground that relief had been improperly refused, as returned by the Sheriffs-Substitute, was during the past year 392. These numbers, however, fall short of the actual number of applications, as in several Sheriff Courts no complete record is kept of them. The number of applications in which Sheriffs felt called upon to grant interim orders of relief during the past year was, as stated to us by them, 210. The number of applicants admitted to the roll of paupers by final order of the Sheriffs during the past year was 12.

The number of prosecutions under the 79th and 80th sections of the Statute during the past year has been 128, and of convictions 54.

The number of Parishes and Combinations now assessed is 861, and the number still raising the funds by Voluntary Contributions is 16.

ments.

Poor Law.

In 764 of the Assessed Parishes the funds for the relief of the poor are raised by an equal rate upon owners and occupants respectively, and in 97 there is a classification of occupants, in terms of the 36th section of the Act 8 and 9 Vict. c. 83.

Many questions relating to Poor Law Administration have been submitted to us during the year.

Assigning of their houses by two old Paupers to Parish Council.

Our opinion was asked as to whether two old women who owned small houses and who were in receipt of outdoor relief should permit their houses to be conveyed to the Parish Council, on condition that they should be allowed a free life-rent of the same. We replied that, assuming the proposal came voluntarily from the paupers, we saw no reason why the houses should not be assigned to the Parish Council—the Parish Council, of course, always being prepared to account to the representatives of the paupers for their actions in the matter.

Assessing under Agricultural Rates (Scotland) Act, 1896.

In reply to an enquiry in connection with the Agricultural Rates (Scotland) Act, 1896, we stated that, in assessing agricultural lands under the Act, the deductions under Section 37 of the Poor Law Act should be made from the gross rental as appearing in the Valuation Roll, and that on three-eighths of the sum thus obtained the assessment should be levied.

Alleged Distress in Barra.

In November last we received from your Lordship a petition from the inhabitants of the northern and eastern parts of the island of Barra alleging great distress owing to the failure of the fishing and of the potato crop, and praying relief. We obtained confidential reports from various quarters, and we called upon the Inspector of Poor to furnish us with a report once a month on the condition of the islanders; also, at your request in April, we instructed the General Superintendent for the district to make enquiries into the alleged destitution. From a perusal of the various reports it was seen that the state of matters had been exaggerated, and that at present it was unnecessary to take any steps in the direction indicated in the petition. Copies of the reports, including that made by Mr. Penney, were forwarded to your Lordship.

Aged and infirm Paupers living alone who decline to enter the Poorhouse.

During the year we received a number of letters on the subject of the difficulties with which Parish Councils had to contend in dealing with old and infirm paupers living alone who resolutely declined to accept relief in the Poorhouse or to leave the houses which they occupied, and yet who, from their frail condition, were quite unfitted to live by themselves. It was pointed out that, owing to the frequent impossibility of obtaining the services of a proper nurse, or to the declinature of the parties to accept the services of such nurse, a very serious responsibility was thrown upon the Inspector of Poor and Parish Council in connection with these paupers; and it was suggested that power, duly safeguarded, might be given to Parish Councils whereby such cases could be compulsorily removed to the Poorhouse. The difficulties described had been frequently felt by us, and we submitted the correspondence to your Lordship to consider whether legislation on the lines recommended could not be effected.

It appeared to us, from circumstances, to be necessary that we should consider the form of the Medical Certificate required by the minute of the Board of Supervision of 1st February 1871, in the case of persons to whom relief in the Poorhouse has been offered. A copy of the amended certificate and of the circular transmitting it to Inspectors of Poor will be found in the Appendix.

Alteration in Medical Certificate required by Board of Supervision's Minute of 1st February 1871. App. (A.), No. 5. Appointment of Parish and other Ministers as Inspectors of Poor.

The question of the expediency of appointing parish ministers as Inspectors of Poor having been brought under our notice, we considered the matter and came to the conclusion that it is undesirable that ministers should be so appointed unless there are no other suitable candidates.

We expressed the opinion that it was inexpedient that the Inspector of Poor of any Parish should hold the office of Parish Councillor in a neighbouring Parish.

Inspector not to be Parish Councillor in neighbouring Parish.

We have investigated fifteen allegations of a more or less serious nature against Inspectors of Poor, and we have been under the necessity of dismissing two Inspectors as unfit for the office. In seven instances we considered that it would be sufficient if we simply censured or admonished the officer against whom the complaint was made; four Inspectors we allowed to resign; and in two cases, not without hesitation, we permitted the Inspectors to retain their offices for six months on probation.

Complaints against Inspectors of Poor.

We have been called upon to investigate two complaints against Governors of Poorhouses. In both cases we had the satisfaction of finding the complaints groundless.

Complaints against Governors of Poorhouses.

During the past year we have been called upon to investigate three charges against Medical Officers. In two cases we found it necessary to censure the officers, and in the third we had the satisfaction of finding the charge unfounded.

AUDIT.

During the year we have issued further instructions to Clerks of Parish Councils and to Treasurers of Poorhouse Combinations regarding their accounts and the procedure at audit. We pointed out the nature of the payments which, during the audit of the previous year, had been held by the Board to be contrary to law, and would fall to be reported by the auditor for surcharge; and we further intimated our views as to the persons who, in the event of illegal payments being made, would be liable to be surcharged. Copies of the circulars will be found in the Appendix.

Audit of Accounts.

Our attention having frequently been directed to exemptions from assessment not in terms of law, we issued a Circular on the subject. This is printed in the Appendix.

App. (A.), Nos. 8 and 9.

Since the date of our last Report the first Audit of Parish Council Accounts has been completed; and the second Audit, which has been in progress since May last, has been carried through, except in a few parishes where special circumstances have prevented the completion of the accounts at the proper time.

we find it necessary to enforce a surcharge. A summary of these "Interim Reports" is given in the Appendix.

The enquiries addressed to us in connection with the Audit have again been numerous, and we have rendered all the assistance in our power to the Parish Councils and their officers as well as to the Auditors.

Auditors' Fees.

Although empowered by Section 36 (3) of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1894, to prescribe a scale for the remuneration of auditors in respect to their duties under that Section, we did not consider it expedient to issue such a scale for the first year in which the audit provisions were in operation. We thought it preferable to adopt the alternative course of leaving the Parish Council and the auditor to agree as to the fee without interference on our part save when the parties were unable to agree. The whole arrangements being new, difficulties arose in many instances, and in 273 cases it fell to us to approve the fee payable to the auditor.

Scale of Fees for Auditors.

We thereafter took into consideration the framing of a scale of fees for auditors. As it did not appear to be necessary to provide for the cases of the very large parishes, we did not carry the scale beyond an expenditure of £5000, and we reserved power to allow a special additional fee in any case where the audit has been exceptionally onerous. The circumstances of Poorhouses and of unassessed parishes being special, we exempted them from the application of the scale. A copy of our Order prescribing the scale will be found in the Appendix.

App. (A.),
No. 10.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

Our duties in connection with the execution of the Local Government Act of 1894 have during the past year engaged a large share of our attention, and we continued to be consulted by Parish Councils and others on numerous questions arising out of the administration of the Statute.

Allotments.

Several Parish Councils have during the year had occasion to initiate proceedings under Section 26 of the Act with the view of taking land on lease compulsorily for allotments or common pasture; and in two instances we have received appeals in terms of Section 25 (5) against resolutions of the County Council refusing to make the necessary orders. In both cases we found on inquiry that the appeal was premature, as the County Council had not in either case finally refused to make an order, but had merely deferred consideration of the matter for further information.

Adaptations of Lands Clauses
Act.

Section 26 (7) of the Act provides that any order for compulsorily taking land on lease may apply the necessary provisions of the Lands Clauses Acts with any adaptations which may be prescribed by us. The County Council of Caithness, having occasion to make an order under the Section, applied to us to furnish them with the requisite adaptations of the Lands Clauses Acts. We accordingly framed the adaptations which appeared to be necessary in the case submitted to us.

Fencing of Allotments.

In reply to an enquiry as to how the expense of fencing allotments was to be met, we referred to Section 7 (1) of the Allotments (Scotland) Act, 1892, and pointed out that the proper course appeared to be for the Parish Council in the first instance to levy a rate for the purpose under Section 27 (1) of the Local Government Act, 1894, and so to adjust the rents as ultimately to recover the cost from the allotment holders.

Local Govern-

The power given to Parish Councils to repair and maintain public ways appears to have been extensively exercised. In some cases the operations undertaken have been so important and costly that it was found necessary to borrow for the purpose. We have had under consideration during the past year six applications for our consent to loans in terms of Section 28 of the Local Government Act for works executed under Section 29. In almost every case we were able to give our consent. In one instance, where a Parish Council proposed to repair four public ways at a considerable expense, we were of opinion that it was inadvisable for them to undertake so much in one year, and gave our consent to only a portion of the loan proposed.

Loans for Repair of Public Ways.

In another case the Parish Council proposed to substitute for a public footpath a well-constructed carriage road—such as the Road Authority might take over as a highway—and they applied for our consent to borrow for the construction of the road. We entertained serious doubt as to the proposal of the Parish Council—the difficulty being as to the application of the provisions of the Local Government Act of 1894 to the making of a new road. But, apart from the question of legality, we found after inquiry that it was not a case in which we should be justified in giving our consent to the Parish Council borrowing money under the provisions of Section 28 of the Act.

Construction of New Road.

In giving consent to loans for the repair of public ways it is our practice to require that the money borrowed be repaid within five years, our view being that the cost of such repairs as are contemplated by the Statute should not, as a general rule, be spread over a longer period. Each case, however, is considered on its merits, and we allow a longer period for repayment when exceptional circumstances exist which appear to justify such an arrangement.

Period for repayment of Loans.

Among a great number of questions as to the powers and duties of Parish Councils and Landward Committees in regard to public ways, a Parish Council, which proposed to apply part of the Education and Local Taxation Grant towards the cost of repairing a bridge and stile in line of a right of way, asked our opinion as to the competency of the proceeding. We pointed out that the question of the application of the Grant was one on which we had no power or duty to advise, but the Grant being for the relief of any rates levied by the Parish Council, we saw no reason to doubt that it might be applied to the relief of the Special Parish Rate—the Rate to which the cost of repairing a footbridge and stile on a public way would be chargeable.

Application of Government
Grant to repair of Bridge.

We were also asked whether, in the event of a Landward Committee undertaking the repair of a road, it would be competent to levy the Special Parish Rate over that portion only of the landward area which would benefit by the road. We pointed out that there

Special Parish
Rate leviable over whole landward area.

Local Govern-

was no provision enabling a Parish Council to limit the Special Parish Rate to a part of the landward area of the parish.

A similar enquiry was addressed to us on the more general question whether in a wholly landward parish a Parish Council could carry out improvements on one part of the parish and use the assessment on that part only to defray the cost, laying aside the amount received from the other parts until it was required. We pointed out that the Act made no provision for such an arrangement; for the purposes of Part IV. the parish, being wholly landward, must be regarded as a unum quid.

Hedges at side of Public Ways.

We were asked who was responsible for keeping in order the hedges at the side of a public way (not a highway) which was in danger of being obstructed by the excessive growth of the hedge. We pointed out that the hedge was the property of the landowner, and that, in our opinion, the Parish Council were not entitled to cut or trim the same except with the consent of the owner. We further expressed the opinion that the Section of the Roads and Bridges Act as to the height of fences did not apply.

Duty of District Committee as to obstruction of Right of Way.

Another question which was put to us referred to the duty of a District Committee, on a petition being presented to them in regard to an alleged obstruction of a right of way, whether they should enquire or take evidence as to the existence of such right of way, or whether their duty was merely to enquire into the alleged obstruction. The view which we took was that the District Committee ought to inquire into both matters. The Statute requires that they be "satisfied that the representation is well founded." That seems to us to involve satisfaction as to both heads, viz.:—(1) the existence of a right of way, and (2) that there is an obstruction actual or threatened. The nature of the enquiry which should be made before the District Committee can say whether they are satisfied or not must, of course, vary with each individual case. If the District Committee allow themselves to be too easily satisfied, the result will be that they will embark in proceedings which may eventually prove unsuccessful. On the other hand, if they declare themselves not satisfied when they ought to be satisfied, the result may be that, on appeal, the County Council may institute the necessary proceedings and carry them on as they please at the expense of the District. The enquiry must be regulated by the discretion of the District Committee so as to be reasonable without being extravagant.

Recreation
Grounds.

Another subject which receives much attention from Parish Councils and as to which many communications are addressed to us is that of recreation grounds. During the year we gave our consent in two cases to Parish Councils borrowing for laying out such grounds. We have also been frequently consulted as to the powers of Parish Councils regarding recreation grounds. We were asked whether a Parish Council, having provided a recreation ground, might out of the Special Parish Rate furnish it with seats and appliances for recreation. We replied that, in our opinion, they might competently do so.

Power to enclose a Common.

In another case we were consulted as to the right of the Parish Council to enclose a Common (the Superior consenting) for the purpose of converting it into a public park. Our opinion was that possibly the best course would be for the Parish Council to acquire a right to the land from the proprietor; they would then be able, under Section 24 (1) (b) of the Local Government Act, 1894, to maintain, lay out, and improve the ground for public recreation.

ment.

It is a matter of regret that the Statute provides no means of regulating the use by the public of recreation grounds provided by the Parish Council under Section 24 of the Act. There is no power to make bye-laws for the purpose. When asked to confirm rules and regulations for the management of a public park, we were under the necessity of pointing out that we had no duty in regard to such regulations. At the same time we stated that, while it was impossible to say that the proposed regulations were competent in the sense that they could be enforced in a court of law, it appeared to us very desirable that the Parish Council should prepare such rules and regulations, provided that they were willing to take the risk of challenge in the event of their wishing to enforce them.

Grounds.

We have had under consideration five applications for our consent to loans for the purpose of providing buildings for offices and meetings under the powers given by Section 24 (1) (a) of the Local Government Act. In three of these cases we gave our consent; in the other two we were of opinion that the purposes for which the loans were desired were not covered by the terms of the Statute.

Loans for Buildings.

We received during the year ten applications for our consent to the alienation of property vested in Parish Councils. We satisfied ourselves by inquiry in every case before granting consent that the Parish Council in disposing of the property were acting in the best interests of the Parish.

Sales of Parish Property.

In one instance a Parish Council had received a bequest of a property which by the terms of the will was to be used as a residence for the Medical Officer of the parish and for no other purpose. It was found to be quite unsuitable as a dwelling-house for the Medical Officer, and the Parish Council applied for our sanction to incur expenditure in applying to the Court for power to sell the house and apply the proceeds in carrying out the objects of the bequest. We stated that our sanction to apply to the Court was not required, but if, when such application had been made, our consent was found to be necessary for the sale, it would be given. We were also asked if the expense of the application to the Court could be met out of the Special Parish Rate, and we expressed the opinion that it would be competent to levy a Special Parish Rate if necessary, but suggested that it might suit the Parish Council better to obtain a loan for the purpose upon the security of the premises, which could be repaid out of the proceeds of the sale of the property.

A number of questions have been submitted to us in connection with the management of Parish Trusts. We are frequently asked for our opinion on cases where the Parish Council claims, and the Trustees deny, that a trust comes within the scope of Section 30 of the Local Government Act. We have no authority to decide in such cases, our only duty being to approve the number of representatives to be appointed by the Parish Council to act along with the Trustees in the management of the trust. In several cases where a Trust is for the benefit of a burgh we have been asked to approve of the number of representatives from the Parish Council, but, in view of the difference of opinion as to whether such a Trust is a parish Trust in the sense of Section 30 of the Act, we have declined to take any steps till the question be determined by a competent tribunal.

Parish Trusts.

Our opinion having been asked as to the right of a representative from the Parish Council on a Trust Committee to report the proceedings of the Trustees to his Parish Council, and also as to the right of the Parish Council to discuss the proceedings, we pointed out that the duties of a Parish Council representative on a Trust are not defined in the Act, but we saw no reason to doubt that a representative was entitled to report to his Parish Council his proceedings, and that there seemed to be no power to prevent a Parish Council discussing the report of their representative.

Absence of Councillors
from Meetings.

It would appear that some Parish Councils have difficulty in understanding what is the proper procedure for dealing with cases to which Section 41 of the Local Government Act, 1894, applies, and we have had occasion to explain it in several cases. We have pointed out that in reckoning the period of absence from meetings, the de quo is the first meeting which a Councillor fails to attend. Consequently the absence of a Councillor from two consecutive quarterly meetings will not bring him within the provisions of the Section. If a member is absent from meetings for more than six months, the Parish Council should (unless it be a case of illness) give him an opportunity of submitting to them the reason of his absence. If such reason be approved, no further steps need be taken. If the reason be not approved, the Local Authority should pass a resolution declaring the office vacant and should proceed to take steps with the view of having it filled in terms of the provisions as to casual vacancies.

Our opinion was asked on the question whether Section 41 would apply to the case of a Councillor who had been absent from meetings of the Parish Council for more than six months, but had attended a Committee meeting within that period. There is no reference to Committee meetings in the Section, and we intimated that we were not prepared to say that a Parish Council would be justified in tabling a resolution to apply the provision in a case where the Councillor had been present at a Committee meeting.

Chairmen on
having to be resworn as Justices.

Our opinion was asked as to whether re-elected Chairmen of Parish Councils require to be resworn as Justices of the Peace and to pay another fee. This being a question on which we could offer no opinion, we could do no more than refer to the reply given by the Lord Advocate to the question asked in the House of Commons on 4th May 1897, in which he stated that facilities for legislation to remove the dissatisfaction caused by re-elected chairmen of Parish Councils having to be resworn as Justices of the Peace would be given when possible.

Orkney and Zetland Small Piers and Harbours Act.

The Orkney and Zetland Small Piers and Harbours Act, 1896, which provides for the formation of special districts for the construction of piers, etc., with the aid of Government contributions, enacts that no Special District shall be formed without our consent. We received a number of applications, and we gave our consent in four cases, making in each case careful inquiry into the merits of the application. We were subsequently informed, however, that the Treasury declined to provide funds for the commencement of any new works, and in consequence, when our consent was asked in other cases, we intimated that it did not appear to us that any further action on our part was necessary.

By the Parish Councils Casual Vacancies (Scotland) Act, 1897, a change has been made in the method of filling casual vacancies occurring in the representation of a landward part of a parish partly landward and partly burghal. It provides that in the event of a casual vacancy in the Parish Council of such a parish—"the Parish Councillors who are not members of the Landward Committee of such Parish Council shall not be entitled to vote in filling up any casual vacancy in such Parish Council, except a vacancy caused by the death, resignation, or disqualification of a Parish Councillor who was not a member of such Landward Committee."

Vacancies in Landward
Committees.

In reply to a question as to the effect of this enactment, we expressed the opinion that a vacancy in the Landward Committee should be filled at a meeting of the Parish Council, although the members representing the burghal part of the parish were not to vote.

Another Statute passed during last session of Parliament, viz.—the Post Office and Telegraph Act, 1897—has the effect of enabling any Parish Council to guarantee the Postmaster-General against loss which may be sustained by the provision of postal or other facilities, any expenses incurred being chargeable to the Special Parish Rate.

Guarantee for
facilities.

We were asked as to whether a Landward Committee might in the month of February fix the amount to be levied by the Special Parish Rate, and we expressed our opinion that the intimation to the Parish Council must be given during the financial year when the rate is to be levied—that is, between 15th May and 12th June.

Date of intimating amount of Special Parish
Rate.

We received intimation of the formation of a number of Special Lighting and Scavenging Districts.

Special
Lighting and Scavenging Districts.

In terms of Schedule IV. (3) of the Local Government Act, 1894, we have given our consent in two cases to bye-laws for Special Scavenging Districts. There being no statutory provision as to the publication of such bye-laws, we resolved to require that, in all cases in which our consent was applied for, the provisions of Sections 319 and 320 of the Burgh Police Act, 1892, with regard to the publications of notice and the deposit of the bye-laws for inspection by the ratepayers should be complied with.

Bye-laws.

We were asked whether, in adopting Section 99 of the Burgh Police Act for a Special Lighting District, it would be necessary to light the country roads within the district, or if the terms of that Section admitted of the District Committee exercising their discretion, and lighting only those roads which in their judgment should be lighted at the public expense. We pointed out that by Schedule IV. of the Local Government Act, 1894, the word "street"

includes any road, highway, or bridge, etc., within the Special District used either by carts or foot passengers, and in our opinion the words "which in the judgment of the [District Committee] should be lighted at the public expense," in the beginning of Section 99 of the Burgh Police Act, refer back to "places" only, and not to "streets," and expressed the opinion that it was incumbent on the District Committee to light the country roads within the District.

Ashpits.

A District Committee having formed a Special Scavenging District and adopted Sections 107-127 of the Burgh Police Act, 1892, desired to exercise the powers given by Section 109 to close ashpits. They felt a difficulty, however, as to whether they were entitled to call upon the owners to shut up or remove the ashpits, and also as to how such an order, assuming it to be competent, could be enforced, and they applied to us for advice. The view that we took was that the question of whether the order of the District Committee should be addressed to the owner or to the occupier depends on the nature of the operation which the District Committee seek to have carried out. If by "shutting up" the ashpit nothing more is meant than discontinuing its use, the occupier, being sole occupier, may be directed to shut it up. If, however, the District Committee desire to have the ashpit permanently built up, or if they seek to have it removed, our view is that the owner must also be applied to.

As to the question how an order to remove an ashpit is to be enforced, it appeared to us that such an order would not probably fall to be made unless in very exceptional cases. If made, we thought that it could only be enforced by proceedings founded on Section 109, and that any bye-law that might be considered necessary should be made in terms of Section 127.

further Sections of Burgh Police
Act.

In reply to another application for advice, we stated that when a Special Scavenging District had been formed and certain Sections of the Burgh Police Act had been adopted, we could see nothing to prevent the adoption of an additional Section of those specified in Section 44 (1) (b) of the Local Government Act, 1894; but we expressed the opinion that it would be advisable for the District Committee to obtain a requisition.

Clerks to Special
District
Sub-
committees.

We were also asked whether a District Committee is empowered to frame regulations for Sub-committees of Special Districts, giving power to such Sub-Committees to provide themselves with clerical assistance. After carefully considering the point raised, we stated that in our opinion the District Clerk must be the clerk to each Sub-committee in the district, and that the regulation requiring each Sub-committee to appoint a clerk appeared to us to be ultra vires. If the increased duties laid on the District Clerk justified any increase to his salary, that increase would fall to be paid by the Special Districts.

PUBLIC HEALTH.

Public Health.

The passing of the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 38), was the leading event in the past year in connection with Scottish sanitary administration. This Act consolidates and amends the law relating to the public health in Scotland, and repeals the Public Health (Scotland) Acts, 1867, 1871, 1875, 1882, and 1890. It confers upon Local Authorities enlarged powers, and affords them increased facilities for the removal of nuisances, the regulation of offensive trades, the inspection and destruction of unsound meat, the isolation and treatment of infectious disease, the prevention of epidemic disease, the regulation of milk supplies, the construction of drains, the supply of wholesome water, the acquisition of land for public health purposes, the establishment of port Local Authorities, the regulation of buildings, and for other purposes connected with the proper sanitary administration of the country.

Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1897.

In order that Local Authorities might have a general idea of the scope of the new Act before it came into force we, on 16th November 1897, issued a Circular—a copy of which will be found in the Appendix—drawing attention to its more important provisions.

App. (A.), No. 16.

Since the issue of that Circular we have received numerous letters from Local Authorities requesting further advice regarding procedure and the interpretation of the new Statute, particularly as regards (1) the licensing of slaughter-houses; (2) the framing of bye-laws; and (3) water supply and drainage assessment questions under the new Public Health Act.

In the general Circular already referred to we had specially pointed out that the new requirements relating to slaughter-houses should receive the immediate attention of the Local Authority, since after 1st January 1898 all slaughter-houses, both in county and burgh (and whether in existence before 1897 or not) must be licensed; and accordingly the duty devolved upon all Local Authorities to make immediate preparations for carrying out this provision.

Procedure as to the licensing of Slaughter-houses.

From the letters received it appeared that there was some doubt as to the preliminary procedure under Sections 32 and 33. We pointed out that Section 32 provides that offensive businesses—such as that of a slaughterer of cattle—are not to be established after the 1st day of January 1898 without the sanction of the Local Authority; while Section 33, on the other hand, deals with the licensing by the Local Authority of the premises to be used for the business of a slaughterer; and we drew particular attention to the fact that, under the Act of 1897, it is the premises which fall to be licensed and not the person who carries on the business of a slaughterer.

We also pointed out that, in our opinion, a public slaughter-house owned by the Commissioners of a burgh is not exempted from the provisions of Section 33 of the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1897, as to licensing, save that in such cases it is evident that the fee referred to in Sub-section 2, not being compulsory, need not be

Public Health. — exacted. We further explained that, while the question was not free from difficulty, we were of opinion that Section 33 requires that all slaughter-houses must be licensed in terms of that Section whether they are already licensed under the Burgh Police Act or not.

Bye-laws under the Public Health Act, 1897. The immediate difficulty as to bye-laws was that Rules, Regulations, and Bye-laws framed in terms of the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1867, did not appear to be saved in the new Act, and it appeared to us to be doubtful whether these would remain in force after 31st December 1897. We accordingly on 30th November issued a Circular—a copy of which will be found in the Appendix—recommending Local Authorities to revise their existing bye-laws in accordance with their extended powers under the Public Health Act of 1897; and we intimated that we were prepared to confirm ad interim the existing regulations under the old Act as bye-laws under the new, so as to give the Local Authorities time to submit amended bye-laws.

App. (A.),
No. 16.

In addition to this explanatory Circular we transmitted for the information and guidance of the Local Authorities revised bye-laws (1) for houses let in lodgings, and (2) for common lodging-houses, framed in terms of Sections 72 and 92 respectively of the amended Statute. Copies of these bye-laws will be found in the Appendix.

Water Supply and Drainage Assessment questions.

Some burghal Local Authorities having experienced considerable difficulty in interpreting the provisions in the new Public Health Act dealing with the water supply and drainage assessments, our opinion on these points may thus be briefly summarised:—The cost of water and drainage works already carried out, or which may hereafter be carried out, under the Burgh Police Act will continue to be paid out of the rates authorised by that Act; the cost of drainage works already carried out, or which may hereafter be carried out, in Burghs under the Public Health Acts will be paid out of the Special Sewer Assessment; the cost of water works already carried out under the Public Health Acts will be paid out of the Special Water Assessment. There is no power under the 1897 Act to carry out new water works in burghs; all future operations must be undertaken under the Burgh Police Act.

The Special Sewer Assessment and Special Water Assessment in burghs are to be levied in the same manner as the General Improvement Rate, but subject to the limitations laid down in Section 137.

In dealing with all such assessment questions the following general principle should be kept in view, viz.:—That “Local Authority” and “Police Commissioners” are not interchangeable terms, and what is done in the name of the one cannot be assessed for in the name of the other.

Water Supply.

The Sections of the Public Health Act, 1897, dealing with water are 124-132. Section 124 saves the provisions of the Burgh Police Act and of local Acts respecting water. Section 126—which is the only Section authorising a Local Authority to introduce water—is confined in its operation to landward districts. Section 130 empowers Local Authorities to combine to execute water works “by this Act or any other Act authorised;” and the question arose whether Section 130 empowered burghal Local Authorities to combine for water works. After giving the question full consideration we informed our correspondent that, in our opinion, the Local Authorities of two burghs may, with our sanction, combine for the purpose of executing water works. At the same time, while the above opinion indicates our view, the question is a purely legal one, and one, therefore, as to which Local Authorities must be guided by their legal advisers.

Public Health.
Interpretation of Section 130 of Public Health Act,
1897.

The coming into force of the new Public Health Act has entailed on us the further duty of revising the forms of procedure under the old Act which were prepared by our predecessors—the Board of Supervision—in 1867, and we hope to issue the new forms at an early date.

Forms of Procedure.

Pending the issue of revised forms, however, the officers of several Local Authorities have requested our advice more particularly as regards the procedure for the removal of nuisances, as prescribed in Sections 19 and 20 of the new Act.

Interpretations of Sections 19 and 20 of the Public Health
Act, 1897.

It appears to us that the intimation of the existence of a nuisance referred to in the concluding words of Section 19 is different from the notice requiring removal of the nuisance referred to in Section 20, and that the words “as hereinafter provided” in Section 19 refer to Section 159, which deals with the service of notices, intimations, etc. It will be the duty of the Local Authority to give a general direction to their officers that, on receiving information of a nuisance, they shall give intimation of its existence to the person who may be required to remove it.

Further, it is the duty of the officers of the Local Authority to submit to the Local Authority information of any nuisance in their district; and, if the intimation does not result in the removal of the nuisance, it will be the duty of the Local Authority to serve the notice referred to in Section 20.

The service of the notice is the first step in any legal proceedings that may be resolved on in any individual case of nuisance, and we do not think that this step can be taken unless and until each such case has been brought before the Local Authority or their duly authorised Committee. There is, we think, a distinction between the power given in Section 14 to issue notices—which may be delegated to a Committee—and the power to serve notices—which may be delegated by the Local Authority or their Committee to any officer or person. It does not, therefore, appear to us that delegation of the power to serve includes delegation of the power to issue notices.

In our last Report we referred to the Public Health Act of 1896, which repealed Sections 31, 34, and 56 of the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1867, and made further provision with regard to epidemic, endemic, and infectious disease. In exercise of the powers granted to us by the aforesaid Act, we, on the 9th day of November 1896, issued an Order containing regulations to be enforced by Local Authorities, Officers of Customs, and others. A copy of this Order and covering Circular will be found in the Appendix.

Public Health
Act, 1896.

Public Health.

App. (A.),
No. 12.

On 21st December 1896 we also issued a Circular—a copy of which will be found in the Appendix—intimating that the directions and regulations issued by the Board of Supervision on 8th August 1893 and 15th September 1893 respectively, with regard to the “Importation of Rags, etc., from certain countries,” ceased to have force as from the 7th day of November 1896, having been repealed by the provisions of the Public Health Act, 1896.

This Act of 1896 (except the repeals therein contained) has in turn been repealed so far as it relates to Scotland, and its provisions incorporated in Part IV. of the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1897.

Public Works
Loans Act,
1897.

The Public Works Loans Act, 1897, having authorised a reduction of interest on future public loans on the security of local rates, we considered it advisable to draw the attention of Local Authorities to the matter; and we accordingly issued a Circular—a copy of which will be found in the Appendix—transmitting a copy of a notice which had been issued by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury intimating the reduced rates of interest now chargeable on public loans, varying, according to length of the period of repayment, from  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. per annum to  $3\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. The Act, however, contemplates the adoption of higher rates of interest if at any time the Treasury are of opinion that such action is necessary in the interests of the solvency of the Local Loans Fund.

App. (A.).
No. 13.Public Health
Acts.
Water Supply.

With regard to the administration of the Public Health Acts generally, we stated in our last Report that the water supply in many districts was still extremely defective, and that in several instances we had to intimate to Local Authorities who failed to provide a sufficient supply of wholesome water that we might be obliged to take legal action if they continued inactive. In one instance we were compelled to prosecute a Local Authority—the County Council of Elgin—in the Court of Session for failure to provide a proper supply of water for the Hopeman Special Water Supply District. The Local Authority having alleged that the cost of such a supply would exceed the statutory limit of assessment, the Court refused the petition on the ground that the legitimate administration of the Local Authority of a Special District is bounded by the 2s. 6d. limit, and that any Local Authority which announced its intention of undertaking a scheme which avowedly transcended that limit would be liable to interdict at the instance of a ratepayer.

Hopeman case.
Local Government Board
v. the Local Authority of the County of Elgin.

Such cases cannot very well recur under the new Public Health Act. Not only has the limit of the Public Health General Assessment been raised to 1s. in the pound, and the Special Sewer and Water Assessment raised to 3s. in the pound, but power has also been given to us to sanction a higher rate in any Special Drainage or Special Water Supply District where it is found that the rate of 3s. in the pound is insufficient to meet the bona-fide expenditure incurred or contemplated within such district. Even where the Local Authority under Section 125 of the new Act have power to require water to be supplied to houses in certain cases by the owners thereof, it is provided that nothing in Section 125 shall relieve the Local Authority from the duty of providing their district or any part thereof with a supply of water where a general scheme for such supply is required and can be carried out at a reasonable cost. Public Health.

In view of these statutory amendments we are hopeful that measures will now be taken to introduce adequate water supplies for districts where hitherto it has been found impossible to proceed under existing financial conditions.

In reply to an enquiry whether a Local Authority could supply water to persons outwith the water district for domestic purposes by measurement, while ratepayers within the district were charged a special water assessment for the same purpose, we expressed the view that every ratepayer within a special district must be assessed for water for domestic purposes in the manner prescribed by the Public Health Act. If there is any surplus water beyond what is required for the special district, it appears to us to be competent for the Local Authority to grant a supply to persons outwith the special district on such terms and conditions as may appear best in the interests of the ratepayers of the special district. The disposal of surplus Water.

Our attention was drawn to the resolution of an Hospital Committee not to admit patients to the Local Authority's hospital without payment, except in the case of persons occupying single apartments. It was contended by the Hospital Committee that their resolution was in keeping with the terms of Section 54 of the Public Health Act, 1897; but we felt that there were considerations arising under the Statute which we wished to bring before the Committee. The hospital having been erected under the Public Health Act, and subject to the provisions of the Statute, the right of admission must, in our opinion, be as free as the Statute makes it. The main object of the provision for removal being the isolation of infected persons in the interests of the public health of the district, no consideration should be allowed to stand in the way of this where the Medical Officer orders the removal. Even when the patient can be properly treated at home, eminent sanitary experts are of opinion that it is desirable, in the public interest, and to prevent any risk of infection, that removal should be effected, and that the cost of removal and of treatment in the hospital should in all cases be defrayed by the Local Authority unless where special privileges are requested; and we hold that when a case occurs in which compulsory removal is competent it is the duty of the Local Authority, in the public interest, to remove and to pay the whole expense. The duties of Local Authorities as regards Hospital provision.

When an application is made to the Local Authority (in a case where compulsory removal is not competent) to remove the patient to hospital for the convenience of the person occupying the house, then, in our opinion, it is in the discretion of the Committee whether payment may properly be required.

This was our view of the provisions of the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1867, and it seems to us to apply with at least equal force to the provisions of the 54th Section of the Act of 1897.

Further, even though fees were to be charged, there is no provision in the Act for enforcing payment, and, in the case of compulsory removal, it would therefore be difficult to recover the money.

Public Health.

There may, however, be so many voluntary removals of persons suffering from infectious disease who might have been isolated in their homes as to crowd a hospital to the exclusion of cases which cannot be so isolated. In these circumstances the Local Authority would not be going beyond their duty in taking steps to avoid such a result where it may reasonably be anticipated.

As to housing of Tramps and Vagrants in working-class
Lodging-houses.

We were asked by a Local Authority whether they would be entitled, under Part III. of the Housing of the Working Classes Act, 1890, to provide a common lodging-house for the accommodation of workmen which would also be available for tramps and vagrants. The Local Authority were advised that under Part III. they were empowered to provide lodging-houses for the working classes. No definition of "working classes" is given in the aforesaid Act, but, in our opinion, tramps and vagrants would not be included in that expression, nor would it be competent for the Local Authority to provide common lodging-houses for such persons. The tramp or vagrant class cannot be said to belong to the working or labouring population for whose benefit such accommodation was intended. The fact that some of the conditions which, under the Act, justify the erection of such accommodation are: (1) That the accommodation is necessary in the area in question; (2) that there is no probability of its being otherwise provided; and (3) that it is prudent from a financial point of view to undertake it,—shows that it was not the vagrant class which was in contemplation of the Legislature. To house tramps and vagrants with the working classes in such buildings seems quite against the spirit of the Act. The buildings appear to be intended for permanent occupation, not as a roof for the night. Tramps and vagrants are very frequently housed in the poorhouses, and are a source of trouble to poorhouse officials, and sometimes of danger to the neighbourhood in which the poorhouse is situated. Legislation for tramps and vagrants has long been sought, especially since it has been found that the provisions of Section 57 of the Act of 1889 empowering County Councils to make bye-laws dealing with vagrants are insufficient or unsuitable for the purpose for which they were desired.

Smallpox.

In our last Report we stated that there had been a total of 39 cases of smallpox reported, as compared with 672 cases during the previous year. During the period from 27th September 1896 to 31st December 1897, 78 cases have been intimated from burghal Local Authorities, and 8 from district Local Authorities.

App. (B.),
No. 17.

Tables showing the distribution of these smallpox cases will be found in the Appendix.

Annual Reports of Sanitary Officers of Counties.

The Annual Reports furnished to us by the Medical Officers and Sanitary Inspectors of counties continue to afford evidence of the zeal and exceptional qualifications of these officers. These Reports were this year, as in previous years, carefully considered by us, and the attention of the respective Local Authorities was directed to any matter on which it appeared to us that action should be taken. We are satisfied from the answers received that the county Local Authorities in general are alive to the important nature of the duties imposed on them, and ready to give effect to the valuable recommendations in the Reports. This year we again quote a few extracts on subjects of general interest and importance.

Public Health.
App. (A.),
No. 17.

We have approved ad interim of Bye-laws for regulating the duties of Medical Officers and Sanitary Inspectors in the districts of six Local Authorities.

Bye-laws for Officers.

During the past year we gave our sanction in one case, in terms of Section 54 (4) of the Local Government Act of 1889, to the removal of a Sanitary Inspector by the Local Authority.

Removal of a Sanitary Inspector.

We have also, as empowered by the 62nd Section of the Act,* confirmed Rules and Regulations respecting common lodging-houses for eight burghal Local Authorities. These were similar to the Rules and Regulations framed by us and recommended to all Local Authorities for adoption, and which were printed in the Appendix to the Board of Supervision's Thirty-eighth Report.

Proceedings
under Section 62.

As empowered by Section 59 of the Act, we have approved in one case of the sum payable per night, according to which it is ascertained whether a house, or part thereof, is a common lodging-house, being raised from fourpence to sixpence.

Proceedings
under Section 59.

In terms of Section 44 of the Act, we have given our consent, in three cases, to Regulations for houses or parts of houses let in lodgings, or occupied by members of more than one family, such houses or parts of houses not being Common Lodging-Houses in the sense of the Act. These were framed on the model of the Regulations recommended by us, and printed in the Appendix to the Board of Supervision's Forty-sixth Report.

Proceedings
under Section 44.

We have been called upon to exercise our powers, under the 30th Section of the Act, upon four occasions by parties dissatisfied with resolutions of the Local Authority giving their consent to the establishment within burghs or villages of one of the noxious trades referred to in that Section. In accordance with our previous practice, the Inspecting Officer of the district made a careful inquiry upon the spot into the circumstances connected with these cases. In one case we sustained the appeal and determined that the consent of the Local Authority ought not to have been given. and in two cases we dismissed the appeal and determined that the consent of the Local Authority was properly given. The fourth case is still under consideration.

Proceedings
under Section 30.

In terms of Section 39 of the Act we approved the site of a hospital at Colinton Mains for the burgh of Edinburgh; also plans of hospitals for Deeside district of Aberdeen and for the burgh of North Berwick, also for joint hospitals for the district and burgh of Brechin, for the county and burgh of Selkirk, and for the eastern district of Dumbarton, western district of Stirling, and burgh of Kirkintilloch. We also approved the site and plans of hospitals for Alford district of Aberdeen and for the burgh of Kirkcaldy, also for the joint hospital for the western district of Dumbarton and the burgh of Dumbarton. We further approved the plans of additions and alterations at Davidshill Hospital for the northern district of ## Proceedings under Section 74.

In terms of Section 74 of the Act we authorised one contract by Local Authorities for irrigation and sewage works.

Proceedings under Section 84.

In connection with an application to the Board of Trade under Section 84 of the Act, we have been consulted by that Department as to whether their consent ought to be given to a Local Authority discharging drainage below high-water mark.

Bye-laws under Burgh Police Act.

By Section 318 of the Burgh Police (Scotland) Act, 1892, the duty is laid upon us of confirming bye-laws made under that Act relating to sanitary matters. Twenty-five applications were made to us during the period from 27th September 1896 to 31st December 1897. Eleven of these related to slaughter-house bye-laws, three dealt with the regulation of water supply, two with the drainage of houses, while the remaining nine referred to bye-laws regulating the cleansing of common stairs, the prevention of nuisances, the keeping of swine, and other sanitary purposes. These we confirmed in so far as they related to sanitary matters.

With regard to the confirmation of these bye-laws Commissioners of burghs have had some doubt as to whether—so far as sanitary—they should be confirmed both by the Sheriff and the Board; and we have expressed the opinion that all bye-laws made under Sub-head B. of Section 316 of the Burgh Police Act are “bye-laws relating to sanitary matters” in the sense of Section 318, and fall to be confirmed by us and then by your Lordship.

Loans from Public Works Loan Board.

We have received nine new applications by Local Authorities for our recommendation of loans from the Public Works Loan Board, the aggregate amount being £25,460, of which we were able to recommend £24,880. Of the applications recommended the sum of £24,580 was for the execution of water works, and £300 for sewage and drainage works.

Since the passing of the Public Health (Scotland) Amendment Act, 1875 (11th August 1875), we have received 540 applications from Local Authorities for our recommendation of loans. The aggregate amount of these proposed loans is £1,908,351 10s. The total amount of loans recommended by us during the above period is £1,841,202; the amount which we have declined to recommend during the same period being thus £67,149 10s. Of the loans recommended by us £1,253,889 was for the execution of water works, £365,598 for sewage and drainage works, £169,003 for the erection of hospitals, and £52,712 for water and drainage combined.

App. (B.), No. 12.

We print in the Appendix a Table showing the applications which have been made and the manner in which they have been dealt with by us.

Infectious Disease (Notification) Act, 1889.

Among the many important changes inaugurated by the passing of the Public Health Act of 1897 not the least was the extension of the Infectious Disease (Notification) Act, 1889, to every district in Scotland, whether it had been previously adopted or not. The following statistics show the number of Local Authorities which had voluntarily adopted the Act before the close of 1897; but there was still a large number of small burghs which were without a system of notification of infectious disease; and on 2nd November we issued a Circular—a copy of which will be found in the Appendix—drawing their attention to this most important provision, and enclosing a copy of the statutory form of Medical Practitioner's Certificate prescribed by us, and also a form of advertisement and hand-bill giving public intimation of the leading provisions of the Infectious Disease (Notification) Act. App. (A.), No. 14.

In our last Report we stated that this Act had been adopted by 96 county and district Local Authorities and 118 burghal Local Authorities. We have since received intimation of its adoption by 2 county and district Local Authorities and 10 burghal Local Authorities. The Act has therefore now been adopted by :—

No Local Authorities have availed themselves of the power to extend, with our approval, the notification to infectious diseases not specified in the Act. In four cases, however, the addition of Measles has been revoked.

We have received for the year ending 31st December 1896, returns of infectious cases notified to 96 county and district Local Authorities and 121 burghal Local Authorities, in which the system has been introduced either under the General or Local Acts. These returns have been tabulated and printed in the Appendix.

The total cost in Medical Practitioners' fees for notifying Infectious Disease in the burghs and districts from which returns have been received amounted in 1896 to £4,982 4s. 0d., of which Glasgow contributed £633 8s. 6d., Edinburgh £612 12s. 6d., and Aberdeen £657 3s. 6d., respectively.

Birth, Death, and Zymotic Death Rates.
App. (B.),
No. 18.

In the Appendix will also be found a Table showing the estimated Landward population in 1896, and the Birth, Death, and Zymotic Death Rates per 1000 in each county in Scotland, compiled from data furnished by the County Medical Officers in their Annual Reports for 1896.

VACCINATION.

Vaccination.

Prosecution of Defaulters.

In connection with the issue of the Report of the Royal Commission on Vaccination, communications were addressed to us in regard to the prosecution of defaulters under the Vaccination Act. We pointed out that, while no doubt the recommendations contained in the Report would receive due attention, yet, even assuming that legislation on the lines recommended would follow, until such legislation was effected Parish Councils must keep in view that they were in no way relieved of their duty under the existing law.

Modifications of Vaccination Act recalled.

At the request of the Parish Councils we recalled modifications which had been framed in connection with the Vaccination Act for the parishes of Urquhart (Inverness), Kilmory, and Shapinshay.

An abstract of the modifications of the Vaccination Act presently in force framed by us, in pursuance of the powers conferred by the 12th Section of that Statute, and approved by the Lord Advocate, is printed in the Appendix, showing the parishes from which the applications were made, and the modifications which were granted.

We print in the Appendix abstracts of returns from all parishes in Scotland, which have been made, in compliance with our Regulations, by the Vaccinators appointed under the Vaccination Act, for the half-years ended 31st December 1896 and 30th June 1897. These returns show the number of persons vaccinated successfully and unsuccessfully during the half-year, the number of cases in which certificates of insusceptibility have been granted, and the number of persons vaccinated who were not in receipt of parochial relief. They relate exclusively to vaccinations performed by the Vaccinators in their official capacity—i.e., cases of paupers and the children of paupers, and of those persons not paupers whom the Parish Council have authorised the Vaccinator to vaccinate; and they do not include vaccinations performed by the Vaccinators, or other medical practitioners, in the course of their private practice.

In compliance with our Regulations, the Inspectors of Poor of every parish in Scotland furnish returns of the number of defaulters under the 18th Section of the Vaccination Act. We print in the Appendix an abstract of these returns for the year ended 30th June 1897. That abstract shows the number of defaulters, the number of persons vaccinated during the year in terms of the Section referred to, the number of prosecutions under Sections 17 and 18 respectively, and the number of such prosecutions in which penalties have been adjudged.

The operation of the Central Institution for the Collection and Distribution of Vaccine Lymph in Scotland during the past year has continued to be entirely satisfactory. We print in the Appendix the Report for the past year by Dr. Husband, Superintendent of the Institution.

POOR LAW.

No. 1.—REPORT BY GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT, SOUTH-EASTERN DISTRICT,
FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31ST MARCH 1897.

Edinburgh, 22nd April 1897.

Sir,—I have to state that during the year ending 31st March last I reported upon the administration of the Poor Law in 224 parishes. I also conducted 15 special inquiries.

The following is a statement of the ratios of pauperism to population in the counties of the South-Eastern District at the 1st of January 1896 and 1897 :—

| Counties.              | Populationin 1891. | Ratio of Pauperism toPopulation. |                 |

| Roxburgh, . . . . .    | 53,500                 | 54·3                                 | 53·5            |
| Selkirk, . . . . .     | 27,270                 | 69·5                                 | 59·8            |
| Stirling, . . . . .    | 118,021                | 45·9                                 | 45·6            |
| Total, . . . . .       | 1,000,912              | 48·9                                 | 48·0            |

Although the rise is small, the tendency undoubtedly is towards an increase of pauperism.

In my last Report, I ventured to express the opinion that members of Parish Councils in many instances were not exercising their administrative powers to the best advantage.

Another year's experience tends rather to confirm that opinion, as the more minutely one examines the Parish Registers the more one is forced to form the impression that decisions are too often based upon feelings of sentiment rather than upon sound judgment. Consequently, it seems to me that far too many undeserving cases appear as receiving outdoor relief.

A most important point to be kept in view is, that if the Roll is cleared of all questionable cases, the Council are thereby enabled to grant liberal alimments to really deserving cases—notably to widows with young children.

In my opinion nothing tends more to raise the poorer classes than to consider the welfare of the children. Clothe and feed them properly, and in after years, as a general rule, we find them self-supporting and able to battle against the hardships of life. If they are stinted, and not imbued early with the idea of becoming self-supporting, independence is undermined and pauperism perpetuated.

During the past year a number of Parish Councils have resolved not to print the list of paupers with their allowances, and the only plea put forward for this resolution is the alleged saving of expense. I do not think, however, that there is any saving of expense here, for I believe that the additional cost of printing the names and circulating the statement among the Ratepayers would be more than met by the diminution in the numbers of those who would, in consequence, be in receipt of relief. Experience has proved that the printing of the names has been of great benefit in checking the growth of pauperism. It has been found by Inspectors that information withheld by paupers as to their circumstances has subsequently been given by neighbours who have seen the lists, and who have felt injured at individuals receiving alimment who were not entitled to it.

The following statement showing the number of parishes in my district where lists are, and are not, published, has been compiled from the Returns made to me by the various Inspectors of Poor on the 1st January last :—

These Tables disclose an increase of pauperism in every county except Dumfries. This is unsatisfactory; and there is not only an actual increase in the number of poor, but also a relative increase in comparison with the estimated population. Last year the Tables showed one poor person in every 45½ persons, and this year the ratio is one in 45. One satisfactory feature is, that the rate of increase is diminishing. Last year the increase was at the rate of five in a hundred, while this year the Rolls have increased by only two in a hundred. It is difficult to account for the increase of pauperism this year, and it would have been much easier to have accounted for a decrease, as employment for the labouring classes was rarely more abundant in the large towns, provisions were cheap, and the early winter was not severe. There is little doubt that the Parish Councils have been freer in admitting persons to the outdoor roll, and less stringent in the use of the poorhouse test, than their predecessors on the Parochial Boards. The first duty of the Parish Council is no doubt to grant relief, but the second, though less agreeable, is equally important—namely, to refuse relief. As I have above observed, the figures are somewhat reassuring that if the present conditions continue we may next year have to record not only a retarded increase, but an actual decrease.

I have very great pleasure in visiting the poorhouses. Much has been done during the last two years to improve the comfort and health of the inmates, and in some instances at great expense. As a rule, I find my suggestions cordially accepted and given effect to. I have lately visited the new poorhouse at Stornoway, and, as I have taken a deep interest in it during construction, I am proud to say that I think it will be "hard to beat." I may point out that nearly one-half of the poorhouses have now trained nursing, and several have paid, though not fully trained, nurses.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

R. B. BARCLAY,

NO. 3.—REPORT BY GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT, SOUTHERN HIGHLAND DISTRICT, FOR THE YEAR ENDED 30th JUNE 1897.

Balboughty, Perth, July 1897.

SIR,—Since 30th June 1896 I have visited and reported on the administration of the Poor Law in 279 parishes, and conducted 39 special inquiries—139 of these visits, and 29 special inquiries, have been overtaken since 1st January 1897.

The books of the Inspectors of Poor are in general well attended to, the work is, as a rule, conscientiously performed, and relief is administered with tact and discrimination.

There have been but two cases where the Board has had to dismiss Inspectors on account of complaints as to their conduct.

I attach a Table of Pauperism made up from returns received from Inspectors at 1st January 1897. This I have slightly altered in form this year, so that the totals and differences between 1897 and 1896 at 1st January can be more easily seen.

The figures show that in my district over all classes of pauperism there were 66 fewer persons chargeable on 1st January 1897 than there were on 1st January 1896. This arises, however, from a decrease in the dependants of 139, the actual paupers having increased by 73. The increase in lunacy continues, 65 being the increase this year, while last year it was 73.

A satisfactory feature this year is the reduction in the number of women chargeable on account of illegitimate children; this total has been reduced by 19 women and 51 children in the twelve months under review. Turning to localities, Dumbartonshire stands pre-eminent with a reduction in pauperism of 105.

This roughly means one pauper less in every 19, so that it is most satisfactory. The shires of Aberdeen, Kincardine, and Perth are slightly lower, while Argyll, Bute, and Forfar are slightly higher.

The population of the district in 1891 was 910,864, so that, without allowing for any increase in the population since then, the percentage of pauperism is only 2.24. If the actual population were known, I imagine the percentage would be little above 2, which may be considered satisfactory.

The matter brought most prominently to my notice during the past year was the universal dissatisfaction of Parish Councils with the expense and delay caused by the new system of audit. As I was confined to the house by an attack of influenza for ten days this spring, I issued a circular letter to the Inspectors of a number of the smaller parishes in my district so as to arrive at the approximate average cost of the system complained of. I took as the parish expenditure the sums shown in the abstract expended on Poor, School, and Registration; and in the expense of audit I included the auditor's fee, cost of advertising, cost of carriage of books, and auditor's outlays. For the smaller parishes it worked out that every £100 of expenditure cost £3 to audit, and there is no doubt that this is excessive, particularly when compared with the English system.

The fixing of a scale of fees by the Board, which are chargeable only on the Poor Law expenditure (as apart from the total expenditure), will reduce this very much, and the permission to advertise the notice by posters is another great concession; so that I hope in future the cost of audit will be very much reduced. I am glad to notice that the posters are being largely used.

I have for some time ventured to think that the system of apportionment of the medical relief grant (which I am aware is at present unalterable) does not quite result equitably.

As an example of this, take two neighbouring parishes: one has a population of 1156, area 46,800 acres, valuation of £8449, pauperism of 20, and draws from grant £13 3s. 4d.; the other has a population of 1293, area 42,100 acres, valuation of £13,662, pauperism of 33, and draws from grant £58 8s. 7d.

It would occupy too much space were I to give you here all the reasons and figures which I used in endeavouring to arrive at a conclusion. But perhaps I may be permitted to state briefly the main reasons why I am not content with the existing method, which are:—

1. The expenditure of Parish Councils on medical relief is governed by no fixed rules, and the relief afforded to the ratepayers in different parishes is most unequal.
2. The number of paupers chargeable is not universally proportional to population or area or valuation.
3. The difficulty of affording medical relief in wide, sparsely-populated parishes, compared to the ease with which this can be done in towns and small country parishes adjacent to centres of population.
4. The impossibility of distributing the grant equitably on any single basis—whether valuation, pauperism, population, area, or expenditure.

And the result I arrived at, which seems to work out pretty equitably, would be to allocate the grant one-half in proportion to the area of parishes, and one-half in proportion to the proper number of paupers per parish. I say proper number, by which I mean in general 2 per cent., though I believe that in some of the poorer parishes—on the Islands and on the West Coast—4 per cent. would be a proper number to allow. This percentage would, of course, fall to be decided by the Board, with its exceptional knowledge of the conditions of different parishes.

I have of course worked out many examples, but the general idea of the scheme may be of some interest. Apart from equity, it would, I believe, save an immense amount of labour in checking figures at the office, as the population might be taken as stationary for cycles of ten years, and also the pauperism.

Alternatively, the actual pauperism might be employed as a basis for every three years by taking the average of the preceding three.

On your appointment as Secretary, I requested the Board to take into consideration a re-allocation of the counties which formed the South-Eastern and Southern Highland Districts, with a view to equalising as far as possible the duties of the outdoor officers.

This has been done, and in future I am to inspect Fife, Kinross, and Clackmannan, instead of Argyll, Bute, and Dumbarton.

May I ask you, Sir, to be so good as to convey to the Board an expression of my gratitude for their kindness in so favourably acceding to my suggestion?

In taking leave of the counties of Argyll, Bute, and Dumbarton, I should like to put on record the invariable courtesy I have received from the various county and burgh officials, the Inspectors of Poor, and many others with whom I have come in contact on official matters. I have always found them most anxious to assist in giving information and details of all kinds, for which I most heartily thank them.—I have the honour to be, Sir, your obedient servant,

KENNETH J. MACKENZIE.

No. 4.—REPORT BY GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT, NORTHERN HIGHLAND DISTRICT, FOR THE YEAR ENDED 30TH JUNE 1897.

Inverness, July 1897.

Sir,—I have the honour to report as follows for the year ended June 30th 1897:—

During that period I made 140 visits to parishes, and conducted 27 special inquiries under instructions from the Board.

On January 1st 1897 the returns from nearly all the counties in the Northern Highland District showed a slight decrease in the number of registered paupers as compared with January 1st 1896.

It is matter for regret that the total number of women receiving relief, solely on the grounds of having illegitimate children, remains imperceptibly lessened. This will, I fear, continue to be the case so long as outdoor relief is given to such applicants. At present it is so given in nine-tenths of such admissions, partly from feelings of sympathy, and partly from a short-sighted policy of present economy, which will inevitably result in greater expenditure at a future date.

A considerable reduction in the number of registered paupers, and in the Poor Rate, would be effected were all Parish Councils to accept the deduction, from some fifty years' experience of the administration of the Poor Law, that it is "hurtful in practice" to grant relief otherwise than in the poorhouse in such cases.

In all populous districts, where "an enlightened public opinion" usually obtains, the poorhouse test is invariably applied, and with conspicuous success. In the remoter parishes, on the other hand, where the population is sparse and all are probably known to each Councillor, there is too frequently an unwillingness to employ the test.

Despite the irregularity of the course, in many instances I have found that applications for relief are presented by members to the Council without the same having been submitted to and inquired into by the Inspector. Unless in cases of emergency, this ought not to be done, and every chairman would act wisely in checking such a practice where it obtains.

It is also undoubtedly the case that, at each revision of the Roll of Registered Paupers, names are frequently left on, which, considering the altered circumstances of the cases, might be removed from the Roll. As dependants (children) grow up and begin to earn good wages it becomes their bounden duty, both moral and legal, to maintain their necessitous parents, from whose support the rates ought to be relieved. This is, however, not invariably insisted on, and outdoor relief continues to be granted to many from whom it might, in perfect justice, be withdrawn. An erroneous impression prevails in many parts that an applicant, once placed on the Roll of Registered Paupers, is entitled to continue to receive relief for the rest of his, or her, natural life.

In many parishes, I am glad to say, the Parish Councils do excellent work and exhibit a keener interest in administration than was done by the Parochial Boards. In others, however, there is a tendency to look on the sum raised by the Poor Rate as a kind of insurance fund, in which all are, more or less, entitled to participate, personally or through some connection. Where this view prevails it necessarily follows that applications for relief are too often granted without sufficient grounds, and sound administration cannot be expected. The "enlightenment of public opinion" is frequently a painfully slow process.

As a body the Inspectors of Poor throughout my district continue to do their work well. There have been, however, during the past year some cases of remissness, where the Board have been obliged to exercise their powers of suspension and dismissal.

In this connection I would impress on all Parish Councils the necessity for periodically examining all books kept by their Inspectors, and satisfying themselves that all transactions are properly entered. This is a duty devolving on all Councillors coincident with their election, and its systematic performance, as is the practice in many places, would minimise the risk of irregularity. Where the Inspector's work is properly kept up to date such inspection, far from causing friction, is welcomed by him. The interests of the ratepayers require it, and the Board have by circular impressed its necessity. I hope to see it much more generally the case in the future than it has been in the past. —I have the honour to be, Sir, your obedient servant,

W. PENNEY,

General Superintendent, Northern Highland District.

NO. 5. CIRCULAR AS TO FORM OF MEDICAL CERTIFICATE.

*Local Government Board,
Edinburgh, 30th August 1897.*

Sir,—I am directed to state that recent circumstances render it necessary that the Board should reconsider the form of the Medical Certificate required by the Minute of the Board of Supervision of 1st February 1871, in the case of persons to whom relief in the poorhouse has been offered. It now appears to the Board that the word "pauper" in that Minute does not always correctly describe the person in connection with whom the Certificate is to be granted, and that the word "applicant" might sometimes with propriety be substituted. I am therefore to request that a Certificate in the annexed form may in future be used in place of the one required by the Minute of 1st February 1871.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

G. FALCONAR-STEWART,
Secretary.

No. 6.—CIRCULAR AS TO EXEMPTIONS FROM ASSESSMENT.

*Local Government Board,
Edinburgh, 28th October 1896.*

Sir,—I am to inform you that the attention of the Board having been directed to certain exemptions from assessment not in terms of law, which some Parish Councils have been in use to allow, they consider it necessary to issue the present circular.

1. It may be said generally that the owners and occupiers of all lands and heritages in Scotland entered in the Valuation Roll are liable to be assessed for relief of the poor in respect of such lands and heritages. The exceptions are few and unimportant.

2. It is not necessary that lands and heritages should be actually let to make the owner liable for his share of the assessment. An owner cannot be exempted on the ground that his property is unlet. Unlet shootings and deer forests, indeed, were not included in the original Valuation Act among assessable subjects; but they are now assessable under the Act 49 Vict. cap. 15.

3. By the Poor Law Act of 1845 power was given to the Parochial Board to exempt from payment of the assessment on the ground of inability to pay. This exemption applies of course mainly to tenants and occupiers; but cases may occasionally occur where an owner is unable to pay.

4. There are other exceptions, however, to the general rule of liability,—exceptions based upon usage or general rule of law, or arising out of the provisions of Acts of Parliament.

5. The minister of the parish is not liable for assessment in respect of his manse and glebe; but when the glebe is not in the occupation of the minister, but is let by him to another, the occupier is liable to be assessed in respect of occupancy. When the glebe is feued under the provisions of the Glebe Lands Act 1866, it becomes an assessable subject. The exemption of the minister from assessment applies to Poor Rates only.

6. Lands and heritages occupied by the Crown, or by the servants of the Crown for the purposes of the Crown, are not liable to be assessed. The exemption has been held to extend to property occupied for the purposes of the Army and Navy, the Post Office, the Police, and Prisons. But the Treasury is in use to contribute in aid of local rates in respect of Crown property or property used for "the public government of the country," in terms of a Memorandum submitted to Parliament in 1874.

7. The exemptions under Acts of Parliament include the following:—

- (a) Mines and Quarries which have not been worked during some part of the year preceding the day on which the assessment is ordered to be levied are exempt by the Poor Law Act of 1845;
- (b) Churches, Chapels, Meeting Houses, and "Premises exclusively appropriated to Public Religious Worship," are not assessable (37 & 38 Vict. cap. 20); and it is further provided in the Act that the exemption shall continue although the building, or part of it, may be used for Sunday or Infant Schools, or for the charitable education of the Poor;
- (c) Burial Grounds are exempt from assessment under the same Act;
- (d) Sunday and Ragged Schools may be exempted from occupier's rates under 32 & 33 Vict. cap. 40;
- (e) Societies established exclusively for purposes of Science, Literature, or the Fine Arts, are exempt from assessment, either as occupiers or owners, in respect of the land and buildings used by them for the transaction of their business, and for carrying into effect their purposes, provided that they are supported in whole or part by annual voluntary contributions, that they do not, and by their laws may not, make any dividend, gift, division or bonus in money, to their members, and that they obtain a certificate in terms of the Act 6 & 7 Vict. cap. 36;
- (f) Militia Stores are exempt under 17 & 18 Vict. cap. 106;
- (g) Volunteer Stores under 26 & 27 Vict. cap. 65; and
- (h) Lighthouses under 57 & 58 Vict. cap. 60.

8. It appears, however, from communications addressed to the Board, that the following are not infrequently included in the exemptions allowed by Parish Councils :—

Schools and Schoolhouses ; School Playgrounds ; Industrial Schools ;
 Charitable Institutions ; Hospitals ;
 Lunatic Asylums ;
 Parish Council Offices and Houses ;
 Poorhouses ;

as well as the owners' rate in the case of unlet property.

The Board have to point out that these exemptions are not in terms of law, unless in cases of inability to pay, and they have to intimate that it is the duty of the local Boards, who are responsible for the recovery of the assessments, to see that the owners and occupiers legally liable are duly assessed.

9. The Board have, in conclusion, to remind Parish Councils that the Valuation Roll, as finally adjusted in terms of the Act, is conclusive as to value.

10. This circular is transmitted in triplicate, one copy being for the information of the Chairman of the Parish Council, another for the guidance of the Collector of the Parish Rates, and the third for your use and that of the Parish Council generally.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

MALCOLM McNEILL,
Secretary.

AUDIT.

No. 7.—CIRCULAR AS TO AUDIT OF PARISH COUNCIL ACCOUNTS, FORM OF ABSTRACT, PROCEDURE AT AUDIT, ILLEGAL PAYMENTS, &c.

*Local Government Board,
 Edinburgh, 30th April 1897.*

SIR,—In the course of the Audit of the Parish Council Accounts for the past year, several questions concerning audit were considered by the Board, and a number of illegal payments were reported. The Board now desire to bring a few of the more important points before Parish Councils and their Officers for their future guidance.

A.—FORM OF ABSTRACT.

1. The Abstract of Accounts must be prepared strictly in accordance with the form prescribed by the Board and on paper of foolscap folio size.

2. It has been found that, in many of the Abstracts of Accounts transmitted to the Board, the "General Abstract" was prepared in a faulty manner or omitted altogether. It is essential that this portion of the Abstract (which, with certain other information, has been prescribed for publication) should be prepared with great care.

3. All loans, except those of a very temporary nature (e.g., bank overdrafts), should be shown in the loan table specially provided in the Abstract of Accounts. Where there is a Loan in connection with a Poorhouse Combination, the proportion effecting to the Parish should be shown in the Parish Abstract.

B.—PROCEDURE AT AUDIT.

4. Clerks of Parish Councils must be very careful to give at least fourteen clear days' notice of the Deposit of the Accounts (either by advertisement or by placards,* posted in conspicuous places as the Parish Council may decide), of the time and place of Audit, and of the name and address of the Parish Auditor, in the form prescribed by the Board and set forth in their Circular to Clerks of Parish Councils, dated 24th April 1896.

5. Where such notice is given by placards, the Clerk of the Parish Council should transmit to the Auditor a duplicate copy, certified by the Chairman or other member of the Parish Council, with a statement of the places where the placards have been exhibited. The Clerk of the Parish Council will further certify to the Auditor the date when the placard was first publicly exhibited for the information of the ratepayers.

6. The Abstract of Accounts, duly signed by the Clerk of the Parish Council, must be transmitted to the Auditor not later than 1st August. This instruction is statutory; but only in very exceptional cases will there be any reason why the transmission of the Books should be delayed to the 1st of August, and the Board have to point out that, until the Books and Vouchers are returned by the Auditor, after having been examined by him, Claims cannot be made on the Medical Relief and Pauper Lunacy Grants. As it is considered by the Secretary for Scotland and the Board to be of great importance that these Grants should be distributed as early as possible, the Board request that the Abstract of Accounts be completed and signed by the Clerk of the Parish Council as soon as may be after 15th May, and, after due notice, deposited for inspection of the ratepayers, and transmitted to the Auditor. Any undue delay on the part of a Parish Clerk or other official in transmitting to the Auditor the Abstract and relative Accounts, or in furnishing Books or Vouchers or necessary explanations required by the Auditor, will be regarded by the Board as a serious neglect of duty.

7. The following Books should be transmitted to the Auditor, together with the Accounts and Vouchers required, viz.:—Minute Books, Day Cash Book, Bank Books, Ledger, Record of Applications, General Register, Pay Roll, Other Parish Poor Pay Roll, Suspense Poor Pay Roll, Medical Officers' Extra Diet Orders, Valuation Roll, and Assessment Roll.

8. Care must be taken that, in terms of the Act, the Abstract of Accounts, in the form prescribed, be published, after the completion of the Audit, in one or more of the newspapers circulating in the Parish.

9. Clerks of Parish Councils are referred for further instructions to the Board's Circular of 24th April 1896.

C.—ILLEGAL PAYMENTS.

10. Payments of the following nature have recently been held by the Board to be contrary to law and will fall to be reported by the Auditor for surcharge.

- (1) Cost of opposing Bills in Parliament.
- (2) Expenses in connection with Churchyards (other than Burial Grounds under the Burial Grounds Act) not formally transferred to the Parish Council by Minute of the Heritors or otherwise.
- (3) Charges for entertainments and trips for the sane poor.
- (4) Cost of refreshments of Parish Councillors and Officials at Meetings of the Parish Council.
- (5) Cost of Conveyance of Parish Councillors to Meetings of the Council.
- (6) Donations to Soup Kitchens.

D.—GENERAL.

11. Parish Councils should exercise complete control over the payments made by their Officers. Every payment should be authorised by the Parish Council (or its Finance Committee), or submitted to them for approval, and, if passed, initialled by the Chairman of the Meeting; and payments so authorised or approved should be entered in the Minute Book.

12. All payments should, as far as possible, be made by Cheque, signed by two members of the Parish Council, and countersigned by the Clerk.

* Placards for the purpose may be had from Messrs. Morrison & Gibb, Ltd., Printers to Her Majesty's Stationery Office, Queen Street, Edinburgh.

13. Every cash transaction under the Poor Law, Registration, Valuation, Education, and Burial Grounds Acts, should be passed through the Day Cash Book and posted into the General Parish Ledger, under such heads that the Abstract of Accounts, in the form prescribed by the Board, may be readily prepared. Where a Special Parish Rate is levied a separate set of Books will be kept for that rate. The instruction contained in the last paragraph of the Circular of the Board of Supervision, dated 8th November 1855, prohibiting Inspectors of Poor from entering in the Poor Law Books of account any sums received or expended under the Registration, Valuation, and Burial Grounds Acts is hereby withdrawn.

14. Expenses under the Registration Act cannot legally be defrayed out of the Poor Rate—a separate Assessment must be levied and specially accounted for in the General Ledger.

15. A Statutory Audit does not relieve the Parish Council of the duty of supervising the Accounts, which should be carefully examined by the Parish Council or its Committee from time to time during the year. But an examination should not be made at a date which will delay or interfere with the Deposit of Accounts and their transmission to the Auditor.

16. It is incumbent on a Parish Council to see that the Ratepayers are protected from loss on account of default of any of their accounting officers by satisfactory and sufficient guarantees for their intromissions, and some experience which the Board have recently had leads them to call the attention of Parish Councils to the necessity for assuring themselves of the validity and sufficiency of the bonds or securities taken by their predecessors. It is, further, their duty to take care that such guarantees are properly maintained.

17. The Board have determined that the following persons are responsible for Parish Council payments, and, in the event of any illegal payments, they will be liable to be surcharged, viz. :—

(a) Where payment is made by cheque, the persons who signed and countersigned the cheque.

(b) Where payment is made in cash, the Clerk or Inspector of Poor or other person who made the payment.

18. Two copies of this Circular are sent to you—one for your use and that of the Parish Council, and the other for the use of the Chairman of the Parish Council, to whom I have to request you to hand it.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

MALCOLM McNEILL,

NO. 8.—CIRCULAR TO AUDITORS REGARDING AUDIT OF PARISH COUNCIL ACCOUNTS.

*Local Government Board,
Edinburgh, 30th April 1897.*

SIR,—I enclose for your information a copy of a circular of this day's date to Clerks of Parish Councils.

I have to direct your particular attention to paragraph 6 of the circular, which shows the need for the rapid completion of the Audit, and to request that you will give priority to that duty, and report to the Board any delay or neglect on the part of a Parish Official which retards its completion. When the Parish Books and Vouchers have been examined, they should at once be retransmitted to the Clerk of the Parish Council, unless there is some special reason for retaining them.

The Board see no reason why, in ordinary circumstances, the Audits in all Parishes should not be finished by the 31st of August, and I am directed to request that on that date you will report to the Board the names of the Parishes in your District, if any, where this is not the case, with the cause of delay in each.

You will observe that intimation of Deposit of Accounts may in future be made either by advertisement or by placard. Where the latter method is adopted you will obtain a duplicate of the placard, certified by the Chairman or other Member of the Parish Council, and a statement of the places where it has been exhibited. You will further obtain from the Clerk of the Parish Council a certificate of the date on which the placard was first publicly exhibited.

The books specified in paragraph 7 of the accompanying circular must be carefully examined by you in the course of the Parish Council Audit.

In auditing Poorhouse Accounts it is necessary, in addition to the examination of the usual Accounting Books, "to see that all provisions, clothing, and other articles received are clearly shown in the books, and their disposal properly accounted for" (see No. 11 of "Suggestions"). This involves an inspection of the Clothing and Provision Receipt Books, of the Contractors' Books, and other books recording the various articles received in the Poorhouse, and of the several books kept by the Governor or other Poorhouse Officials showing the issue of the clothing, provisions, and other goods during the year. It further necessitates a careful examination of the Governor's Daily Diet Book, the Governor's Sick Diet Book, and the Medical Officer's Sick Diet Book, to ascertain that the provisions, cordials, etc., are duly accounted for. Tradesmen's Invoices of Goods delivered in the Poorhouse, and records of receipts from sale of articles produced by labour of the inmates, and from sale of waste and refuse, will also, of course, be examined by you.

You will see that the diet table is in accordance with the scale approved by the Board. This will be furnished by the Governor on application.

When any payment appearing in the accounts is, in your opinion, contrary to law, and presumably, therefore, one which should be disallowed, an "Interim Report" must be made. It is, however, no part of an Auditor's duty to express any opinion as to whether a surcharge should be enforced. The Board alone may decide that. As the Interim Report may have to be published along with the Abstract of Accounts, it is of importance that it should be clear and concise, and the Board would suggest that it should run somewhat in the following terms :—

INTERIM REPORT ON THE ACCOUNTS OF THE PARISH COUNCIL OF—

The Auditor begs to report that a payment (or payments) amounting to _____ pounds _____ shillings and _____ pence has been made out of the [Poor Fund or Registration Rate, or other fund, as the case may be] in respect of [State subject of payment].

The Auditor is of opinion that such expenditure is contrary to law. The grounds of the Auditor's opinion are [State grounds of opinion].

Payment was made by cheque, signed by Mr. [State full name and address], Parish Councillor, and Mr. [State full name and address], Parish Councillor, and countersigned by Mr. [State full name and address], Clerk of the Parish Council (or Clerk of the Landward Committee); [or payment was made in cash by Mr. [State full name and address], Clerk of the Parish Council (or other person by whom payment was made)].

_____
Parish Auditor.

Date, _____

You should further state in a letter accompanying the "Interim Report" (1) the circumstances under which the expenditure was incurred, and (2) whether the irregularity was due to "negligence, misconduct, or error of judgment of the person or persons responsible."

An "Interim Report" will also be made by you where there is any irregularity involving a loss to the Parish Council, or where any sum, which ought to have been, has not been brought into the accounts.

For further particulars I have to refer you to the "Suggestions" issued to Auditors on 24th April 1896.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

MALCOLM McNEILL,
Secretary.

NO. 9.—CIRCULAR TO TREASURERS OF POORHOUSE COMBINATIONS AS TO AUDIT OF PARISH COUNCIL ACCOUNTS, PROCEDURE AT AUDIT, ILLEGAL PAYMENTS, &c.Local Government Board, Edinburgh, 6th May 1897.*

SIR,—In the course of the Audit of Accounts for the past year, several questions were considered by the Board, and a number of illegal payments were reported. The Board now desire to bring a few of the more important points before Poorhouse Committees and their Officers for their future guidance.

A.—PROCEDURE AT AUDIT.

1. Treasurers of Poorhouse Combinations must be very careful to give at least fourteen clear days' notice of the Deposit of the Accounts (either by advertisement or by placards,* posted in conspicuous places in the Parishes comprised in the Combination as the House Committee may decide), of the time and place of Audit, and of the name and address of the Poorhouse Auditor, in the form prescribed by the Board and set forth in their Circular to Treasurers of Poorhouse Combinations, dated 24th April 1896.

2. Where such notice is given by placards, the Treasurer of the Poorhouse Combination should transmit to the Auditor a duplicate copy, certified by the Chairman or other Member of the House Committee, with a statement of the places where the placards have been exhibited. The Treasurer of the Poorhouse Combination will further certify to the Auditor the date when the placard was first publicly exhibited for the information of the ratepayers.

3. The Abstract of Accounts, duly signed by the Treasurer of the Poorhouse Combination, must be transmitted to the Auditor not later than 1st August; but only in very exceptional cases will there be any reason why the transmission of the Books should be delayed to the 1st of August, and the Board request that the Abstract of Accounts be completed and signed by the Treasurer of the Poorhouse Combination as soon as may be after 15th May, and, after due notice, deposited for inspection of the ratepayers, and transmitted to the Auditor.

4. The following books should be transmitted to the Auditor together with the Accounts and Vouchers required, viz.:—Minute Books, Cash Books, Bank Books, Ledger, Clothing and Provision Receipt Books, Contractors' Books, and other books recording the various articles received in the Poorhouse, the several books kept by the Governor or other Poorhouse Officials showing the issue of the clothing, provisions, and other goods during the year, the Governor's Daily Diet Book, the Governor's Sick Diet Book, and the Medical Officer's Sick Diet Book. Tradesmen's Invoices of Goods delivered in the Poorhouse, and records of receipts from sale of articles produced by labour of the inmates, and from sale of waste and refuse, should also be transmitted.

5. Treasurers of Poorhouse Combinations are referred for further instructions to the Board's Circular of 24th April 1896.

B.—ILLEGAL PAYMENTS.

6. Payments of the following nature have recently been held by the Board to be contrary to law and will fall to be reported by the Auditor for surcharge.

- (1) Cost of opposing Bills in Parliament.
- (2) Charges for entertainments and trips for the sane poor.
- (3) Cost of refreshments of Parish Councillors and Officials at Meetings.

C.—GENERAL.

7. Poorhouse Committees should exercise complete control over the payments made by their Officers. Every payment should be authorised by the Poorhouse Committee (or its Finance Committee), or submitted to them for approval, and, if passed, initialled by the Chairman of the Meeting; and payments so authorised or approved should be entered in the Minute Book.

* Placards for the purpose can be had from Messrs. Morrison & Gibb, Ltd., Printers to Her Majesty's Stationery Office, Queen Street, Edinburgh.

8. All payments should, as far as possible, be made by Cheque, signed by two members of the Poorhouse Committee, and countersigned by the Treasurer of the Poorhouse Combination.

9. A Statutory Audit does not relieve the Poorhouse Committee of the duty of supervising the Accounts, which should be carefully examined by the Poorhouse Committee or its Finance Committee from time to time during the year. But an examination should not be made at a date which will delay or interfere with the Deposit of Accounts and their transmission to the Auditor.

10. It is incumbent on a Poorhouse Committee to see that the Parishes in the Combination are protected from loss on account of default of any of the accounting officers of the Poorhouse Combination by satisfactory and sufficient guarantees for their intrusions; and it is, further, their duty to take care that such guarantees are properly maintained.

11. The Board have determined that the following persons are responsible for Poorhouse Committee payments, and, in the event of any illegal payments, they will be liable to be surcharged, viz. :—

- (a) Where payment is made by cheque, the persons who signed and countersigned the cheque.
- (b) Where payment is made in cash, the Treasurer or Governor or other person who made the payment.

12. The Abstract should be prepared on paper of foolscap folio size.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

NO. 10.—ORDER OF THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD FOR SCOTLAND PRESCRIBING A SCALE FOR THE REMUNERATION OF AUDITORS OF THE ACCOUNTS OF PARISH COUNCILS.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT (SCOTLAND) ACT, 1894.

WHEREAS it is provided by Section 36 (3) of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1894, that the Local Government Board for Scotland may prescribe a Scale for the remuneration of Auditors in respect of their duties under that Section;

AND WHEREAS it is expedient that a Scale for the remuneration of Auditors of Parish Council Accounts should be prescribed;

NOW THEREFORE WE, the Local Government Board for Scotland, by virtue of the powers vested in us as aforesaid, do hereby prescribe the Scale set forth in the Schedule hereto as the Scale for the remuneration of Auditors appointed under the said Section, subject to the conditions and reservations following, viz. :—

1. The prescribed Scale shall apply to the Audit of the Accounts of the year ending 15th May 1897, and shall continue in force until revoked or altered.
2. For the purpose of ascertaining the expenditure on which the fee according to the Scale is to be calculated, Assessments which are collected by the Parish Council and handed over to another Authority (such as the School-rate and Valuation-rate) shall not be taken into account.

B

3. The prescribed Scale shall not apply (1) to Poorhouse Accounts, and (2) to unassessed Parishes. The Board have not thought it necessary to carry the Scale beyond an expenditure of £5000, and they further reserve power to allow a special additional fee where it appears that from any cause the Audit has been exceptionally onerous.
4. In addition to the fee prescribed, the Auditor shall be entitled to repayment of any outlays necessarily incurred in connection with the Audit.
5. The prescribed Scale shall apply to the annual Audit only, and shall be exclusive of remuneration for any other or more frequent Audit that may be arranged.

Sir,—I am directed by the Local Government Board for Scotland to transmit, for the information and guidance of the Local Authority, the accompanying copy in duplicate of an Order containing Regulations issued by the Board in pursuance of their powers under the Public Health Act, 1896.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

MALCOLM M'NEILL,
Secretary.

The Clerk to the Local Authority.

ORDER OF BOARD CONTAINING REGULATIONS AS TO CHOLERA,
YELLOW FEVER, AND PLAGUE.Regulations as to Cholera, Yellow Fever, and Plague : Seaboard Local Authorities.

To all Local Authorities in Scotland, within whose District there is a Port or Harbour ;—
To all Officers of Customs ;—
To all Medical Officers of the Local Authorities aforesaid ;—
To all Masters of Ships ;
To all Pilots ;
And to all others whom it may concern.

Whereas the Lords of Her Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council, by an Order bearing date the 9th day of September 1893, did make certain Rules and Regulations ;

And Whereas the Act passed in the sixth year of His Majesty King George the Fourth, chapter 78, under which the aforesaid Order was made, and Sections 31, 34, and 56 of the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1867, have been repealed by the Public Health Act, 1896 ; and the said Order is no longer of any effect or force ;

And Whereas by Section 1 of the Public Health Act, 1896, it is enacted that Regulations of the Local Government Board for Scotland, in pursuance of Section 3 of the said Act, may provide for such Regulations being enforced and executed by the Officers of Customs and the officers and men employed in the Coastguard, as well as by other authorities and officers, and without prejudice to the generality of the powers conferred by that Section, may provide for :—

- (a) The signals to be hoisted by vessels having any case of epidemic, endemic, or infectious disease on board ; and
- (b) The questions to be answered by masters, pilots, and other persons on board any vessel, as to cases of such disease on board during the voyage or on the arrival of the vessel ; and
- (c) The detention of vessels and of persons on board vessels ; and
- (d) The duties to be performed in cases of such disease by masters, pilots, and other persons on board vessels : Provided that the Regulations shall be subject to the consent :—

  - (c) So far as they apply to signals, of the Board of Trade.

And Whereas it is provided by Section 3, Sub-section 2, of the Public Health Act, 1896, as follows, viz. :—

Whenever any part of the United Kingdom appears to be threatened with, or is affected by, any epidemic, endemic, or infectious disease, the Local Government Board for Scotland shall, without the issue of an Order by the Secretary for Scotland, have the powers set forth in Section 32 of the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1867, and power to issue Regulations under Section 33 of that Act ; and any such Regulations shall, for the purposes of Sections 37 and 38 of that Act, have the same effect as the Orders of Council referred to in those Sections.

And Whereas it is expedient that, in place of the Rules and Regulations made by the said Order, other Rules and Regulations as hereinafter contained should be made ; to which the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Customs, the Lords of the Admiralty, and the Board of Trade have respectively signified their consent so far as such Rules and Regulations respectively apply to Officers of Customs and to Signals ;

Now Therefore, We, the Local Government Board for Scotland do, by this Our Order, and in exercise of the powers conferred on Us by the Public Health

Provided that no such place shall be fixed without the consent of the Local Authority within whose jurisdiction or district the said place is situate, and that in the event of such consent being refused the first mentioned Local Authority may, in their discretion, refer the matter to Us, whose decision on any or all the points in dispute (without prejudice to any other course provided by law) shall be final; and any expenses incurred by either Local Authority in carrying into effect the provisions of this Article shall be chargeable to the Local Authority for whom such place of anchorage is provided within the terms of this Article.

Provided also that where, in pursuance of the above cited Order of the Privy Council, of the ninth day of September, One thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, or of any Order by the said Order revoked, places have been fixed for the mooring or anchoring of ships, for the purposes of the Regulations by this Order revoked, such places shall be deemed to have been so fixed in pursuance of and for the purposes of this Order.

Art. 11.—No person (other than an Officer of Customs or a person acting in the execution of this Order) shall leave any such ship until the examination hereinafter mentioned shall have been made.

Art. 12.—The Medical Officer shall, as soon as possible after any such ship has been certified to be infected, examine every person on board the same, and in the case of any person suffering from Cholera, Yellow Fever, or Plague, or from any illness which the Medical Officer suspects may prove to be Cholera, Yellow Fever, or Plague, shall certify accordingly.

Art. 13.—Every person certified by the Medical Officer to be suffering from Cholera, Yellow Fever, or Plague, shall be dealt with under any regulations that may have been made by the Local Authority under Section 55 of the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1867; or, where no such regulations shall have been made, shall be removed, if his condition admit of it, to some hospital or other suitable place appointed for that purpose by the Local Authority; and no person so removed shall leave such hospital or place until the Medical Officer shall have certified that such person is free from the said disease.

If any person so certified to be suffering from Cholera, Yellow Fever, or Plague cannot be removed, the ship shall remain subject, for the purposes of this Order, to the control of the Medical Officer; and such person shall not be removed from or leave the ship, except with the consent in writing of the Medical Officer.

Art. 14.—Any person certified by the Medical Officer to be suffering from any illness which such Officer suspects may prove to be Cholera, Yellow Fever, or Plague, may either be detained on board the ship for any period not exceeding two days, or be taken to some hospital or other suitable place appointed for that purpose by the Local Authority, and detained there for a like period, in order that it may be ascertained whether the illness is or is not Cholera, Yellow Fever, or Plague.

If any such person, while so detained, shall be certified by the Medical Officer to be suffering from Cholera, Yellow Fever, or Plague, the provisions of Article 13 shall apply.

Art. 15.—No person on board such a ship as is mentioned in Article 12, who has not been certified as required by that Article, shall be permitted to land unless he satisfy the Medical Officer as to his name, intended place of destination, and intended address at such place.

Such name, intended place of destination, and address shall forthwith be given by the Medical Officer to the Clerk to the Local Authority, and such Clerk shall thereupon transmit the same to the Local Authority of the District in which such intended place of destination is situate.

Every such person who, within forty-eight hours after landing, shall arrive at any place of destination or address other than such place or address as aforesaid, shall forthwith, upon such arrival, notify in writing his place of destination and address to the Medical Officer of the Local Authority, or to the Local Authority of the District in which such place is situate.

Art. 16.—The Medical Officer shall, in the case of every ship certified to be infected, give directions and take such steps as may appear to him to be necessary for preventing the spread of infection, and the Master of the said ship shall forthwith carry into execution such directions as shall be so given to him.

Art. 17.—In the event of any death from Cholera, Yellow Fever, or Plague taking place on board such ship while detained under Article 10, the Master shall, as directed by the Local Authority or the Medical Officer, either cause the dead body to be taken out to sea and committed to the deep, properly loaded to prevent its rising, or shall deliver it into the charge of the said Authority, who shall thereupon cause the same to be otherwise lawfully and properly disposed of.

Art. 18.—The Master shall cause the clothing and bedding and other articles of personal use likely to retain infection, which have been used by any person who may have suffered from Cholera, Yellow Fever, or Plague on board such ship, or who, having left such ship, shall have suffered from Cholera, Yellow Fever, or Plague during the stay of such ship in any port, to be disinfected or destroyed; and if the Master shall have neglected to do so before the ship arrives in port, he shall forthwith, upon the direction of the Local Authority or the Medical Officer, cause the same to be disinfected or destroyed, as the case may require; and if the said Master neglect to comply with such direction within a reasonable time, the Local Authority shall cause the same to be carried into execution.

Art. 19.—The Master shall cause the ship to be disinfected, and every article therein, other than those last described, which may probably be infected, to be disinfected or destroyed, according to the directions of the Medical Officer.

Art. 20.—Where a ship is not ascertained or certified to be infected, but has passengers on board who are in a filthy or otherwise unwholesome condition, or has come from a place infected with Cholera, Yellow Fever, or Plague, the Medical Officer may, if in his opinion it is desirable with a view to checking the introduction or spread of Cholera, Yellow Fever, or Plague, give a certificate in duplicate in the following form, or to the like effect, and shall deliver one to the Master, and retain the other or transmit it to the Local Authority.

On the Local Authority providing a proper supply of water for drinking and cooking purposes for persons on board any such ship, the Medical Officer may direct all casks or tanks on board the ship containing water for the use of such persons to be emptied and cleansed, and the Master shall cause the said direction to be carried into effect.

Art. 23.—The Master of any ship, or any other person, shall answer truly all such questions put to him by and give all such information to any Officer of Customs or Medical Officer as may be necessary for any purpose of this Order; and no person who is required, in pursuance of this Order, to give to the Medical Officer or to notify to any Local Authority the name and intended place of destination and address of such person, shall knowingly give or notify a false or fictitious name, place of destination, or address, or refuse to give or notify as aforesaid the true name, intended place of destination, and address of such person.

SIR,—I am directed by the Local Government Board for Scotland to transmit for the information of the Local Authority the accompanying copy of a notice which has been issued by the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury directing attention to the reduced rates of interest now chargeable on public loans as authorised by the Public Works Loans Act, 1897.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

COPY OF NOTICE ABOVE REFERRED TO.

The Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury hereby give notice that, in pursuance of the power conferred upon them by the Public Works Loans Act, 1897 (60 and 61 Vic., c. 51, s. 1), they are pleased that the rates of interest chargeable on public loans granted subsequently to the passing of that Act, and secured on local rates,* shall be fixed according to the following scale, viz. :—

| PERIOD OF REPAYMENT.    | RATES OF INTEREST.                |
|-------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| Not exceeding 30 years, | † 2½ per cent. per annum.         |
| 40    "                 | 3                   "           " |
| 50    "                 | 3½               "           "    |

It is to be observed that the Act contemplates the adoption of higher rates of interest if at any time the Treasury are of opinion that such action is necessary in the interests of the solvency of the Local Loans Fund.

* The Act defines a "local rate" to be "any rate levied or assessed, the proceeds of which are applicable to public local purposes, and which is levied on the basis of valuation of property, and includes any sum which, though obtained in the first instance by a precept, certificate, or other instrument requiring payment for some authority or officer, is or can be ultimately raised out of a rate as before defined."

† 2½ per cent. is the lowest rate of interest allowed by the Act.

NO. 14.—CIRCULAR DRAWING ATTENTION OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES WHO HAVE NOT ADOPTED INFECTIOUS DISEASE (NOTIFICATION) ACT, 1889, TO THE PROVISIONS OF SECTION 44 OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH (SCOTLAND) ACT, 1897.

INFECTIOUS DISEASE (NOTIFICATION) ACT, 1889.

52 AND 53 VICT., c. 72.

*Local Government Board,
Edinburgh, 2nd November 1897.*

SIR,—I am directed by the Local Government Board to draw the attention of the Local Authority to the terms of Section 44 of the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1897, which extends the Infectious Disease (Notification) Act, 1889, to every district in Scotland whether it has been adopted or not.

As this provision takes effect from and after the 1st day of January next, the Board deem it advisable to draw the special attention of all Local Authorities who have not previously adopted the Act to this most important provision.

Hitherto it has been necessary for Local Authorities, wishing to adopt the Infectious Disease (Notification) Act, to give due notice "to all persons interested," Section 5 (2) prescribing that the resolution adopting the Act must be published by advertisement in a local newspaper and by handbills and otherwise in such manner as the Local Authority think sufficient. In view of the penalties attached to any contravention of the Statute, the Board recommend that the Local Authority should now give similar public intimation that the Act is to take effect in every district in Scotland from and after 1st January 1898.

The Board have accordingly amended their form of advertisement and handbill to suit the altered circumstances, and have appended it hereto.

In terms of Section 4 of the Infectious Disease (Notification) Act, the Board have prescribed a form of certificate to be sent to the Medical Officer of Health by medical practitioners when notifying cases of infectious disease. As this form is statutory and must be used by all Local Authorities, the Board append a copy for the information of the Local Authority.

The Board would also remind you that in terms of Section 4 it will be necessary for the Local Authority to supply gratuitously these forms of certificate to any medical practitioner residing or practising in their district who applies for the same, and to pay to every medical practitioner for each certificate duly sent by him, in accordance with this Act, the fee of two shillings and sixpence if the case occurs in his private practice, and of one shilling if the case occurs in his practice as medical officer of any public body or institution.

Any expenses incurred by a Local Authority in the execution of the Act shall be paid as part of the expenses of such Authority in the execution of the Acts relating to the public health.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant, then, unless such building is a hospital in which persons suffering from an infectious disease are received, the head of the family to which the patient belongs, and in his default the nearest relatives of the patient present in the building or being in attendance on the patient, and in default of such relatives every person in charge of or in attendance on the patient, and in default of any such person the occupier of the building, shall, as soon as he becomes aware that the patient is suffering from any infectious disease to which this Act applies, send notice thereof to the Medical Officer of Health of the District.

The expression “occupier” includes a person having the charge, management, or control of a building, or of the part of a building in which the patient is, and in the case of a house the whole of which is let out in separate tenements, or in the case of a lodging-house the whole of which is let to lodgers, the person receiving the rent payable by the tenants or lodgers, either on his own account or as the agent of another person, and in the case of a ship, vessel, or boat, the master or other person in charge thereof.

II. NOTIFICATION BY MEDICAL PRACTITIONERS.

NO. 15.—CIRCULAR DRAWING ATTENTION OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES TO THE MORE IMPORTANT PROVISIONS OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH (SCOTLAND) ACT, 1897.

PUBLIC HEALTH (SCOTLAND) ACT, 1897.
(60 AND 61 VICT., c. 38.)

*Local Government Board,
Edinburgh, 16th November 1897.*

SIR,—The Local Government Board desire to draw the attention of Local Authorities in Scotland to the more important provisions contained in the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1897, which comes into operation on the first day of January next.

This Act consolidates and amends the law relating to public health in Scotland, and repeals the Public Health (Scotland) Acts, 1867, 1871, 1875, 1882, and 1890. It confers upon Local Authorities enlarged powers, and inter alia affords increased facilities for dealing with nuisances, for the regulation of slaughter-houses and of the traffic in unsound meat, and for the prevention and treatment of infectious and epidemic disease. It further contains new provisions relating to water supply and drainage, rating and borrowing for public health purposes, and the establishment of Port Local Authorities. It also enables Local Authorities to regulate by means of Bye-Laws such sanitary matters as the following:—Offensive trades (Section 32); the construction and cleansing of pig-styes (Section 35); the cleanliness of public conveyances (Section 65); the management of mortuaries (Section 68); the promotion of cleanliness in tents, vans, sheds, &c. (Section 73); and the regulation of buildings (Section 181).

The leading changes may be arranged under the following headings:—

NUISANCES.

The nuisance Section of the Act of 1867 (Section 16) has been entirely remodelled. By the latter Section, action was mainly confined to nuisances which were certified to be “injurious” to health; but the new Section specifies certain conditions and sets of circumstances which are nuisances in terms of the Statute, and may be dealt with accordingly. The criterion is that they shall constitute a “nuisance” or be “injurious or dangerous to health.” Injury and danger to health are alternative issues, and a condition of matters which may be dangerous to health need not necessarily be also injurious in order to make it a nuisance. The list of statutory nuisances has also been increased as suggested by the experience derived from the working of the existing Public Health Act.

SLAUGHTER-HOUSES.

The new requirements relating to slaughter-houses should receive the immediate attention of Local Authorities. After 1st January, 1898, in terms of Section 33, all slaughter-houses, both in county and burgh, and whether in existence before 1867 or not, must be licensed for use, such licence to be renewed from year to year. The duty therefore devolves upon all Local Authorities to make immediate preparation for carrying out this provision. In burghs this legislation is an amplification of the provisions of the Burgh Police Act (Sections 278, &c.)—in counties it is entirely new. Subject to the right of appeal to the Board or the County Council as the case may be, a Local Authority may refuse to grant or renew a licence, and if the occupier of a licensed slaughter-house is convicted of an offence under the Section dealing with the destruction of unsound food, his licence may be cancelled.

County Local Authorities are now empowered to provide public slaughter-houses, and may borrow for that purpose.

OFFENSIVE TRADES.

The existing statutory provisions dealing with the regulation of offensive trades will be found to be considerably altered by Section 32 and following Sections. The statutory list of such trades which a Local Authority may regulate by bye-laws may be added to by order of the Local Authority, and after 1st January, 1898, the sanction of the Local Authority will be required before any of them can be anywhere established. Provision is also made for treating the removal of house or street refuse by a Local Authority as a business within the meaning of the Act.

UN SOUND FOOD.

Section 43 of the new Act confers on Local Authorities generally greatly extended powers as compared with those at present in force under Section 26 of the Act of 1867.

Any duly appointed officer may inspect and examine :—

- (a) Any animal, alive or dead, intended for the food of man, which is exposed for sale, or deposited in any place or is in course of transmission for the purpose of sale, or of preparation for sale ; and
- (b) Any article, whether solid or liquid, intended for the food of man, and sold or exposed for sale, or deposited in any place or in course of transmission for the purpose of sale, or of preparation for sale.

The new clause confers additional powers as to the right of entry into premises for inspection, and extends the power of search so as to include not only premises, but carts, vehicles, barrows, &c.

Another feature of the new clause is that a Local Authority, or two or more Local Authorities in combination, if they think fit, may appoint a place or places within its district, or their districts, and fix a time, or times, at which a veterinary surgeon shall attend for the purpose of examining any animal, alive or dead, submitted to him, and passing or condemning the same.

MILK SUPPLIES.

The necessity for more stringent regulations with regard to milk supplies has also been recognised, and given effect to in Sections 60 and 61. These Sections form a new and very important addition to public health legislation, as they provide for the inspection of dairies and dairy cattle by medical officers and veterinary surgeons, and for the prohibition of the supply of milk from any dairy either within or without the district of the Local Authority to which it is suspected that the existence of infectious disease within the district may be attributed. Where it is certified that the existence of infectious disease is attributable to milk supplied by any dairyman, he may be required to furnish the Local Authority with a list of his customers, and of the farmers or others from whom he gets the milk he sells.

NOTIFICATION AND PREVENTION OF INFECTIOUS DISEASE.

Section 44 extends the Infectious Disease (Notification) Act, 1889, to every district in Scotland, whether it has been previously adopted or not.

Following on the introduction of universal notification, additional powers and facilities are given in the succeeding clauses to Local Authorities and their officers for preventing the spread of infectious disease, as, for example, a Local Authority may, and when required by the Board shall, provide, either within or without their district, proper premises, with all necessary apparatus and attendance, for the removal and destruction or disinfection of infected articles ; and may provide temporary shelter or house accommodation, and, if necessary, maintenance and attendants free of charge for persons who are prevented from returning to an infected house.

By Section 49 the Local Authority are empowered to call upon persons engaged in washing or mangling clothes, on payment of a fixed sum, to furnish a list of owners of clothes, if such is desirable, with the view of preventing the spread of infectious diseases.

The throwing of infectious matter into ashpits is prohibited by Section 50.

Sections 51, 52, and 53 enact penalties for the letting of houses in which infected persons have been lodging. Hotel-keepers also come within the provisions of Section 51.

The powers of compulsory removal to hospital are considerably increased in Section 54. The definition of "infected person" is extended to apply not only to persons without proper lodging or accommodation, but to persons so lodged that proper precautions cannot be taken for preventing the spread of disease, and also to persons lodged in a tent or van.

If a Local Authority have reason to believe that, on leaving the hospital, a patient would not be provided with lodging or accommodation in which proper precautions could be taken to prevent him from spreading disease, they are empowered, if directed by the Sheriff, to impose further detention in the hospital.

Additional preventive measures are provided (1) with regard to sending children to school who have been suffering from infectious disease or who reside in an infected house, and (2) with regard to persons suffering from infectious disease engaged in milking, fruit-picking, or any occupation connected with the supply of food.

Hospital provision is now made compulsory if required by the Board, and the Local Authority, with the consent of the Board, may also, or in place of providing hospitals, employ trained nurses to attend in their own houses and supply medicines for persons suffering from infectious disease.

PREVENTION OF EPIDEMIC DISEASE.

Part IV. of the new Act consolidates the provisions of the general Public Health Act of 1896, and confirms the powers then given to the Board. The general results are that orders with reference to the examination and detention of infected vessels or vessels coming from infected ports are now framed by the Board and not by the Privy Council, and that sanitary regulations, such as those formerly issued under Sections 33 and 35 of the Act of 1867, will now be issued by the Board at any time when the necessity arises.

In addition to the incorporation of these provisions affecting shipping, Part IV. enables the Board to make regulations dealing with internal sanitation where any part of the country is affected or threatened with any epidemic, endemic, or infectious disease.

WATER SUPPLY AND DRAINAGE.

The prominent feature of Part VI. of the new Act is that in future the provision of water supply in burghs will depend entirely on the powers conferred on Burgh Local Authorities by the Burgh Police (Scotland) Act, 1892, or by local Acts. But in order that burghs may not thus be deprived of certain powers which their Local Authorities had under Section 89 of the Public Health Act of 1867, a proviso is added to Section 124 of the new Act, to the effect that in the Burgh Police Act, and in the Lands Clauses Acts so far as incorporated therewith, the term "land" shall include water and any right or servitude to or over land or water. Similarly as regards the drainage clauses, and in view of the special provisions for forming drainage districts contained in the Burgh Police Act, Section 122 of the new Public Health Act, relating to the formation of special drainage districts, does not apply within burghs. With this exception, however, the drainage clauses are applicable alike within burghs as in landward districts.

Taking the Sections containing new provisions or important amendments in their order, Sections 104 to 106 provide for at least three months' public notice being given before sewage works without the district of a Local Authority can be undertaken, and for an appeal to the Board to be followed by a local enquiry if necessary. Section 107 is also a new provision protecting the rights of railway or canal companies where it is found necessary for sewers to pass under or across or in any way to affect railways, canals, bridges, etc., belonging to such companies. In amending Section 77 of the Act of 1867, which entitled owners or occupiers of premises within the district to drain into a Local Authority's sewers, a proviso has been inserted to the effect that sewage so emptied or discharged must not be of a nature to cause damage to the structure of the sewer, or to create a nuisance by admixture with other sewage therein. A similar proviso has been added to the Section dealing with the use of sewers by persons beyond the district of the Local Authority; but in the latter case the sewers and works connected therewith must be of sufficient capacity and otherwise suitable for receiving such additional drainage. Section 117 is also new, prohibiting persons from throwing or passing into the Local Authority's sewers any matter or substance which would interrupt the free flow of sewage or surface or storm water. Nor will it be lawful to throw into any running water, springs, drains, or ditches the carcase of any animal or part thereof.

The Section in the existing Act which allows the carrying of drains below high-water mark with the consent of the Board of Trade has been amended so as to enable them to be taken below low-water mark, and the consent of the Commissioners of Woods and Forests is also now required.

It will be found that the procedure for forming special drainage and water supply districts in landward districts under Sections 122 and 131 of the new Act is somewhat different from the procedure under the old Act, one important point being that the requisition to form a special district must now proceed in the name of ten ratepayers instead of ten inhabitants as formerly, and another that the initiative may, if necessary, be taken by the Local Authorities themselves.

Further, the difficulty which has been occasioned by the existence of concurrent appeals to the Sheriff and the County Council under the drainage and water supply clauses of the Act of 1867 and Section 17 (2) (c) of the Local Government Act respectively has now been removed by the insertion of a provision that it shall not be competent to appeal to the County Council against any resolution of a District Committee under Sections 122 and 131 of the new Act, and accordingly the appeal to the Sheriff alone remains.

The requirement of Sub-section (2) of Section 89 of the Act of 1867, under which an Owner might be compelled to provide his house with a water supply, has been re-enacted by Section 125 of the new Act, subject to the provision that he may now appeal to the Sheriff against the order of the Local Authority, and that nothing in the Section shall relieve the Local Authority from the duty of providing their district or any part thereof with a supply of water where a general scheme for such supply is required and can be carried out at a reasonable cost. But this Section does not apply within burghs.

RATING AND BORROWING POWERS.

As in the Act of 1867, provision is made for (1) a public health general assessment and (2) a special sewer and special water assessment, the former to be levied over the whole district of the Local Authority, the latter to be levied within the special drainage or water district, as the case may be.

In landward districts both the general and special assessments will be levied upon all lands and heritages, half on owners and half on occupiers. In burghs the general assessment will be levied in like manner as the general improvement rate under the Burgh Police Act.

The limits of assessment have been raised. The limit of the public health general assessment has been raised from 6d. to 1s. in the £1, and the special drainage and water assessment from 2s. 6d. to 3s. in the £1, power being given to the Board to sanction a higher rate in any special drainage or special water supply district where it is found that the rate of 3s. in the £1 is insufficient to meet the bona-fide expenditure incurred or contemplated within such special district.

Another important change as regards assessment is enacted by Section 138. In future the ratepayers of a burgh will not be assessed for any charges or expenses incurred by a County Council for the salaries or expenses of the medical officer or sanitary inspector appointed for the county.

The clauses authorising loans for drainage and water supply works are similar to those in the existing Act. The time over which a loan may be spread is again fixed at thirty years. While Section 2 of the Act of 1871 authorised loans for permanent hospitals only, in addition to loans for water supply and drainage, the powers in the corresponding Section in the new Act (Section 141) have been so enlarged that a Local Authority may now borrow for the purposes of providing offices for the use of the Local Authority, and for providing and furnishing such permanent hospitals, disinfecting premises and apparatus, houses of reception, and mortuaries, and for providing public slaughter-houses under Section 34 of the new Act.

ACQUISITION OF LANDS.

Under the new provisions relating to the compulsory acquisition of lands, a Local Authority may now purchase land by agreement or otherwise for the purposes of Parts II., III., and VI. of the new Act, thus enabling them, for example, to acquire land inter alia for public slaughter-houses and hospitals, as well as for water supply and drainage purposes. The procedure is somewhat similar to that prescribed in Section 90 of the Act of 1867, but certain powers and duties of the Secretary for Scotland under the old Act are now transferred to the Board, to whom applications for a Provisional Order empowering a Local Authority to put in force the powers of the Lands Clauses Acts should now be addressed.

THE REGULATION OF BUILDINGS.

The Burgh Police Act of 1892 contains a very complete code of laws regulating the erection of buildings; but as these statutory provisions apply only to burghs, they cannot be enforced in villages, or in such populous districts or suburbs as are frequently met with immediately outwith burghs and are under the jurisdiction of the County or District Local Authorities. Accordingly, in response to a very general demand by rural Local Authorities for powers to deal with insanitary dwellings at an earlier stage than is at present possible, the Legislature has now provided, in Section 181 of the new Act, for the regulation of buildings by the Local Authorities of districts other than burghs. Subject to the approval of the County Council, the District Committee are now empowered to regulate these matters by the framing of bye-laws, regard being had to the special circumstances of each district.

Another important matter which can at present be dealt with in burghs only, but which will now come within the purview of the District Local Authority, is the practice of erecting buildings on ground which has been filled up with material impregnated with fæcal, animal, or vegetable matter.

In addition to the special provisions regulating the erection of buildings, the Local Authority are referred to Section 16 (8), under which the cleanliness, ventilation, and overcrowding of schoolhouses, factories (not being factories subject to the provisions of the Factory and Workshop Acts) can be dealt with, and also to Section 29, which enables a Local Authority to insist on schoolhouses, factories, or buildings in which persons are employed in any manufacture, trade, or business being provided with a sufficient number of water-closets or privies for the separate use of each sex, and as this matter is one upon which urgent representations have been made to the Secretary for Scotland, it is desired to call special attention to the increased powers now put into the hands of Local Authorities.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.

Apart from the principal provisions already referred to, a large number of minor amendments have also been introduced.

Registrars of Births, Deaths, and Marriages must now furnish to the Local Authority such periodical returns of births and deaths as may be required of them and approved by the Board. For each death included in such return, and for each return of births, the Registrar shall be paid by the Local Authority the sum of twopence, and the Local Authority shall provide the forms on which such returns are to be made, and pay for their transmission by letter post.

To the Section dealing with houses let in lodgings (Section 72) a sub-section has been added applying it to "farmed-out houses—that is to say, to houses of "one or two apartments taken on lease by any person, and let or rented to "several occupiers for limited periods as furnished apartments, as also to all "boarding-houses for seamen and emigrants, irrespective of the charge made for "the board and lodging therein"; and reference may also be made to the new requirements contained in Part V. for the regulation of common lodging houses, one very desirable amendment providing for the renewal of the registration of such houses annually, and another for the removal of a house from the register permanently or until there is a change of circumstances. The difficulty of cancelling a licence once granted was frequently experienced by Local Authorities under the Act of 1867.

An Act so extensive in its scope, and covering practically the whole range of public health administration, cannot be fully described within the limits of a circular; but the Board will at all times be ready to afford to Local Authorities such information and assistance in the execution of the Statute as it may be in their power to give.

The Board meantime commend the Act itself to the careful consideration of the Local Authorities and their officers, and trust that every effort will be made to give full effect to the improved conditions of administration under the new Act, and that each Local Authority within their own district will execute its sanitary provisions with vigour and intelligence.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

NO. 16.—CIRCULAR TRANSMITTING FOR THE INFORMATION AND GUIDANCE OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES COPIES OF SUGGESTED BYE-LAWS FOR REGULATING HOUSES LET IN LODGINGS AND COMMON LODGING HOUSES.

PUBLIC HEALTH (SCOTLAND) ACT, 1897.

BYE-LAWS AS TO HOUSES LET IN LODGINGS AND COMMON LODGING HOUSES.

*Local Government Board,
Edinburgh, 30th November 1897.*

SIR,—I am directed to inform you that in the opinion of the Local Government Board it is doubtful whether Rules, Regulations, and Bye-laws framed in terms of the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1867, will remain in force after 31st December 1897, and the Board would recommend Local Authorities to revise their existing Bye-laws in accordance with their extended powers under the Public Health Act of 1897.

As this recommendation applies more particularly to what in the new Act are termed Bye-laws (1) for Houses Let in Lodgings and (2) for Common Lodging Houses, the Board, with the view of assisting Local Authorities to give effect to the new provisions with as little delay as possible, have revised their Bye-laws for regulating such Houses in conformity with Sections 72 and 92 of the amended statute, and copies of these revised Bye-laws are herewith transmitted in duplicate for the information and guidance of the Local Authority.

In districts where Rules and Regulations dealing with Houses Let in Lodgings and Common Lodging Houses, under the Public Health Act of 1867, are in force, the Board recommend the Local Authority to take immediate steps to substitute the accompanying Bye-laws for those at present in use; and in the case of a Local Authority within whose district such houses exist, but no Bye-laws have been adopted, the Board recommend the adoption without delay of the Bye-laws now sent.

In the general circular already issued, summarising the leading provisions of the new Public Health Act, the Board drew attention to the improved facilities for regulating Common Lodging Houses, such as the yearly renewal of registration, the power to remove unsuitable houses from the register, and the enforcement of sufficient privy or water-closet accommodation, &c., in proportion to the number of lodgers and occupiers. With regard to Houses Let in Lodgings, the Local Authority will also observe that Bye-laws for regulating the same may now, and if required by the Board shall, be enforced for the whole or any part of their district irrespective of population.

I am also to draw special attention to the general provisions as to Bye-laws contained in Sections 183 to 187 of the new Act. The procedure therein prescribed, which must be carried out before the Bye-laws can come into force, may be summarised as follows :—

- (a) Intimation of the intention of the Local Authority to apply for the Board's confirmation should be given in one or more of the local newspapers circulating within, or by handbills posted throughout the district one month at least before the making of such application.
- (b) Under the new Act it is not necessary to advertise the text of the Bye-laws themselves, but a copy of the Bye-laws must be available for inspection during the month at the places prescribed in the Act.
- (c) As soon as the statutory period has expired the Local Authority should submit a print of the Bye-laws for the Board's confirmation, without which they cannot take effect.

Should the Local Authority find that there is not sufficient time before 1st January next to allow for revision and advertisement of their existing Rules and Regulations, or to consider as to the adoption of the Board's suggested Bye-laws, I am further directed to inform you that the Board are prepared to confirm, ad interim, as Bye-laws the Rules and Regulations at present in force. But even if that course be adopted, it would still be necessary to carry out the procedure prescribed by Section 185 of the Act, and I am to add that, in the circumstances, the Board will be satisfied with one publication in the newspapers.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

G. FALCONAR-STEWART,
Secretary.

To the Clerk to the Local Authority.

14. The owner or occupier in the case of a house let in lodgings, and the owner, in the case of a house occupied by members of more than one family, shall cause the walls and ceilings of the apartments and lobbies of such houses to be cleansed and lime-washed in the first weeks of each of the months of April and October in every year (or in such other two months as the Local Authority may direct). Such houses must also be cleansed and lime-washed at such other times as the Medical Officer of Health, in special cases, may consider necessary for the public health.

(f) "For the giving of notices and the taking of precautions in cases of any infectious disease."

15. Every occupier, immediately after he shall have been informed or shall have ascertained that any person in such house is suffering from an infectious disease, shall give immediate notice thereof to the Medical Officer of Health of the Local Authority, and shall act in accordance with his instructions.

16. In the case of any death taking place in such house, the occupier shall give immediate notice of the same to the Local Authority.

PENALTIES.

17. Any person offending against any of these Bye-laws shall be liable in a penalty not exceeding the sum of Five Pounds for each offence; and, in the case of a continuing offence, in a further penalty not exceeding the sum of Forty Shillings for each day after written notice of the offence from the Local Authority.

BYE-LAWS FOR COMMON LODGING HOUSES.

COMMON LODGING HOUSES.

The definition of the expression "Common Lodging House" is given in Section 3 of the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1897, and is as follows:—

The expression "Common Lodging House" means a house or part thereof where lodgers are housed at an amount not exceeding fourpence per night, or such other sum as shall be fixed under the provisions of this Act, for each person whether the same be payable nightly or weekly, or for any period not longer than a fortnight, and shall include any place where emigrants are lodged and all boarding-houses for seamen, irrespective of the rate charged for lodging or boarding.

The expression "Keeper of a Common Lodging House" includes any person having or acting in the care and management of a Common Lodging House.

The statutory provisions as to Common Lodging Houses are contained in Part V., Sections 89 to 100 inclusive. Power to make Bye-laws for Common Lodging Houses is given to Local Authorities by Section 92, and the procedure for bringing the Bye-laws into operation will be found prescribed in Sections 183 to 187 inclusive.

RECOMMENDATIONS TO LOCAL AUTHORITIES IN REGISTERING PREMISES AS COMMON LODGING HOUSES.

Before any premises are placed upon the Register of Common Lodging Houses, it is the duty of the Local Authority to satisfy themselves that such premises are in every respect suitable for the purpose.

With this view the attention of the Local Authority should be directed to the following points :—

1. Structure and Drainage.—The premises should be well drained, and the foundations of the buildings thoroughly dry. The structure should be substantial, and the walls, roof, and floors in good repair. Suitable rhones, gutters, and spouts, properly placed and fixed, and discharging into disconnecting or ventilating traps, ought also to be in connection with the roof and outside walls. Any area or yard should be well paved, or otherwise have a surface which can be easily swept and cleansed.

2. Internal Arrangements.—The suitability of the internal arrangements must be carefully considered, special attention being paid to the situation, construction, and state of repair of sinks, basins, water-closets, and cisterns. The waste and soil pipes should be efficiently disconnected and ventilated.

3. Water Supply.—The water supply must be of good quality, and in quantity proportionate to the number of lodgers which the house is registered to accommodate. Where the water is stored in cisterns, these should be properly situated, covered, and not exposed to pollution from sewer-gas or otherwise. Cisterns for the domestic supply should be separate from those provided for W.C.'s. Where the supply is derived from wells, the Local Authority should satisfy themselves that it is secure from any danger of contamination.

4. Cubic Space.—The proper amount of cubic space for each lodger will vary according to circumstances. In rooms of good construction, and having ample means of ventilation, not less than 300 cubic feet for each person may be adequate provision ; but in some cases, as, for example, in a room where there is no fireplace, or in premises situated in a crowded neighbourhood, a larger provision will have to be made.

5. Ventilation.—All rooms, passages, and stairs should possess means of complete ventilation. All windows should be of adequate size, and able to be opened to the full extent. No room should be registered which has not a window opening directly to the outer air.

6. Privy Accommodation.—Closet or privy accommodation should be proportionate to the number of lodgers which the house is registered to accommodate, and should be in the proportion of not less than one closet or privy for every twenty lodgers. These conveniences should be in suitable situations, of proper construction, and in good repair.

7. Washing Accommodation.—Washing accommodation should be ample, and provided in a place set apart for the purpose.

8. Kitchen.—No kitchen or apartment used as such should be registered as a sleeping apartment.

BYE-LAWS FOR COMMON LODGING HOUSES RECOMMENDED BY THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD FOR SCOTLAND.

1. No house shall be used as a Common Lodging House unless such house shall have been inspected for that purpose by the Inspector of Common Lodging Houses, approved by the Local Authority, and duly registered.

2. Each application to have a house registered as a Common Lodging House shall be in writing, and lodged at or previous to the 15th day of May in every year. It shall truly set forth the name and residence of the applicant, the situation of the house, the number of rooms, the number of lodgers proposed to be accommodated, and the number of the applicant's family, and shall be accompanied by a Certificate of Character, in such form as the Local Authority shall direct.

3. If the Local Authority are satisfied with the character of the applicant, and with the fitness of the premises, they may register accordingly, and shall furnish him as Keeper with a Register Ticket for each room of such Common Lodging House, setting forth the number of lodgers to be accommodated in such room ; and every Keeper of a Common Lodging House shall keep hung up in some conspicuous place in each room the Register Ticket for such room, along with a copy of these Bye-laws, and shall not wilfully deface or destroy the same, or permit them to be defaced or destroyed.

4. The Keeper of a Common Lodging House shall not at any time receive, or cause or suffer to be received into such house or into any room therein a greater number of lodgers than shall be fixed by the Local Authority as the maximum number of lodgers authorised to be received into such house or into such room.

5. The Keeper of a Common Lodging House shall not permit males and females above ten years of age to occupy the same sleeping compartment, except in the case of husband and wife.

6. The Keeper of a Common Lodging House shall enter in a book to be kept by him the name and designation, and the dates of arrival and departure, of each lodger; and he shall, when required, furnish to the Local Authority or their Officers, on schedules supplied for the purpose, a report on every person who resorted to the house during the preceding day and night.

7. All rooms, lobbies, passages, and stairs in every Common Lodging House shall be properly ventilated to the satisfaction of the Local Authority. A window of every room shall be made so as to open, and shall be kept open for two hours in the morning and two hours in the afternoon of every day, unless prevented by bad weather or the illness of any lodger; and during the hours when the windows are open, the bedclothes of every bed shall be turned down and exposed to the air.

8. The Keeper of a Common Lodging House shall provide sufficient bedsteads and bedding, a proper supply of pure and wholesome water, and suitable accommodation for cooking and washing, together with towels and all necessary utensils for the requirements of the lodgers, all to the satisfaction of the Local Authority.

9. The Keeper of a Common Lodging House shall cause all bedclothes and bedding, and all articles and utensils in such house, to be kept in a thoroughly clean and wholesome condition.

10. Every Common Lodging House must be provided with sufficient privy or water-closet accommodation in proportion to the number of lodgers and occupiers. There must also be proper drainage and ashpit accommodation.

11. The Keeper of a Common Lodging House shall cause the floors of every apartment, and of every lobby, closet, passage, and stair in such house, and also the common stairs and lobbies by which access is obtained thereto, to be thoroughly swept every day, before the hour of ten in the forenoon, and to be thoroughly washed once in every week; he shall thoroughly cleanse all the rooms, passages, stairs, floors, windows, doors, walls, ceilings, water-closets, privies, ashpits, cesspools, and drains thereof to the satisfaction of the Inspector, and so often as shall be required by, and in accordance with any Bye-law of the Local Authority, and shall well and sufficiently, and to the like satisfaction, lime-wash the walls and ceilings thereof in the first week of each of the months of April and October in every year, and at such other times as the Local Authority may by special order appoint or direct.

12. The Keeper of a Common Lodging House shall cause all ashes and night-soil, and all solid and liquid filth or refuse, and all offensive matter, to be removed from such house every day before the hour of ten in the forenoon; shall not allow any dangerous or offensive animal, or any poultry, to be kept or fed in such house; shall cause all water-closets, privies, and ashpits belonging to such house to be maintained in good order and in a wholesome condition; and shall cause any yard, area, or court in connection with such house to be regularly swept, and kept in a clean and wholesome condition.

13. When any person in a Common Lodging House is ill of any infectious disease, the Keeper of such house shall give immediate notice thereof to the Medical Officer of Health or to the Inspector of Common Lodging Houses, who shall forthwith inform the Medical Officer of Health. If satisfied that the person is suffering from an infectious disease, the Medical Officer of Health shall cause the patient to be removed without delay, and the premises to be disinfected.

14. If the patient so suffering cannot be removed with safety, the house shall not be used as a Common Lodging House, except such part thereof as may be certified by the Medical Officer of Health to be free from infection.

15. The Keeper of a Common Lodging House shall, immediately after the removal, recovery, or death of any person who may have been ill of any infectious disease within such house, cause every part of the room which may have been occupied by such person to be thoroughly cleansed and disinfected, and shall also cause all clothes, bedding, and other articles in such room to be thoroughly cleansed and disinfected, unless the Local Authority shall have ordered the same to be destroyed.

16. The Keeper of a Common Lodging House shall at all times give free access to such house, and to every part thereof, when required by any Officer of the Local Authority.

17. The Keeper of a Common Lodging House shall refuse to admit into such house any person in a state of intoxication, or of known bad character; shall maintain and see to the enforcement of good order and decorum within such house; and shall prevent any persons occupying or resorting to such house for immoral purposes.

18. Any person offending against any of these Bye-laws shall be liable in a penalty not exceeding the sum of Five Pounds for each offence, and, in the case of a continuing offence, in a further penalty not exceeding the sum of Forty Shillings for each day after written notice of the offence from the Local Authority.

No. 17.—EXTRACTS FROM REPORTS FOR 1896 BY SANITARY OFFICERS.

The following extracts from the Annual Health Reports of medical officers and sanitary inspectors have been selected with the object of presenting to Local Authorities and their officers information of general interest on public health work.

These extracts have been published from year to year in the Board's Annual Reports since the Health Reports were first issued by the County Authorities for 1891, and they are valuable as illustrating to a certain extent the progress made in county sanitary administration from that date.

I. PRELIMINARY REMARKS ON SANITARY PROGRESS GENERALLY DURING 1896.

(1) ABERDEENSHIRE.

If improvement may be measured by the rate of expenditure, the sanitary condition of the county has during the last few years progressed rapidly. I find, for example, that on water supply and drainage works in connection with the villages, there has been spent since the year 1890 a sum closely approaching £40,000, while a further sum of £30,000 will probably be required to complete works already in hand or contemplated. With these executed, however, the work of this kind in most of the districts will be finished. It may be interesting to note that the total amount borrowed by the county from 1871 to 1890 for similar works amounted to £13,076. A great deal of money has also been spent in improving housing, particularly the accommodation provided for the unmarried farm servants, and on other matters connected with hygienic requirements.

JAMES P. WATT, D.P.H.,
County Medical Officer.

(2) SKYE DISTRICT—INVERNESS-SHIRE.

Dr Dewar, chief district medical officer of Skye, in his annual report to the Skye District Committee, states that he is pleased to record a steady improvement in the sanitary state of the district. The improvement, as reported last year, consists in the erection of new houses of modern construction, with increased accommodation. In former reports I stated fully the sanitary condition of the district, and suggested certain remedies for its improvement. The practice of housing cattle under the same roof as the dwelling-house is rapidly disappearing. The Public Health Committee issued notices to those who are still adhering to this primitive custom, giving them a certain time to carry out the improvement, failing which the parties in default will be prosecuted. I am, however, sanguine that from the steady progress that has taken place for the past few years the habit will soon be a relic of the past. There are still several houses in the village of Portree without sanitary conveniences. The Local Authority has issued a final notice to the proprietors of such houses to have the work executed within a month. Dr. Dewar reports that there were fifty cases of infectious disease notified within the district during the year; this does not include measles and whooping-cough. The notifications comprised 33 cases of scarlet fever, 11 cases of diphtheria, 1 case of typhus fever, 3 cases of enteric fever, and two cases of erysipelas. Scarlet fever, which was prevalent in the district, was of an extremely mild type. Diphtheria broke out in Kyle Rhea, in parish of Sleat, in February. At that time four cases were notified. The disease reappeared in June and July, five cases being notified in the second outbreak. The cause of the outbreaks was traced to the insanitary conditions of the houses and their surroundings. There was one case of typhus fever notified from Kyle Rhea, which proved fatal. It is gratifying to report that there is a gradual decrease in the number of cases since 1893, when there were thirty cases notified, and twelve and five cases respectively in the years 1894 and 1895.

OGILVIE GRANT, M.B., D.P.H.,
County Medical Officer.

(3) PARISH OF BARRA—INVERNESS-SHIRE.

In May last I reported that there had been less sickness in the parish during the preceding twelve months than had been the case for some years past, and I am glad to say that this satisfactory state of matters has continued since then, and that the death-rate for 1896 is exceptionally low. The parish has been free from the more common infectious diseases, but five cases of puerperal fever have occurred since March last, and although some of them were very severe, none fortunately proved fatal—the last case being just convalescent. All these cases were attended at confinement by so-called midwives—women who have had no training whatever—and I have no doubt the cause of the disease was want of cleanliness. Indeed, I have often marvelled how any case of confinement in this island escapes puerperal fever, considering the way they are generally treated. The necessity for having a trained nurse with some knowledge of midwifery in every parish in the Highlands, and more especially in these islands, is now universally acknowledged by all who have paid any attention to the question, and I hope your Committee will take steps to get one for Barra. The services of a trained nurse in cases of serious illness might save many a valuable life, and in these islands her presence in teaching the people the value of cleanliness and the proper feeding of the sick would be of inestimable benefit. In the island of Benbecula, where by the generous assistance of the proprietor a nurse was secured more than a year ago, the people are experiencing the great advantage of her services. The issuing of summonses last summer to those who kept cattle in their dwelling-houses, though they could not be put in force at the time, owing to the cattle not having been housed for some weeks prior to the date of the summonses, has had a good effect, as since then byres for the cattle have been built by most, if not all, of the offenders. I think I have referred in all my reports to the unsatisfactory state of the wells in the island, and the urgent necessity for an improved system—pump wells being in my opinion the most suitable in order to prevent pollution from the surface and by the dipping of the utensils for carrying the water.

JOHN MACRURY, M.B., C.M.,
Medical Officer for the Parish of Barra.

(4) SUTHERLANDSHIRE.

Even a superficial observer of the life and habits of the inhabitants of this county must be struck with the prevailing desire and willingness for all reasonable measures to be taken in order to bring about improvements in sanitation. There is at the foundation of all domestic arrangements an innate desire or bias towards cleanliness on the part of most householders, granted that the conditions and facilities thereto are fairly available. But superadded to this, and to be reckoned with, is the demand of the yearly increasing number of summer visitors to this county for all the possible conditions in dwelling-houses and the surroundings which will contribute to good health, and also a natural anxiety that the risks of incurring ill-health from preventable causes are entirely abolished or reduced to the minimum. Of course there are many short-sighted people who do not, or will not, look at the question from this point of view. It would seem too expensive to make provision for modern holiday makers and health seekers who visit our Highlands ; but even on the basis of a money calculation, this business of making the sanitary arrangements of our country districts as perfect as in towns pays, and pays well, pecuniarily, quite irrespective of the increased measure of health and happiness which indirectly is the resultant of such wise provision.

It greatly delights me to record that a great many of my suggestions and proposals in previous reports have been already or are now in the process of being executed—e.g., Lairg and Bonar water supply schemes, presently in the hands of contractors; also Embo and Stoer water schemes, being diligently studied by competent engineers aided by the sanitary staff. It is my belief also that some of the places which have been denied the benefits of water and scavenging improvements will again have their case considered by the Council at a time when there is less congestion of public work on hand. It doth not yet appear what our county shall be in a few years hence; but it is a fact that within the short period of the Council's operations, much progress and improvement have attended their efforts in many departments of work. This tendency in all likelihood will be accelerated in the future, and the writer of Annual Reports will have less and less to recommend as requiring to be done, but, happily, more—increasingly more—to record as accomplished facts in the domain of public health.

D. G. SUTHERLAND, M.B., B.Sc.,
County Medical Officer.

II. ON THE HOUSING OF THE WORKING CLASSES.

(1) ON THE HOUSING OF THE LABOURING CLASSES IN BUTE.

During the year great activity has been shown in this branch of public health all over the county, numerous improvements being carried out on dwelling-houses, either in the way of repair, or in building new houses to take the place of those that were not in a satisfactory sanitary condition.

In Arran 43 new houses have been erected in different parts of the district, mostly to replace houses of a more or less insanitary condition. In Lamlash a row of houses numbering 13 have been entirely replaced by newly-built houses of a substantial character and on a much superior site. In the Bute District about 20 new houses have been erected and numerous alterations have been carried out on present existing properties, bringing them more in line with modern requirements. This progressive policy, if persevered in, will alter the aspect of the dwellings in the county in a few years beyond recognition. The picturesque thatch-roofed (and often insanitary) whitewashed "biggin" is doomed to go in the forward march of sanitation, much though it will spoil the landscape, as all the new houses are being built of good material, having slated roofs, and in most cases an attempt is being made of putting in a dry course.

The housing of the farm servant has been receiving earnest attention during the year. A number of improvements have been carried out with the aim of improving the comfort and health of the inmates. This branch of domestic dwellings all over the country has been much neglected in the past, but is now receiving that attention which the subject requires. In the Arran district we have two families of that ancient class of folks known as cave-dwellers of the remote ages. As the caves are dry and in a measure comfortable I have not as yet taken steps to have them removed, as at present the house accommodation on the west side of the island is very scarce, and if the families were ejected they would have no place to go to. Some arrangement will be arrived at shortly which, I have no doubt, will be more to their moral and physical well-being.

W. D. BROWN,
County Sanitary Inspector.

(2) ON THE HOUSING OF CROFTERS IN INVERNESS-SHIRE.

Very fair progress continues to be made in providing improved dwelling-house accommodation in the crofting districts. A considerable number of new houses have been erected during the year, in addition to extensive structural alterations effected on existing buildings. Very considerable progress has also been made in providing separate accommodation for cattle and horses apart from the dwelling-house. In Harris, where the evil existed in its worst form, the firm action of the Committee in regard to the question has effected a wonderful change in a comparatively short period of time. At 1st January 1894, 167 dwelling-houses contained 431 cattle; and at 1st January 1897, only 25 houses remained to be dealt with, containing 71 cattle, etc.; separate byre accommodation having been provided between those dates for 360 cattle or other animals removed from 142 dwelling-houses.

In North Uist a census of the number of dwelling-houses in which cattle are kept has recently been taken, and the Committee have ordered legal proceedings to be taken against the principal offenders.

A similar census taken in South Uist and Barra showed that 293 houses had to be dealt with. Legal proceedings have since been taken against 30 of the offenders, and convictions obtained in each case, the parties being allowed three months in which to erect byres.

III. ON WATER SUPPLY AND THE POLLUTION OF RIVERS.

(1) NOTES REGARDING AN IMPORTANT WATER SUPPLY SCHEME FOR LINLITHGOWSHIRE.

Bathgate District Waterworks.—Our reservoir is situated in the county of Lanark, fully seven miles to the west of Bathgate. There are fully 120 acres enclosed, and, when full, upwards of 100 acres covered by water. The gathering area is 1540 acres in extent, giving an available yield of fully 800,000,000 gallons (after deducting evaporation). Of this quantity 450,000 gallons per day is sent down the stream as compensation, so that over 600,000,000 gallons are available for the district.

The water, which at first was of a peaty colour, is gradually improving, and during the year, under the direction of Dr Readman, we applied sulphate of alumina to take the colour out of it. The experiment was a decided success, and the peaty matter was precipitated out of it, and the water improved greatly, but the result was not permanent, and the water soon assumed its brownish colour again. What I consider will be a more permanent improvement is that I have got all the ditches and feeders leading into the reservoir cleared out, and where the water used to run in moss ditches, where possible it is now running on a gravelly or clayey bottom. This should have a good effect, but I am confident that in a year or two the colour will improve, although at present it is clearer and purer in colour than water supplied to many important towns and districts round about us, and where no remark is made regarding it. During the heavy rain in July, a portion of the bye-wash broke into the reservoir, which did a great deal to discolour the water and gave us a good deal of trouble to get it put right. Since that I have had the bye-wash cleaned out and widened a foot, so that I do not anticipate a recurrence of breaking into the reservoir. I have had notice boards put up at different places along the banks warning trespassers. This was rendered necessary by people coming fishing. A boat was also put on it, and I had a boat-house put up. This was required while applying the alumina. The banks and reservoir generally have been maintained in a good state of repair.

The Uphall reservoir covers an area of fully two acres, and, when full, has a holding capacity of about 8,000,000 gallons. During the year this water was kept solely for Uphall village, but at the latter part of the year an additional main pipe was carried from the cemetery gate at Uphall to Greendykes Road, so that Broxburn to that road and the Old Town is now supplied from the Binny source. Considerable trouble was caused through the underground workings subsiding the pipes leading from the filters at Uphall to the village. As these pipes were laid with a regular gradient from the filters, at different places they were very deep. At the part where at least three pipes were broken, the depth was fully 15 feet. Owing to the difficulty of getting at them, I allowed the old pipes to remain and laid a new 4-inch pipe at an even depth of 3 feet with an air valve at the highest part. This was cheapest and most satisfactory, and we have had no trouble at that part since, although further up, where the pipes were shallower, we had to bare fully 100 yards of them, and raise them as they went down. The fences round the reservoir were overhauled and put into good order, and the burn leading into it was cleaned out from the reservoir to past Blackcraig Farm.

Filters and Clear-Water Tanks.—The filters for the Forrestburn supply are situated at Stonerig, near Bathville. As originally constructed there were two filters and one clear-water tank, the filtering area being 4800 square feet, and the capacity of the tank 180,000 gallons. As 3 gallons an hour per square foot of filtering area is a medium delivery to pass through filters to give the filters justice, we could only pass 345,600 gallons per day, while the district was actually requiring about 900,000 gallons. It was decided to increase the filtering area, and to double the storage tank, an addition of 9080 square feet of filtering area, capable of passing an additional 653,760 gallons, was erected and came into operation in October, so that now we have ample filtering accommodation, and an increased storage tank holding 180,000 gallons. At Blackridge we have other two filters having a superficial area of 260 feet, capable of filtering 18,720 gallons per day, and a storage tank holding 10,106 gallons, and at Fortneuk we have other two filters for the Binny water, having an area of 1230 square feet, capable of filtering 88,560 gallons per day, and a storage tank holding 49,844 gallons, so that over all we have a filter bed area of 15,370 superficial feet, capable of filtering 1,106,640 gallons per day.

Pipe Tracks.—Over the whole district we have 43 miles 2 furlongs and 24 poles of piping. During the year leakage was detected at 37 places and repaired at once, and in three cases on the 12-inch main, new pipes had to be put in. Sixty-eight connections have been made to the main pipe during the year.

Well Hydrants.—Over the whole district there are 108 wells, all of which have been kept in a good state of repair by our workmen.

Meters.—There are 25 meters, varying from  $\frac{1}{2}$  inch to 4 inches, for water used for manufacturing purposes in the district, and these have been visited the first of every month, oiled, and the index taken. Every three months they are gone over by a man from Kennedy's Meter Co., and anything found wrong is repaired.

Extensions During the Year.—A total of  $8\frac{1}{2}$  miles of new mains comprising from  $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch to 4-inch pipes was laid at a cost of £1746 16s 7½d.

JOHN FREW,
County Sanitary Inspector.

(2) POLLUTION OF RIVERS IN AYRSHIRE.

There is little new to be reported for the year under notice in reference to river pollution. The Irvine and other rivers in the county still run to the sea in no less a polluted condition than they have been for years, and there is not much indication of any marked improvement in this respect in the near future. The problem of the purification of the Irvine, so far as the Burgh of Kilmarnock is concerned, has not yet been solved. This matter has now been before the Local Authorities interested for some years, and the Kilmarnock Corporation have been considering various methods for the abatement of the nuisance. Latterly, it seems that the schemes proposed were reduced to two—(1) carrying the sewage direct to the sea, and (2) purification of the sewage by what is known as the "Septic Tank" system. The first plan would no doubt entail a considerable expense—probably £40,000 to £50,000—but it might ultimately prove to be the cheaper of the two schemes, as it would have every chance of being a thoroughly satisfactory one. The Septic Tank system, which has been introduced at Exeter, can hardly be said to be yet past its experimental stage, for although it is said to give satisfactory results it is doubtful if it would prove effectual under varied conditions of sewage. Where the sewage is mainly composed of household domestic refuse there is no doubt that a method like the Septic Tank system, which depends for its purifying effects upon the natural power which certain micro-organisms possess in breaking up organic matter into ammonia, nitrites, nitrates, carbonic acid, etc., may act satisfactorily, but it might entirely fail in its action on sewage containing much waste liquids from manufactories. If, however, the burgh of Kilmarnock has to expend the large sum required for constructing a sewer to the sea, I consider that the purification of the whole river from Darvel to Irvine should be attempted.

IV. ON HOSPITAL ACCOMMODATION, NURSING ARRANGEMENTS, AND DISINFECTION.

(1) ON THE EQUIPMENT OF A MODERN HOSPITAL.

The hospital for the joint use of the burghs of Clydebank and Renfrew and the part of the County of Renfrew north of the Clyde was practically complete at the close of the year. Its site, at Blawarthill, is difficult to drain. It is extremely flat, the drains have very little fall, and but for the establishment of automatic flush-tanks at the head of each branch drain, the site would have been impracticable. There was, however, really no choice; and apart from its flatness the site was unobjectionable. It is well out of the swing of the busy current of life, and is not likely ever to be built round; yet it is within twelve minutes' walk of two railway stations, and is convenient of access for the districts it is to serve.

The erection of this hospital raises an interesting point for discussion. Is it, can it be, good business to exceed the original estimates in building a hospital? The sum talked of when the preliminaries of a hospital combination were being arranged was £6000. The hospital has cost something over £11,000—say, £11,500. I have little hesitation in saying that had it been known at first that the cost would have been as much, no hospital combination would have been formed—no hospital would have been built. Nevertheless, I do not think any member of the Hospital Board now considers that the cost has been too great. As the planning of the hospital went on, one thing after another was added. The Administrative Block was made more roomy. The pavilion annexes were amplified. - The laundry block was considerably enlarged. Instead of the wards being heated entirely by open fires, the laundry work being done by hand, and a disinfecter being dispensed with, as originally intended, a sufficient horizontal boiler, with the necessary adjuncts, has been provided, a steam washer, hydro extractor, Decoudron ironer, and a drying-closet have been installed, and a proper disinfecting station has been equipped. I am satisfied that nothing less would have satisfied the demands of this rapidly growing district, and that if the hospital had been built and equipped upon narrower lines, it would, within a few years, have had to be pulled to pieces and reconstructed at a greatly increased cost. There has been no extravagance. The materials throughout have been good; the attainment of a pleasing architectural effect had everywhere been kept in view, but good value has been obtained for every penny spent.

Heating and ventilating in the case of our public buildings are generally divorced, and are almost always unsatisfactory. Architects, generally, if I dare say so, have not studied the elements of what is practically a science. Two or three points in this relation appear to me obvious. The first is so clear that I regard it as axiomatic. It is that heating and ventilation should always be combined. To the lack of recognition of this elementary principle are due those "draughts" which are the bête noir of our private dwellings, public halls, and churches. Indeed, the condition of the average citizen's house, or of a public hall, in a cold winter, in respect of the impurity of atmosphere and vicissitude of temperature, is something astounding; and yet it is a matter easily remediable if it had only been considered when the building was being designed. In the case of hospitals the problem is quite as easy of solution. In the case of a large hospital, I have no hesitation in saying that ventilation "by propulsion" is the best system. Unfortunately, as generally conducted, there is a great and unnecessary waste both of heat and of propulsive power, and it is still carried out too much by rule of thumb. In the case of smaller hospitals, I have no difficulty in advising that the system adopted at Blawarthill is the correct one. The arrangement here is, that, in the first place, there is one, or, if the ward is large, two, "ventilating grates" in each ward. These are generally of excellent design, furnishing the maximum result, in the way of heating power, from the minimum of fuel. But their especial virtue is that they deliver into the room a continuous stream of fresh air, which has been sufficiently warmed by passing through a gill-chamber behind the grate. In a medium-sized ward, however, this does not go for very much. A good deal more is required. The additional heat and fresh air at Blawarthill are obtained by means of "ventilating radiators." Radiators we have long known, often have we frizzled in their heat. But when "ventilating radiators" were required for Blawarthill they had to be obtained from America. A ventilating radiator is one in which the fresh air, entering by an air-grid in the outside wall, under the level of the floor, is led directly, through an adjustable hit-and-miss regulator, into the interior of the radiator, which is cased in half-way up, so that by no chance can the cold entering air be discharged unheated into the ward; thus draughts are obviated. The radiators are most conveniently placed in the window recesses. Two practical points are worthy of note in this connection. The first is that the heating area of radiators required is usually under-estimated by heating engineers. To guard against this it would be well to have, in the "conditions of contract," a clause binding the heating contractor to furnish a temperature of 62 degrees in the wards, at a time when the temperature of the outside air stands at (say) 18 degrees F., the ventilators of the radiators being full open, the ventilating fireplaces being in their ordinary working trim, and the extract shafts, presently to be referred to, one-fourth open. This sounds rather stringent, but it is a necessary stipulation in the interests of the patients, and it only involves a few more square feet of heating surface.

So far with respect to inlet ventilation. No system is satisfactory which does not make provision for the exit of foul air—for extract ventilation. In these wards we have, in the first place, the chimney flues, to act as exhaust shafts. But, with the wards well occupied, these will not suffice. So additional exhaust ventilators, passing from the ceiling through the ridge of the roof, have been provided. Any such exhaust ventilators are irregular in their action, being dependent mostly on the aspirating action of the wind. In high winds they induce much too violent currents of air. Provision has here been made for regulating their action. A diaphragm hangs vertically in the shaft in weather which is not very windy. In times of greater wind-pressure, by belaying, at short lengths, a cord which is attached at the other end to the diaphragm, the area of the exhaust shaft can be gradually reduced as the wind-pressure rises, and the air-current thus modified.

With 32 beds, the hospital has cost about £350 a bed. The site extends to three acres, and there is space left in the centre upon which to build two additional pavilions. The hospital is built of a good pressed brick, with red sandstone facings liberally introduced. The buildings present a most pleasing appearance, an artistic effect being attained throughout by various inexpensive devices.

The hospital reflects great credit upon the architect, Mr R. A. Bryden, whose versatility in meeting the various demands of the situation as they arose, and energy and thoroughness in dealing with the tradespeople, met with the warm appreciation of the committee.

(2) HOSPITAL VERSUS HOME TREATMENT.

The work of the Health Department in connection with infectious disease was, on the whole, lighter than in any previous year. One thousand six hundred and seventy-four visits in this connection were made, as compared with 2589 in 1895.

Taking the county as a whole, 69 per cent. of the cases of scarlet fever which occurred were removed to hospital, a quite unprecedented circumstance, so far as my knowledge goes, in the case of a rural district, and one the more surprising in view of the fact that our new hospital system has not yet come into operation. Seventeen per cent. of the cases of diphtheria were removed, and 58 per cent. of the cases of enteric fever. These percentages are considerably in excess of those of any previous year.

We have again had experience of the favourable results of hospital treatment, as compared with home treatment, of cases of infectious disease, notwithstanding that, on the average, the cases removed to hospital are of a less favourable character than those treated at home. In the case of scarlet fever, the hospital death-rate was 0.8 per cent.—an excessively low rate; the death-rate amongst cases treated at home was 7.2 per cent. Of the cases of enteric fever removed to hospital 7.1 per cent. died, as against 20.0 per cent. in the case of those retained at home. The hospital death-rate in the case of diphtheria was 20 per cent., as compared with 24 per cent. in the case of those treated at home.

(3) LEITH SYSTEM OF HOSPITAL REMOVAL AND DISINFECTION OF HOUSES, ETC.

On the 5th of January 1897, the Town Council resolved "that all matters in connection with the removal of patients to hospital, and with the disinfection of houses and clothing, be now withdrawn from the duties of the Sanitary Inspector, and devolved upon the Medical Officer of Health"; and that two officers, formerly under the Sanitary Inspector, be now deemed to be officers under the Medical Officer." The transfer of officers took place on 23rd of January. On the 25th, I issued to the medical practitioners and to others concerned the following circular:—

"I have the honour to bring under your notice certain alterations recently made in the Public Health organisation of the burgh—

"(1) The removal of infectious cases to hospital, the removal of infected clothing, and the disinfection of infected houses, have now been placed under the direct management of the Medical Officer of Health.

"(2) In future, the fever ambulance will be kept at the Leith Public Health Hospital, East Pilton. The hospital is connected by telephone with the Leith Police Office (No. 430). This, in turn, is connected with the Exchange, with the Public Health Office (71 Constitution Street), and with the residence of the Medical Officer of Health (4 Summerside Place).

"(3) The Public Health Office hours are :—Week days (except Saturday), 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. It will be a great convenience if cases requiring removal to hospital are, as far as possible, intimated within office hours. Where this is not possible, the intimation should be made at the residence of the Medical Officer of Health, or at the Hospital.

"(4) To prevent misunderstanding, telephone messages should, in every case, be supplemented either by the statutory notification certificate, or by a written request. In this regard, it is well to recall that a statutory obligation rests on the head of the family to send notice of infection to the Medical Officer of the burgh.

"(5) A trained nurse, provided with emergency remedies, will be sent with the ambulance to take charge of the patient.

"(6) Requests for disinfection, either of houses or of clothing, must now be made to the Medical Officer of Health.

"I shall be obliged if any unnecessary delay, either in the removal of patients, or in the disinfection of houses, is at once reported to me."

In these arrangements, I have endeavoured to realise in practice the main conclusions of a paper I read in October last before the Scottish Branch of the Incorporated Society of Medical Officers of Health. I have had many expressions of satisfaction with the system. It works with the greatest simplicity and ease. When a case has to be removed, the removal officer sends to the hospital a message for the ambulance, giving details of name, disease, and address of patient. Meanwhile, the removal and disinfecting officers proceed to the infected house, make arrangements for the removal, and ultimately hand over the patient to the ambulance nurse. The ambulance then is under the direction of the nurse. If the condition of the patient requires it, she takes the removal officer with her to assist. Arrived at the hospital, she hands the patient to the charge nurse. Meanwhile, the removal and disinfecting officers prepare to disinfect the house, to steep in disinfecting solution such articles as may be so treated, and to remove to hospital mattresses and such articles as can be properly disinfected only by steam. For the removal of these, they arrange with the ambulance driver, who has charge also of the infected-clothing van. Afterwards they proceed to spray the walls. When the articles taken to the steam disinfector have been disinfected, they are redistributed to the owners, the receipt for them, properly initialled at every stage, returns to the office, and the record is closed. In non-removed cases, the process is much the same. As soon as the patient is certified free from infection, the necessary measures are taken for disinfection by steeping, by washing, by spraying, by steam, or by a combination of all these methods.

Thus the out-door and in-door Public Health staffs work as parts of a single system. The hospital is an instrument for the prevention of infectious diseases, and the out-door officers are, as it were, the Field Ambulance Corps of the Public Health Service.

(4) NURSING ARRANGEMENTS IN ROSS-SHIRE.

The matter which has chiefly occupied my attention is that of fever nursing, referred to fully in my last report. Four nurses have now been secured for the county, one to be stationed in Tain, one in Dingwall, one in Stornoway, and the fourth in Barvas. Rules have been drawn up and approved by the Public Health Committee for the guidance both of the District Committees and the nurses themselves. These are to be printed and circulated, and explain themselves fully. I make no doubt the experiment will be successful. The new Public Health Bill provides for engaging such nurses in lieu of building hospitals. This will doubtless be passed into law, and if it be found that more nurses will be required, as I fully expect, and, as some of the local medical officers are anxious for, there will be no difficulty in assessing for so laudable, economical, and ultimately rate-saving a system.

As has been already mentioned, four fever nurses will soon be at work at different points in the county. While they will be able to nurse patients suffering from fevers, and so secure the complete isolation of such infectious diseases, I have great hopes that they will prove most efficient sub-sanitary inspectors, by insuring thorough cleanliness and disinfection of the right kind. It stands to reason that the best means of disinfecting is to nip infection in the bud. By rigorously destroying all noxious matters at once, by securing the entrance of fresh air, and, if possible, of direct sunlight, the fatal germs will be prevented from multiplying and securing a congenial nidus in filth, dirt, and darkness: and instead of a perfunctory fumigation at the last, which may or may not destroy the infective organisms, we shall have an effectual and immediate stop placed on their very birth and propagation.

V. ON THE CAUSE, ORIGIN, AND DISTRIBUTION OF DISEASE.

(1) ON THE PREVALENCE OF TYPHUS FEVER IN THE HIGHLANDS AND ISLANDS.

From a perusal of this the sixth annual report, and of the tabular statements which accompany it, giving not only statistics specially applicable to the year, but also, for the sake of comparison, statistics collected from former reports, I think the deduction may be fairly drawn, that this great county is, as might be expected, a healthy one, and that continuous and steady progress is being made in sanitary matters generally. There are still, however, some blots on a fair picture. This has been prominently brought under my notice by the prevalence of typhus fever during the past year in some parts of the Western Islands, and also by the action of the Harris District Committee in asking for your good services to enable them to stamp out that fell disease. To come to a correct decision as to the cause of the prevalence of typhus fever in the Islands, it is necessary to consider the nature of the disease as stated by the best authorities. Dr Murchison says:—"A careful study of the history of typhus epidemics demonstrates, in my opinion, the intimate connection between these epidemics and famine or distress. They have appeared during every variety of climate, season and weather: famine and overcrowding have been the sole conditions common to them all." Dr Reid, in his work on Practical Sanitation, states—"The prominent features of this disease are (1) Its association with dirt, poverty, and distress, and (2) The ease with which it may be prevented by cleanliness and ventilation. The contagion, although very virulent in close proximity to the patient, soon loses its virulence when dispersed in the atmosphere. For this reason, in addition to isolation, quarantine, and disinfection, the necessity for free ventilation of the sick-room, which applies to all infectious cases, is more than ever indicated, and hence it is that the improved condition of dwellings has practically abolished the disease from the category of English epidemics." "If we examine carefully," writes Dr Beveridge, "the details of any epidemic (of typhus), we find that it is in the most crowded parts of a town that it always begins, and that in a given street it is in the most crowded houses that it appears." Dr Louis Parker, in his work on Infectious Diseases, says—"The virulence of the contagion is rapidly destroyed by fresh air and free ventilation, combined with cleanliness, so that the spread of the infection is usually only observed in the overcrowded and insanitary quarters of the poorest class of the population in industrial towns."

Thus typhus fever is a disease found most in the overcrowded slums of great cities, or in places where similar conditions exist. It will be well to compare the number of cases in some of our largest cities during the past year with the number found in the island districts. It would be unfair to select any one district, say the South Uist district, because that district contributed the most cases last year, as I find that in the years 1891, 1892, 1893, 1894 Skye contributed the greatest number, and in 1895 Harris was in a like position, so I shall take all the island districts together, and compare them with the returns I have received from the cities of Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Aberdeen, and with the mainland districts of the county:—

|                            | TOTALCASES. | DEATHS. | ESTIMATEDPOPULATION. |
|----------------------------|-----------------|---------|--------------------------|
| Island Districts . . . .   | 26              | 4       | 35,379                   |
| Mainland Districts . . . . | 0               | 0       | 25,873                   |
| City of Glasgow . . . .    | 50              | 13      | 705,052                  |
| City of Edinburgh . . . .  | 10              | 3       | 289,159                  |
| City of Aberdeen . . . .   | 0               | 0       | 135,941                  |

Thus in the island districts there was one case to every 1449 of population; in Glasgow, one case to every 14,101 of population; and in Edinburgh, one case to every 28,915 of population; or putting it another way, there was ten times as much typhus fever in these districts as in Glasgow, and twenty times as much as in Edinburgh, while in the city of Aberdeen and in the mainland districts of the county there was a total absence of the disease.

These figures show that there are more cases proportionally in the islands than in the cities, and tend to prove that similar or worse conditions than those found in the slums are to be found in the Hebrides. The house where the fatal cases occurred in Benbecula was undoubtedly insanitary and overcrowded. A grown-up son who helped to manage the croft was the first to fall ill. A sister who was in a situation in Glasgow came home to nurse her brother; she contracted the disease and died. The father then became ill and died, followed in a few days by the mother, who also died. The disease attacked the other members of the family (eight in all), but they fortunately recovered. As soon as possible they moved from the infected black hut, and lived on the moor in a temporary turf erection which the neighbours had hastily put together, and the infected house was destroyed by fire.

Dr Macdonald, in his report on Glenelg, mentions that Arnisdale is no longer the home of typhus fever, owing to the erection of good houses in place of the miserable hovels which formerly existed. It was only a few years ago that there was a serious attack in that village. Dr Graham, Glenelg, fell a victim to duty, having contracted the disease and died, leaving a widow and children. The nurse, who had been sent from Inverness to attend to the patients, after doing her duty, left with the seeds of the disease in her system, and when I saw her on the day she arrived at her home she was in a raging fever. She was removed to the fever hospital, where she died; her children (she was a widow) had to be sent to the poorhouse, and unfortunately this case gave rise to an epidemic of typhus fever in Inverness with fatal results. It was evidently to prevent such outbreaks as these that the Harris district made their proposal, which was a two-fold one—

They proposed (1) to destroy by fire all fever-infected black huts (about 70 in all).

(2) To deal with insanitary black huts unfit for human habitation and likely to develop fever (about 300 in all).

They proposed to encourage the poor cottars and crofters who occupy these insanitary houses to build improved houses by giving small grants of money for that purpose, and to enable those projects to be carried out, they suggested that a special public health grant be given by the Treasury.

This application was refused; it had my support and sympathy. Exceptional circumstances require exceptional remedies, and it has been already recognised by Parliament that the circumstances of the Highlands are exceptional.

The purposes to which such a grant could be put to include many more than those suggested by the Harris District Committee, far reaching though they were. In the extracts attached to this report from local medical men well qualified to explain the wants of their districts, some of the purposes are incidentally mentioned. Thus, Dr Macrury, Barra, mentions the prevalence of puerperal fever in the island, and the great necessity for a nurse, and especially a nurse with a knowledge of midwifery. Dr Cameron, South Uist, refers to the great difficulty in getting proper nursing for cases of fever, and also urges the District Committee to provide an hospital for the treatment of infectious disease. Dr. Robertson, South Harris, writing in connection with the cases of typhus fever in South Harris last year, says—“I would earnestly recommend the advisability of having a small isolation hospital to the County Council, as it will be the only means of getting the district clear of fever, and will also save lives. There are other two pleas for a hospital:—(1) The overcrowded state of many of the houses of the Bays. I may here remark that overcrowding produces an insanitary condition favourable to the spreading of typhus fever. (2) The parents do not know how to nurse or cook, and as nursing is the cure we must strive and get it, and we can only have it when the district has its hospital.”

Dr Mackenzie, North Uist, has in former reports stated how impossible it is with the huge districts many island doctors have to attend to, to give that constant attention to their patients they would like to give, and therefore the great necessity for their being supplied with assistants to enable them to carry out their work.

(2) NOTES ON THE PREVALENCE AND TREATMENT OF DIPHTHERIA IN BERWICKSHIRE.

Diphtheria.—This disease has been unusually prevalent, particularly during the last quarter of the year, in the East District. There were 48 notifications—the West District giving 1, the East District, 23, the Middle District 24—with 10 deaths, as against 23 notifications with 1 death for the previous year. It is no easy matter, in many instances, to diagnose positively whether the disease is of the nature of true diphtheria or merely follicular inflammation of the throat with a white effusion over the tonsils, and many of the cases notified do not present all the symptoms of diphtheria. The number of notifications is thus unnecessarily increased. Where there is any doubt it is advisable to have the patch of effusion examined by the microscope for the bacilli characteristic of the disease. The antitoxine treatment deserves a fair trial by all practitioners, as it appears to be attended with favourable results. In my own experience I have treated several cases with this serum, and although all did not recover, still some did, even after the case seemed well-nigh hopeless by the extension of the membrane into the windpipe. The serum I have recently been using is procured from France, as I believe it to be the most reliable of all the preparations. The expense is not extreme, as a full charge for hypodermic injection, 5 c.c. for an adult, can be got for 2s 6d, and a less dose is sufficient for a child. In large cities where there is squalid poverty, and many cases occurring in the same locality, the Local Authority supply this serum to those who have not the means to buy it. In this county, however, it is different. The medical attendant in some cases may have to supply this, as well as other medicines, without any further reward than the pleasure of seeing the patients pass through the crisis and make a good recovery; he must just add this to his other gratuitous labours to suffering humanity. The Parish Councils, of course, supply this serum along with other remedies for those on the poor roll, and I think it unnecessary to ask the County Council, as Local Authority, to pay the small charge for the serum.

County Medical Officer.

(3) ON THE PREVENTION OF DISEASE.

Diarrhoea.—Ten deaths under five years of age, compared with two in 1894 and five in 1895. As already mentioned, the parish of Tranent was responsible for 5. The occurrence of continued hot weather will always result in a large number of cases if ash-pits, slop, and water courses are not kept clean. Heat favours the development of disease-producing germs if the soil is fouled, and quickly changes all food and drink to which such germ-laden dust gets access.

Dust is met with everywhere in the atmosphere, even on mountains and at sea. In ordinary health and in ordinary conditions, the human body can absorb its contained noxious germs without trouble. Among weakly young infants, or even when otherwise healthy children are attacked and weakened by the ordinary illnesses of infancy and childhood, the self-protective power of the organism quickly disappears and often fatal disease results. Flies are no doubt great carriers of disease, and their effects on food are well known and guarded against. The exclusion of dust, however, is of greater importance, and everyone should see that all articles of food intended for human consumption are kept in a well-ventilated, well-lighted, cool place, and as free from the dust of living rooms as possible. Such a precaution is essential in the case of invalids and young children if they are to maintain even ordinarily good health where the surroundings are uncleanly.

Preventive measures against disease, whether undertaken by physicians, surgeons, or sanitarians, are based on the idea that dust is the great carrier of disease to the members of the human race. Where practicable, food refrigerators, designed to keep a constant temperature of about 40 deg. F., should be in use in every house. In their airtight chambers food undergoes no putrefactive or other changes, as dust is comparatively absent, and germ life is inactive at such a low temperature. A regular supply of ice is necessary, but the constant loss of "perishable" articles of food, like milk, cream, butter, and fish, in hot weather and in thunderstorms is entirely prevented.

Many dangerous illnesses would be prevented if our food stuffs—especially those usually eaten raw, and those to be returned to the table—were immediately placed in such a chamber, and not kept, as is often now done, in dark and dusty recesses in kitchens and sculleries, sometimes even in places in direct communication with sinks and water-closets.

It is not infrequently asked, "How did people do long ago, when none of these things were thought of?" Statistics readily supply the answer. Their rate of mortality would not now be tolerated in any progressive community. In Edinburgh, for instance, where great attention has been paid to the improvement of the health conditions of the city, although the population has increased by more than a half, there were over 500 deaths fewer last year than there were thirty years ago. If the mortality of thirty years ago had prevailed last year, over 3300 more people would have died.

To achieve the best results the sanitary education of the people must accompany all efforts made by the Local Authority to raise the general standard of health. The inhabitants themselves must become willing allies. We seem to be rapidly approaching a time when a further reduction of the mortality of the county will only follow when there is a more general appreciation of the laws of domestic and personal hygiene.

T. F. S. CAVERHILL, M.B., C.M.,
County Medical Officer, Haddington.

(4) ON THE PREVENTION OF PHTHISIS.

From phthisis or pulmonary consumption 33 deaths were recorded during the year, as compared with 32 in 1895, and 21 in 1894, equal to a rate of 1.338. There were four deaths from tubercular disease other than phthisis, as compared with 3 in 1895, and 18 in 1894—a rate of .162.

The combined rates from phthisis and from tubercular disease, other than phthisis, since 1892, are as follows:—

|----------------|-----------------|
| 1892 . . . . . | 1.603 per 1000. |
| 1893 . . . . . | 1.992 "         |
| 1894 . . . . . | 1.582 "         |
| 1895 . . . . . | 1.419 "         |
| 1896 . . . . . | 1.501 "         |

These rates are not high as compared with some other country districts. The disease is most prevalent in towns, and among dense populations. In the burgh of Wick in 1895 the death-rate of 4.696 was reached, and the following remarks made by me in my annual report to the Local Authority of that burgh as to the nature and prevention of this disease will not be out of place as applied to the country:—

"The great mortality from this disease is a serious scourge, and occurring as it does largely among persons in the prime of life, often after years of disablement, it cripples the effective and industrial strength of a community to a greater extent than perhaps any other disease incidental to the British Isles. The adoption of any measures, therefore, calculated to lessen its prevalence demands the earnest attention of all those interested in the public welfare.

"The science of bacteriology has within recent years entirely revolutionised the opinions formerly held by the profession as to the nature and causation of the disease. Until within the last eight or ten years, it was generally held to be hereditary, but it has been abundantly proved, and the almost universal opinion at present is, that it is an infectious and inoculable disease depending upon the introduction into the system of a specific microbe. As the disease progresses, the microbes multiply in the body to an enormous extent, and are found in myriads in the discharges from the lungs and other channels. Infection occurs perhaps most frequently from these discharges being allowed to dry, and to get into the form of dust. When this infected dust is inhaled by a person otherwise healthy, or by one who may be predisposed to the disease by hereditary weakness of tissue, the disease is readily set up. Other sources of infection are the milk of cows suffering from the disease, and the eating of flesh of tuberculous animals.

"Sanitarians have devoted much attention to the means likely to prevent or diminish its prevalence, but in the meantime there are no special "statutory enactments for dealing with this disease, since it is not notifiable like other infectious diseases. The carrying out of the following suggestions for the prevention of tuberculous diseases must therefore depend very much upon the good sense and judgment of the people themselves, and upon the advice given and the amount of care taken by medical practitioners and the attendants on the sick.

"It is recommended—

"1. That all sputum or matter coughed up from the lungs of persons suffering from consumption should be burnt or thoroughly disinfected with, for example, a 10 to 15 per cent. solution of carbolic acid.

"2. That when consumptive patients are going about they should be careful to use rags or handkerchiefs for the expectorations. These should be afterwards burnt or purified by thorough disinfection and boiling. Whether persons are consumptive or not, they should on no account spit on the floor or walls of any room, railway carriage, or public conveyance, or in any place of public resort.

"3. A consumptive person should, if possible, occupy a separate room, and the walls, floors, and ceilings, both of the sleeping and living rooms, should be thoroughly cleansed and disinfected once in every two or three months; and in the event of death, the rooms, bedding, clothing, etc., should be as carefully disinfected as after death from one of the infectious diseases.

"As indirectly bearing on prevention, the following measures may be mentioned:—

"1. A mother who is suffering from consumption should on no account suckle her child.

"2. All cow's milk, especially if intended for the use of children, should be thoroughly boiled before being used.

"3. All meat should be thoroughly well cooked and not partaken of in an underdone state.

"4. There should be careful inspection of meat in slaughter-houses and the sanitary condition of byres and dairies, and the health of milch cows should be regularly supervised by a veterinary surgeon.

"5. The hygiene of the dwelling should be carefully attended to. It should be seen that there is no dampness of walls, foundations, or floors; that there is provision for free ventilation and the admission of ample light. All the rooms of a house should be freely aired by open windows at least once a day. The walls and floor, and especially every dark corner and recess, should be kept scrupulously clean and free from dust. Overcrowding should be particularly avoided. Sleeping in 'box-beds' and in close, stuffy closets is highly injurious. An idea prevails that fresh air is either unnecessary or unwholesome during sleeping hours, so that every opening by which fresh air can enter is often carefully closed. If draughts, however, be avoided, and the body kept perfectly warm, cold fresh air can be breathed by persons in health as safely during the night as during the day, and with every advantage to health. It must also be borne in mind that in towns the air is much purer during the night than in the day-time."

County Medical Officer, Caithness.

(5) INSTRUCTIVE ACCOUNT OF A SCARLET FEVER OUTBREAK.

What might have proved a very serious outbreak of this disease occurred at Innellan in the district of Cowal, in July. On the 3rd of that month I received a telegram from Dr. Stevenson, the Local Medical Officer, to the following effect, "Scarlet fever at dairy farm—spreading—Innellan. Propose taking house for temporary hospital, estimated cost, £60; do you approve?" Recognising the importance of taking immediate steps to prevent the spread of infection, I replied, "Think suggestion re temporary hospital good if necessary and Committee consents. Should advise them to stop selling milk if you think it is infected."

I arrived at Innellan the following day and at once interviewed the local Medical Officer, who stated that on 1st July he found two children showing symptoms of scarlet fever, and on 2nd and 3rd two other cases came under his notice. On making inquiry at the farm supplying these families with milk he found a lady suffering from scarlet fever, and a milkmaid desquamating, presumably after suffering from an attack of the same disease. He advised the farmer to stop the sale of milk. This request was immediately complied with, and a mounted messenger sent after the milk-carts to stop the sale and warn those who had purchased the milk of the danger incurred by them. He afterwards consulted the Convener of the Public Health Committee and the Parish Council representative on the District Committee in regard to the steps that should be taken with a view to provide means of isolation for such cases as might occur. It was found that no accommodation could be got in the Burgh Isolation Hospital, two cases of scarlet fever having been notified in the burgh of Dunoon, probably due to the same source. Two small canvas tents were erected near the farm-house with a view to isolate the cases there, but owing to the boisterous weather they were found to be unsuitable for the purpose.

I visited the farm-house along with the Medical Officer and found the farmer's daughter and a lodger suffering from scarlet fever. I examined the milkmaid and found some signs of desquamation with a history of a slight illness, with sore throat, and rash, the existence of which was doubtful. She took no medical advice, although she had on account of illness to leave her former situation. Another girl, according to the statement of her former mistress, had taken ill after she had left. That she suffered from scarlet fever was afterwards still further confirmed from the fact that although isolated for weeks along with others suffering from that disease she did not contract scarlet fever. There was no history of her suffering from scarlet fever at any time previously. She entered on duty at Toward Farm on the 18th June. It was evident, therefore, that persons supplied with the milk were in danger of suffering from scarlet fever—in all, 54 families. Already 12 cases had been notified. I visited all these and found that, although some could with safety be isolated at home, others could not without grave danger to the public. It may be added that the cows showed no sign or symptom of disease, nor was there any indication of their having been previously affected. After consulting the Convener of the Public Health Committee it was decided to interview Mr Campbell Finlay of Castle Toward, the parish representative on the District Committee, on the following day. This was done, and that gentleman generously placed at the disposal of the Local Authority Ardyne House, a large mansion of 7 large and 2 small apartments, for use as a temporary hospital. He provided for the occupants elsewhere, and, assisted by the chief and local Sanitary Inspectors, personally superintended the necessary alterations. Most of the work was done by his own employees.

Accompanied by the Convener of the Public Health Committee I went to Glasgow and selected the necessary furniture for a hospital of 12 beds and attendants. Two nurses were procured, and on the afternoon of the 8th the house was ready for the admission of patients.

The chief Sanitary Inspector arranged for the loan of the ambulance carriage from the burgh of Dunoon and superintended the conveyance of patients, 5 of whom were admitted on the 9th. In a few days every bed was occupied. The patients were attended by their family doctors. In all, 28 cases were notified as the result of this outbreak, 16 of whom were isolated in the hospital. The Medical Officer for the burgh of Dunoon informs me that 14 cases occurred in the burgh as the direct result of drinking the infected milk. The number of secondary cases is not known. The remaining cases at Innellan were treated at home. Of these one died. Every house was disinfected as soon as those affected were removed to hospital. The sale of milk was recommenced as soon as the farm-house was disinfected. The local Medical Officer reports that the notifications were as follows:—"July 1st, 2 cases; July 2nd, 2 cases; July 3rd, 4 cases; July 4th, 4 cases; July 6th, 2 cases; July 7th, 2 cases; July 13th, 1 case; July 16th, 1 case; July 18th, 2 cases; July 23rd, 1 case; August 13th, 1 case; August 16th, 1 case; September 3rd, 1 case; October 17th,

"1 case; October 28th, 1 case; December 5th, 1 case; December 24th, 1 case. Of these, the first 16 cases (excluding the servant who brought the infection) were in all probability due to primary infection from the milk, as well as that on the 23rd brought from Dunoon for isolation; those on the 13th and 16th from contact with patients before the hospital was ready. The case notified on the 16th August probably contracted the disease away from the district. The case notified on October 17th was infected from clothes returned from the hospital." The source of infection in the remaining number was not clearly traced. "Of the cases in the hospital the time required for desquamation was on an average 56.8 days; residence in hospital, 53.6 days." The hospital was closed on the 1st October, having been open 85 days. The clothes and furniture were stored and kept ready for use in the new combination hospital. I have advised that all the clothes should be thoroughly disinfected by means of steam before they are again used.

I have entered in some detail into particulars regarding this outbreak, as it shows the risk that is incurred by the community so long as there is no permanent hospital for the isolation of disease, and the labour, expense, and waste of time necessarily entailed in making temporary provision for a small outbreak. The labour, expense, and trouble incurred by all concerned have been more than compensated for by the saving of life, misery, and expense to individuals which might otherwise have resulted had the disease been allowed to spread, not only in Innellan, but in other districts to which infection would have been certain to extend. Had no efficient action been taken, the locality, which is a seaside resort, would also have suffered much pecuniarily from the absence of summer visitors. All this will be remedied in the near future when the combination hospital which is being erected near Dunoon is completed, and suitable arrangements made for disinfection and the conveyance of patients.

(6) ON THE BACTERIOLOGICAL DIAGNOSIS OF INFECTIOUS DISEASE.

During the year the facilities given to practitioners in the county for confirming by a bacteriological examination the diagnosis in doubtful cases continued to be taken advantage of. Forty-seven cases in all were examined in this way, and of these 30 were shown to be true cases of diphtheria.

In connection with the use of the bacteriological method for the better diagnosis of diphtheria, it appears to me that it would be very beneficial to extend it to other infectious diseases such as typhoid fever and phthisis. Most people are aware that in the early stages of consumption, when by prompt treatment the disease may be arrested, an accurate diagnosis is possible only by a bacteriological examination of the sputum or spittle, in which the germs of the disease appear from the very commencement. Medical men in busy practice have little leisure for work of this kind, and so cases are apt to escape detection until the disease has reached a more advanced stage where treatment becomes less hopeful.

Difficulties are often experienced also in the diagnosis of typhoid fever, especially in the early stages. In one case, for example, last year, in the Aberdeen district, a case which the medical attendant was not prepared to certify as a case of enteric fever was associated with a number of cases in the city amongst people supplied with milk from the farm at which the disease occurred. A simple method of diagnosing this disease bacteriologically has just been discovered which would help to remove such difficulties, and might prevent outbreaks arising from such cases.

If a combination could be effected between the city and county and other adjoining authorities, all this work could be done at a comparatively trifling expense to each. I understand from Professor Hamilton that a sum of £100 would be sufficient to meet all costs. Such a scheme is one from which I am certain great practical benefit would accrue to all the communities concerned.

(7) ON THE BACTERIOLOGICAL DIAGNOSIS OF TYPHOID FEVER.

One of the great drawbacks to the efficient management of cases of typhoid fever from a public health point of view is the difficulty in recognising it at its onset. When conclusive symptoms at length make the diagnosis certain, it is often too late to transport a patient more than a few yards, and many others may have already become infected. Fortunately, science has recently provided an almost infallible test for its recognition. M. Widal discovered that a diluted drop of blood from the patient readily shows characteristic changes under the microscope on the addition of a living culture of certain bacteria. Few practitioners have all the requisites for carrying out this, and transmission to some laboratory would have been necessary. This difficulty has been solved, however, by M. Widal, who a few months ago discovered that the addition of a culture of dead bacteria is equally reliable. All practitioners will soon be able to obtain capsules of dead typhoid bacteria from some central bacteriological laboratory, which they will be able to carry about without risk, and employ in what is now called the "Serum" diagnosis of doubtful cases of typhoid fever.

Typhoid fever is perhaps the most preventible of all the fevers, and its existence is a good guide as to the sanitary state of a district. The care taken by the inhabitants in diminishing the chances of pollution of water supplies, and in systematically keeping drain sewers and water courses in good repair and free from obstructions, will be followed by a marked reduction of this essentially "filth" disease.

Until every occupier of a house is impressed with a sense of his responsibility in regularly and systematically attending to his water supply and sanitary fittings, we must expect to see valuable lives lost to the community. In no other fever are his exertions for its prevention so likely to be successful, but unfortunately in most cases defects are for the first time only revealed when the occurrence of disease has made an examination by the sanitary officials a matter of necessity.

(8) INSTANCE OF A DISPUTED DIAGNOSIS.

A certificate of diphtheria received in the Dumfries District illustrated one of the difficulties that will sometimes occur in connection with notification. Exception was taken by the patient's friends to the accuracy of the certificate, and the subject was brought up at a meeting of Committee. I advised that the duty of Committee and the Medical Officer of Health was to receive the certificate and act upon it in the interests of the public, unless they had reason to doubt the bona fides of the certifying practitioner. If the patient's friends objected to the accuracy of the certificate it was open to them to obtain another medical opinion, and if this proved contradictory of the first, it would then be the duty of the Medical Officer to endeavour in the public interest to decide which opinion was correct. This course was followed, and the second opinion being that the patient was not suffering from diphtheria, but from thrush of the fauces, I made an examination, after communicating with the first practitioner, and had no difficulty in arriving at the conclusion that the second opinion was correct and the first wrong. The patient was suffering from phthisis, of which disease she died a few weeks later. The thrush on the fauces was due to her bodily state, and could be easily differentiated from diphtheria.

(9) HEALTHY CATTLE: PRAISEWORTHY ACTION BY A MIDLOTHIAN DAIRYMAN.

We have in Sir Thomas Gibson Carmichael, the member of Parliament for the county, one whose example might well be followed by all stock-breeders. His example has stimulated others elsewhere, but I would especially call attention to one, a dairyman in Mid-Lothian, who a year and a half ago determined to weed out from his herd all tainted animals. He gave Professor Dewar of the Dick Veterinary College, and the local veterinary surgeon, a free hand to get his whole herd healthy, and he had the courage to advertise for sale all the animals that reacted to tuberculin as "animals unsound." These animals were purchased, but at some loss to the seller. This dairyman, Mr. Thomas Fisher, of Whitehall Home Farm, Hawthornden, has now a stock of over thirty dairy cows free of the disease, and under the constant supervision of Principal Dewar, who tests them from time to time. Mr. Fisher's milk is supplied to West-End customers in Edinburgh, who are aware of the care he exercises regarding the health of his cows, and he receives 3d. per gallon more for his milk than other dairymen get. It would be well that medical practitioners in the city, and that directors of public institutions, should encourage dairymen of this class.

(10) REPORT ON TUBERCULOSIS SUBMITTED BY THE COUNTY MEDICAL OFFICER OF LANARKSHIRE TO THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE COUNCIL ON TUBERCULOSIS.

I beg to submit the following report, giving a brief summary of the chief features of tuberculosis as it affects man and cattle, with some account of its prevalence in Lanarkshire, and suggestions for its prevention.

It may be asked—What do we mean by tuberculosis? The term is applied to various morbid conditions, which have long been recognised in man and some of the lower animals as distinct diseases, but which are now known to require for their occurrence the presence of a specific germ, the tubercle bacillus. The bacillus is a minute speck of life which, under certain conditions, is capable of multiplying in the organs and tissues of warm-blooded animals, setting up changes therein, characterised by the development of tubercles. The bacilli are found in the disease-products, and, with these, may be discharged from the body. Thus set free in the outer world they may gain access to another subject, and thus propagate the disease.

HUMAN TUBERCULOSIS.

Varieties.—According to the part of the body affected, the disease varies in its symptoms, fatality, and infectivity. It generally begins as a local disease, and may remain so, confined to one particular organ or system, or it may become distributed throughout the body, causing general tuberculosis. In adults the organs most frequently affected are the lungs, but in children they are the intestines, or glands connected therewith, and the glands of the neck. In the lungs the bacilli give rise to phthisis or consumption, which is by far the most formidable variety of tuberculosis affecting the human species. In importance it overshadows not only all other forms of tuberculosis but all other diseases, because of the heavy death toll which it exacts from the adolescent and adult population.

General Prevalence.—Phthisis occurs in almost all known countries; and the mortality which it causes is greater in towns than in rural districts. In Scotland during recent years the average death-rate from phthisis, in towns, has been 2.4, and, in rural districts, 1.4 per 1000 population; in Ireland, 2.9 and 1.7; and in England the average rate for the whole country has been 1.7.

If we study the progress of the mortality in Scotland and England, we find that it has shown a gradual decline during the last thirty or forty years. The decline has been very marked in the military population. About the year 1853, when barracks were overcrowded and ill-ventilated, the death-rate among soldiers from tubercular disease was over 10 per 1000. With the introduction of sanitary reforms the rate soon fell, and in 1875 was 2.5, and now is under 1 per 1000 strength. These facts show an intimate relation between the prevalence of phthisis and hygienic conditions.

Prevalence in Lanarkshire.—The returns received from the Registrars throughout the county during the past six years, 1891-96, show that during that time 1782 deaths have been caused by phthisis. This gives an annual death-rate of 1.4 in every 1000 of the population. The mortality in the more populous parishes varied from 0.9 to 1.8 per 1000. The death-rates, not only from phthisis but other forms of tubercle, for the different parishes will be found in Table I. appended. It will be observed that in some agricultural parishes the rate is quite as high as in those parishes with a large mining population. There is not a parish in the whole county in which there has not been a death from phthisis during these six years; but in some of the smaller parishes in the Upper Ward there has been only one death, and it is sometimes stated that the person "came home to die." In purely rural parishes the rate averages about 1 per 1000. What the rate of mortality has been in previous years I have at present no means of ascertaining.

Cause and Mode of Dissemination.—The occurrence of tuberculosis implies (1) the existence of a susceptible person affording a suitable soil in which the specific germ can develop; (2) access to the person by the germ in such numbers and of such vitality as to produce disease. In so far as tuberculosis is dependent upon the bacillus it is a communicable disease and, in this sense, infectious. But the degree of infectivity is determined by the facilities which exist for the fulfilment of all the conditions necessary for the occurrence of the disease.

The majority of mankind are not by nature susceptible to tubercle. Susceptibility must be induced or inherited. It has long been observed that consumption tended to run in families, hence the belief that it is a hereditary disease. We have good evidence now that the disease is not transmitted from parent to child unless in extremely rare instances, and that the greater prevalence in some families is due to a greater susceptibility to acquire the disease.

All the conditions which tend to lower vitality, such as overwork, want of nourishment, insanitary dwellings and workshops, or an illness such as measles, influenza, and the infectious fevers, may induce a susceptibility to tubercle. Local diseases, especially those which impair the walls of the air and food passages, such as bronchitis or catarrh of the bowels, predispose to tubercle by favouring the development of the bacilli within the body.

The air and food passages are indirectly in communication with the outer world. By these passages the bacilli gain entrance to the organs and tissues of the body with the air we breathe and the food we eat.

Tuberculous persons and animals are believed to be the sources from whence tubercle bacilli come. This germ does not grow and flourish outside the body, but is extremely tenacious of life, and can, in the absence of sunlight, retain its vitality for many months in a dried state. When an organ which communicates with the exterior is affected with tubercle the bacilli escape with the disease-products. Thus, in phthisis, the sputum at certain stages is loaded with bacilli. If this sputum falls on the floor, or is received into a handkerchief, it may then be so dried and pulverised as to form dust particles and contaminate the air. The bacilli may now be inhaled or, falling upon food, be swallowed by a susceptible, and in this way spread the disease from one person to another. The greater the number of germs inhaled or swallowed, with the greater certainty is the disease produced. How dangerous in this connection is overcrowding and defective ventilation!

Infection by food is liable to occur in another and very special manner. Dairy cattle are known to suffer severely from tuberculosis, and the udder is sometimes, though not often, affected. This organ also communicates with the exterior by the milk ducts. In course of time the disease products find their way into the milk duct and escape. Milk from such a source has been shown to possess virulent infective properties when swallowed by a susceptible animal. Our knowledge of the infective tendency of tuberculosis is largely drawn from experiments upon animals and investigations connected with the disease in cattle. But it must be kept in view that in nature the conditions under which the human species live are by no means similar. Even life in military barracks, sixty years ago, had at least breathing space during the day, whereas cattle are continuously confined day and night for about half the year round.

Prevention.—In the general amelioration of the working classes which has taken place, much has already been done for the prevention of consumption. All general sanitary measures are, no doubt, helpful in this direction. But improvements in the dwelling and in the place of occupation, whereby an ample supply of pure air and light is obtained and dampness avoided, are important in diminishing liability to phthisis. In these matters, buildings in large towns, constructed under Dean of Guild regulations, are generally superior to those in country districts, where the mortality from phthisis is still very considerable and capable of reduction.

To diminish the amount of infective material and to avoid risk of contagion, persons suffering from consumption should be instructed to adopt simple precautions that will render the spit harmless. Indoors, by using a spittoon with a little water in it, the spit may be prevented from becoming dust. If a handkerchief or other washable article is soiled with expectoration, it should be boiled before it becomes dry. The spit should never be swallowed, it may infect the bowels.

To prevent the dissemination of infection by the sale of milk from cows with disease of the udder, a systematic inspection of dairy herds by a competent veterinary inspector is urgently called for. This, however, is part of a wider subject, and involves the consideration of dairy sanitation and the prevention of bovine tuberculosis.

DAIRY SANITATION.

The supervision and control of milk supplies and other dairy produce constitutes a very important part of sanitary administration. The need for supervision has arisen from the liability of milk to contamination by infection derived from dairy workers, and from the danger of transmitting disease from the cow, as when the udder is affected with tubercle.

In accordance with the requirements of the Dairies, Cowsheds, and Milkshops Order, 1885, there is kept in each of the three sanitary districts within the county a register of persons carrying on the trade of dairymen, cowkeeper, or purveyor of milk. These registers show that, at the close of the year 1896, there were in the Upper Ward, 182; in the Middle Ward, 856; and in the Lower Ward, 211—making a total of 1249 persons registered. Some of these are resident in burghs, and are not cowkeepers. Such information, therefore, gives an imperfect idea as to the number of dairies or cow-houses situated within these sanitary districts. I have therefore sought to obtain, by means of a printed circular,* a census of the dairy herds and cattle in the county, the result of which will be found in Table II. appended. These returns are probably incomplete, but they show that there are nearly 1800 dairy herds, with about 45,000 cattle, including young animals.

The greater portion of the produce is sold sweet, about one-third is made into butter, and a small quantity into cheese. Of the produce sold sweet, only one-third is disposed of within the county (landward), the other two-thirds going into Glasgow and other burghs.

Although registration of the occupier is not compulsory where the produce is sold in the form of butter or cheese, no distinction can be made between the sanitary requirements and supervision of such a dairy and that where the produce is sold sweet. Registration has nothing to do with sanitation. The standard of requirements is the same for all dairies.

There is one important requirement for which no standard has yet been fixed, namely, proper ventilation. This, according to the dairy regulations, is to be to the satisfaction of the medical officer or sanitary inspector, and, in view of its importance in the prevention of tuberculosis, requires careful consideration.

The purity of the air depends upon the size and activity of the animals in relation to the cubic capacity and ventilation of the cow-house. The average weight of a milk cow is about six times greater than that of a man. The minimum cubic space (500 cubic feet for new byres) stated in our dairy regulations is therefore insufficient to ensure pure air, unless there be very ample ventilation—a condition which is seldom obtained in winter. Considering that dairy cows are for nearly one-half of the year confined continuously, night and day, ventilation is an important sanitary requirement, and is controlled by the temperature which is to be maintained in the air of the cow-house. It has been said “that, if to keep our breeding and milking stocks healthy, it is necessary that they should be supplied with air of the purity demanded by sanitarians, we must either keep them too cold to be healthy or profitable, or we must heat our buildings.”—Spear.

The introduction of hot-water pipes around the wall of cow-houses, at the head of the stalls, for the purpose of slightly warming the air as it enters may be recommended to all large dairy stock keepers. But the provision of a heating apparatus for all byres does not, I fear, come within the range of practical sanitation as enforced by sanitary authorities at present, nor am I aware that, in the interest of the animal, it is desirable. Why is it that the temperature of cow-houses is maintained at 60 deg. F.? I cannot believe that such a temperature is necessary for the health of the animals. The great majority of human beings spend the winter nights in bedrooms with a temperature much below this. The question of temperature, then, seems to be largely a question of profit. The ventilators are stuffed, and the air of the cow-house raised to a temperature of 60 degrees, in order that the maximum yield of milk may be obtained.

The chief objection to the system generally in use is that the means of ventilation is placed too high above the animals, so that pure fresh air does not reach the head of the stall at the required level.

Cattle Inspection.—The inspection of cattle by sanitary authorities has been little practised, and adversely criticised by the owners of stock and others, although expressly provided for in the Order of 1885—“A Local Authority may from time to time make regulations for the inspection of cattle in dairies.” The regulations provide that “every occupier or person in charge of a dairy or cowshed shall afford access at all reasonable hours to the Medical Officer of Health or Sanitary Inspector, and shall further afford these officers all reasonable facilities for the inspection of animals upon the premises.”

The importance of this duty has been much emphasised by the Report of the Royal Commission on Tuberculosis (1895), which informs us that—

“The withdrawal from dairies of every cow that had any disease whatever of her udder would form some approach to security against the serious danger incurred by man from the use of tuberculous milk, but it would not be an adequate security. The presence in a dairy of a tuberculous cow (as Drs. Martin and Woodhead have shown) is a decided source of danger to the public, especially having regard to what we have learnt respecting the rapid development of tuberculosis in the udder, and the degree of danger to milk consumers incurred by the invasion of the udder in tuberculous cows.” (Sec. 63.)

In the possession of such knowledge, and with a due sense of the duties imposed upon me, I endeavoured to obtain information regarding the prevalence and prevention of tuberculosis in cattle.

BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS.

As in the human species, so in cattle, tuberculosis may be either local or general, and is similar in its manifestations.

Recognition of the Disease.—Our present knowledge of the prevalence of tuberculosis in cattle has been obtained from an examination of the carcasses.

of animals intended for human food, and from the experience of veterinary surgeons, enhanced by the use of the tuberculin test.

So distinctive are the lesions which characterise tuberculosis that, by examination of the carcase, an opinion can generally be at once formed as to the presence or absence of the disease.

But during life recognition is often a very difficult matter, especially in the early stages of development, unless tuberculin be used. This is a liquid obtained from the growth of tubercle bacilli in a nutritive fluid. In its application it is injected under the skin into the tissues of the animal, when, if it is suffering from tubercle, no matter how slight the lesion may be, a rise of temperature follows, constituting what is termed a reaction. This reaction gives no idea as to the extent of the disease, and many animals which react to this test have all the appearances of perfect health. These facts must be kept in view in considering the following information as to prevalence:—

Prevalence in General.—From Copenhagen and Berlin, where all carcases intended for human food are carefully examined by trained experts, we learn that of the oxen and cows slaughtered there in recent years 15 to 17 per cent. were more or less affected with tubercle. Although about an equal number of calves were slaughtered (nearly 300,000), only 0.1 to 0.2 per cent. of these were visibly affected.

No such records of inspection from the slaughter-houses in this country are available; but from the inspection of animals slaughtered in the effort to stamp out contagious pleuro-pneumonia we obtain the following statistics relating to Scotland:—In the year 1890, of 300 milk cows slaughtered in Edinburgh, 40 per cent. were affected with tubercle, and the proportion affected in different herds varied from 12 to 83 per cent. In Mid-Lothian, of the total cattle slaughtered during the years 1891 and 1892, the percentage found affected with tubercle in each year was 22.5 and 20.0 respectively. Dairy cattle were found to suffer more than others from both pleuro-pneumonia and tuberculosis.

The use of tuberculin as a test or means of diagnosis has come largely into use during the last few years. In Denmark, up to August, 1895, of the total herds tested, 255 were found quite free, and 1675 affected. The affected herds comprised over 46,000 cattle, and the average proportion of reacting animals was 35.4 per cent. The proportion varied in different provinces from 21.5 to 50.9 per cent. In France as many as 40, 60, and 80 per cent. of cattle in dairy herds have been found to react.

In Scotland many herds have now been tested, but the only results published have reference to a herd of 80 Aberdeen-Angus cattle. Forty-one breeding animals were first tested. All, with one exception, appeared healthy and vigorous, yet a large proportion, about 37 per cent., reacted.

Prevalence in Lanarkshire.—In the landward districts there are no public slaughter-houses under the control of the sanitary authorities, and the systematic inspection of carcases has not yet been practised.

Under Section 24 of the Public Health Act, which gives power to seize and destroy unwholesome food, thirteen carcases (cows and heifers) were condemned in the Middle Ward district during the years 1895 and 1896 with well-marked tuberculosis.

By permission of the Executive Committee, I communicated with the County Veterinary Inspectors, asking for such information as they possessed on this subject, and from their replies I submit the following extracts:—

WILLIAM ANDERSON, F.R.C.V.S.,

Inspector for the Lower and Middle Wards Districts.

"... About 3000 animals (principally dairy stock) were slaughtered, and, as it was one of my duties to superintend the disposal of the carcases, I had consequently to examine not only the carcases but viscera. I found that fully 25 per cent. were affected with tuberculosis. Of course, the lesions varied according to the different stages of the disease, from a localised lesion to a generalised condition in almost every part of the body. In not a few cases the disease had been arrested, which was obvious by the "encysted and mummified appearances of the tubercles. So far as the mammary glands were concerned, I think I am correct in saying that not more than 5 per cent. of the affected animals showed lesions in these organs.

"The prevalence of tuberculosis varied in different parts of the county. I observed that in those dairies around populous centres, such as Glasgow, Coatbridge, etc., the percentage was always greater. In those chronic or arrested cases the animals were invariably in good condition."

WILLIAM CASSELS, F.R.C.V.S.,
Inspector for the Upper Ward District.

"... In my opinion the disease exists to the extent of about 20 per cent. The percentage, of course, varies in different localities; it is more common in dairies where the animals are highly fed, producing an excessive drain on the system to obtain a large supply of milk."

JOHN JARVIE, M.R.C.V.S.,
Inspector for the Carlisle District.

"... In some of our large dairies here I am safe in stating the third to a half is affected more or less, and in some herds the whole."

I may also be permitted to add the following extract from the reply of another veterinary surgeon:—

"... From my experience and practice, I am of opinion that, in this district at any rate, what I would call generalised tuberculosis is not at all prevalent, but when you come to localised tuberculosis, or what I may plainly call cows slightly touched in the lungs, I am afraid a large percentage would not stand the test. Localised tuberculosis in the udder is not often found here, but you must remember I am in a district where the best Ayrshire and Irish cows are kept for milk, and rarely for breeding from, as in many byres here farmers find it better to buy cows at calving and take all the milk from them they can, and then put them out for the butcher—the cow in the meantime being forced by food, or made a milking machine for the short time she is kept. With regard to tuberculin, I have been doing a lot of work with it, although I find farmers will not, as a rule, test their cattle. . . ."

Mr John Speir, of Newton Farm, parish of Cambuslang, who now supplies milk only from cows which have stood the tuberculin test, says:—

"During the past two years I have tested for my own use about 200 cows, usually ranging from 3 to 7 years old—average about 4 to 5 years; and although I am only purchasing the very best class of cows, the average of reacting (that is, tuberculous) animals is fully 30 per cent. Besides my own stock, I have tested stocks in whole or in part for others amounting to several hundred cows, which range from a very few free stocks to a good many having scarcely any animals free."

I regret that the information as to the prevalence of tuberculosis in Lanarkshire is so meagre, but from the foregoing we may conclude that here, as elsewhere, tuberculosis is a very prevalent disease; that while there may be some herds quite free, the proportion of affected animals in many herds is very high, although disease of the udder (the one condition which renders the milk infective) is not often observed.

Cause and Mode of Dissemination.—The cause of tuberculosis in cattle is to be sought in the twofold combination of conditions already mentioned—those conditions affecting the susceptibility of the animal and those controlling the infective germ. But the latter conditions obtain an importance here seldom observed in man. In addition, therefore, to what has already been said, it is necessary to reflect on the conditions as to housing which render cows more liable to infection than the human species. For nearly one-half of the year dairy cows are confined continuously, day and night, chained as it were to one spot, in close proximity to each other. When to this is added defective ventilation and lighting, feeding by the same utensils, and the presence of an animal with tubercle of the lungs, we have then a combination of circumstances the most favourable to the dissemination of the disease. "Here are the conditions which favour its entry into the organism, its growth there, and its propagation and perpetuation in a stable."—Nocard.

"Experience has sufficiently proved that it is the common life in the stable, in a limited and often badly ventilated space, which constitutes one of the principal dangers of infection."—Bang.

Prevention.—While recognising the importance of sanitary improvements in the cow-house—increased floor space, proper ventilation, cleanliness in feeding, etc., it is necessary to emphasise the need for special preventive measures—the detection and isolation of all tuberculous animals. Before considering these, it is interesting to note that "at the present time nothing is more difficult than to find a tuberculous cow in the stalls of the cowkeepers of Paris. To what is this radical change due? The cowkeepers buy them just after they have calved, in full lactation, and they keep them always well fattened, and deliver them over to the butcher directly they cease to give enough milk, the result being that the cows seldom stay more than a year in their stables."—Nocard. This practice of retaining cows only during one period of lactation may be adopted in limited areas, but is of more interest to town than country cowkeepers.

The special preventive measures generally adopted are isolation of all affected animals, fattening them off for the slaughter, and replacing them with healthy animals. The procedure is briefly as follows:—The herd is carefully tested with tuberculin; all reacting animals are considered tuberculous, and isolated. The herd, thus divided in two (sound and unsound), are separately housed and fed. Animals are admitted to the sound herd which have stood the tuberculin test, obtained either by rearing or buying in the market. Every six months the test is repeated. Many animals in the unsound herd, being only slightly affected, appear quite healthy, and when killed are quite marketable as butcher-meat. Many also, on slaughter, are found not to have been in an infectious state, yet isolation was necessary because of the difficulty in determining this during life. The isolation of all reacting animals is insisted on, since we cannot exactly tell when an infectious stage of the disease exists. That these measures are practical will at once be conceded. Are they successful? For this it is necessary to show that animals can be reared quite free from tubercle, and that a sound herd can be kept sound. In the matter of rearing, the calves are regularly tested and kept apart from all affected animals. They are fed on boiled milk. The calves of tuberculous cows can thus be brought up quite healthy. In prize cattle it has been found possible to allow tuberculous mothers even to suckle their calves when the udder was not affected, and obtain a non-tuberculous offspring.

Of the results obtained in herds where preventive measures have been adopted, few reports are yet published. From Professor Bang's account of a herd in Denmark, I make the following summary, showing the apparent development of a sound herd from a tuberculous stock:—

|---|---|-----|-------------------------|
| Whole herd of 208 tested in Spring, 1892, reacted (milch cows) 80 per cent. |   |     |                         |
| Sound   | " | 70  | " Autumn, 1892, " 10 "  |
| "   | " | 103 | " Spring, 1893, " 10 "  |
| "   | " | 107 | " Autumn, 1893, " 1 "   |
| "   | " | 122 | " Spring, 1894, " 1.6 " |
| "   | " | 119 | " Autumn, 1894, " 1 "   |
| "   | " | 136 | " Spring, 1895, " 2 "   |

Here is a large herd in which 80 per cent of the milch cows reacted, and 40 per cent. of the other cattle. After separation the test was carried out twice a year, and the stock augmented, chiefly by breeding. The sound herd remained practically sound (only 1 to 2 per cent. reacting at each test), and at the end of three years the sound herd is about doubled in size.

From an account by James Wilson, M.A., B.Sc., of the Castlecraig herd of Aberdeen-Angus cattle, we learn that "the spread of the disease (tuberculosis) has been completely arrested," and that "the only alteration in the management of the herd has been the annual testing and the separating

"of the unsound and the sound." The statistics are not so instructive, as they include the unsound animals:—

|  |              |         |              |
|--|--------------|---------|--------------|
| Whole herd of 80 animals tested (partly) | March, 1895, | reacted | 20 per cent. |

Mr John Speir, of Newton Farm, who does not rear stock, reports:—
 "... I began testing in January, 1895, when I did all the cows in my possession. Since then I have tested all those added to the herd, the total being over 200 animals. At the first test fully 50 per cent. of the cows then on the farm showed a distinct reaction, and about 7 per cent. were doubtful. As the latter had all the appearances of good health, they were passed as sound, but subsequent experience showed that most of these doubtful animals should have been rejected. About 30 per cent. of the cows offered me for purchase since January, 1895, have failed to stand the tuberculin test.

"All cows in the herd are now tested twice during each milking period, about calving time, and again when they cease to yield milk and are in calf. During 1896 about 10 per cent. of the animals passed as non-reacting in 1895 showed a distinct reaction, but isolation was imperfectly carried out, and among the number were almost all those classed as doubtful in 1895. Of the total number of re-tests made in 1897 of what were previously considered healthy animals, only a few have reacted, and most of these were closely stalled with some of the doubtful animals of 1895. . . .

"By midsummer I expect to be rid of all infected animals, unless odd ones which may now and again crop up, yet this has been brought about simply by the use of the tuberculin test and separation, and without deviating from the usual practice of milking or feeding followed here previously."

These results are most instructive and encouraging, provided tuberculin can be absolutely relied upon as a test for tuberculosis, even when injections are repeated at intervals of six months. Owing to the limited number of observations and the short period during which they have lasted, it is impossible to speak with confidence of the ultimate results over a wide area. No one can doubt the expediency of isolating all animals in an infectious state and of improving the sanitary condition of the cow-house. The fact that some herds are to be found quite free from the disease, while in others every animal is affected, affords good ground for believing that the disease is controllable, if not absolutely preventible. Let that belief be firmly established in the minds of stock owners and the members of the veterinary profession, then may we expect progress in prevention.

The rearing of healthy young cattle is one of the first considerations in preventive efforts, and could be carried out at no great expense, but in some parts of the county the greater number of cowkeepers do not rear their calves. This may be seen from Table II., which gives the number of cows and young animals in the different parishes. When tested animals have to be bought in the open market, there is room for fraudulent practices, because tuberculin will not produce a reaction even in a tuberculous animal recently tested. "A man, anxious to sell a beast, might have it injected shortly before the sale, so that in the hands of the buyer it would give no reaction to the repeated test."

In Denmark "the State offers to supply gratis to the owners of cattle both the tuberculin and the services of the veterinary surgeons, who make the injections and take the necessary temperature before and after the operations," the owner undertaking to carry out the necessary isolation.

Administration.—Assuming that some such preventive measures, involving veterinary assistance, structural alterations, etc., are to be carried out, it is certain they will not be attained by voluntary effort. The question then arises—How, and under what authority, is compulsion to be applied? This question is now engaging the attention of a Royal Commission, appointed 9th July 1896, "to inquire and report what administrative procedures are available, and would be desirable, for controlling the danger to man through the use as food of the meat and milk of tuberculous animals, and "what are the considerations which should govern the action of the responsible authorities in condemning, for the purposes of food supplies, animals' carcasses or meat exhibiting any stage of tuberculosis."

Bovine tuberculosis has an interest for others than public health authorities. A tuberculous cow in a dairy herd is not only a danger to the public, but also a danger to other healthy animals in the herd. The loss caused by this disease to owners of stock in Scotland amounts to thousands of pounds sterling annually, and in Lanarkshire the loss has been considerable. The active prevention of infectious disease amongst animals is not the function of the Local Authority under the Public Health Acts, but of the Local Authority under the Contagious Diseases Animals Acts. The prevention of tuberculosis has therefore a very special interest for the Executive Committee of the County Council, and might well be undertaken by them if provided with the ways and means. The present methods of controlling infectious disease in animals are altogether unsuited for dealing with a chronic disease like tuberculosis. There are in Lanarkshire (including burghs) some 60,000 head of cattle above one year old. If we estimate the average prevalence of tuberculosis at 20 per cent., it would give about 12,000 animals to be dealt with. The elimination of these from the healthy animals, involving inspection and testing, isolation and replacing, is a great work, necessitating local administration. At present the administrative powers of the executive committees are nil, and it is a sad reflection on local government that even an infectious pig in Lanarkshire cannot be dealt with by an authority nearer located than London. The feeling of the committee towards such methods of prevention, controlled by a central authority in London, were expressed in the following resolution passed by the County Council in May 1896:—"That, in the opinion of this Council, the time has come when matters relating to Scotch agriculture should be administered in Scotland under the Secretary for Scotland, and not by the Board of Agriculture in London." To this the Committee might be disposed to add that the time has come when there should be a Veterinary Health Department in every county, with a Veterinary Health Officer, working on lines similar to those laid down in the Public Health service. From the statistics in the following table it will be seen that there is plenty of work for a central veterinary authority located in Scotland, and an executive committee or local veterinary authority in each county:—

* Board of Agriculture.—Annual Report of Proceedings under the Diseases of Animals Acts, 1894—year 1895.

It may be of interest to mention that from the "Agricultural Statistics of Scotland" for the year 1855 the number of cattle in the county of Lanark in that year was 60,701.

It is necessary that such a department should be closely associated with that of public health for two reasons. Tuberculosis and several other diseases—anthrax, glanders, rabies, etc.—are communicable from animals to man, and improvements in the housing of animals must go hand in hand with veterinary inspection and control. Even swine seem to suffer from fever through insanitary housing. From these and other considerations it will be apparent that the subject of “administrative procedures,” now under consideration by the Royal Commissioners, is one of great interest to the Executive Committee of the County Council as local authority under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts, and the District Committees as local authority under the Public Health Acts.

VI. MISCELLANEOUS EXTRACTS ON SANITARY MATTERS.

(1) REGARDING AN ALLEGED OUTBREAK OF SCABIES.

In the early part of the year the city authorities stopped the sale of milk from four county dairies on account of an alleged outbreak of scabies, affecting the workers.

There seemed considerable doubt about the disease, and in consequence thereof I put the following questions to Dr Brock, Medical Officer:—“1. Is the affection in the cows true scabies, which may affect man? 2. If scabies, do you consider this a dangerous infectious disorder, or an infectious disease which may be carried by distribution of milk? 3. If the eruption is not due to scabies, state whether you consider it a dangerous infectious disorder? and 4. Your opinion generally upon the matter? . . . as to the effect such disorder has upon dairy-workers and contamination of milk.”

He replied:—“I visited the four dairies reported by you as being closed by the city on account of the presence of infectious disease in the persons attending upon the cows, and I have now to reply to your letter as follows:—

“Scabies in man is a contagious disease due to the presence of a parasite which burrows in the skin, but is not a disease at all likely to be carried to others through the medium of milk. However, I need not discuss this question, as the persons at the various dairies closed did not suffer from scabies. Their forearms were affected, however, with a rash common to milkers milking cows, in which the Psoroptes mite—a non-burrowing mite—is present, and which mite cannot thrive on man.

“It seems to be the skin secretion of the cow under the circumstances that causes the irritation on parts of persons constantly exposed to it, for as soon as the cause is removed the rash begins to disappear.

“The Psoroptes mite was found in scrapings from the skins of the cows.

“The rash on the arms of those affected differed from scabies—(1) In its being entirely absent from the usual sites of scabies, namely, the webs of the fingers. (2) Its showing no canal in the skin where the female itch parasite of man burrows and remains. (3) Its presence only on parts exposed and frequently in contact with the cow's skin, but never spreading anywhere else. (4) Contact of those affected with other people not producing a similar eruption in them, as would have been the case with scabies, thus showing the non-contagious nature of this rash on the dairy workers. In proof of this I may mention that all the bedfellows of those affected with the rash had sound skins. (5) In a man placed under observation the rash began at once to disappear, and without treatment, as soon as he ceased to milk. This could not occur in scabies, which requires specific treatment.

“In conclusion, I have simply to reassert that infectious disease in persons at these dairies did not exist at the time they were closed.

(Signed) “W. J. BROCK.”

It is expected of all dairymen that they will maintain their cows in a healthy condition, and at the same time keep their premises clean and tidy. In failing to do so through indifference or negligence, or in not adopting such precautions as will protect milk from risk of being infected or contaminated, they deserve no sympathy. On the other hand, however, Dr Brock's conclusions, corroborated by other medical men and veterinary surgeons, make it clear that a grave injustice has been done to the dairymen, and however desirable it may be to enforce rigid precautions for the preservation of milk, it is nevertheless as equally important that, while doing so, there should be no miscarriage of the law.

(2) ON THE USE OF DESTRUCTORS FOR THE DISPOSAL OF REFUSE.

The following memorandum on the use of destructors for the disposal of refuse at Uddingston was prepared in view of a possible difficulty of finding an outlet for the refuse on farm lands or in a coup :—

"The ancient method of disposing of refuse by cremation has come largely into use in recent years, owing to the difficulty of finding an outlet for town refuse.

"Accomplishing this purpose, destructors are now in use in some 50 English towns, and in Scotland they may be seen working in Glasgow, Govan, and Edinburgh, but, so far as I am aware, not in any town with a population under 10,000. They consist of a series of furnaces, usually termed cells, connected with a shaft. Under the furnace bars is placed a jet of steam to increase the draught and raise the temperature, the steam being derived from a boiler placed over or between the flues. Each cell is capable of destroying from 4 to 8 tons of refuse, according to the mode of construction and the manner in which it is worked. The cost of destructors varies considerably, but, on a suitable site, ought not to exceed £400 per cell, and in some cases have been constructed for £250 per cell.

"Destructors are usually worked continuously night and day, and require in attendance about one man per cell.

"In Uddingston Scavenging District the daily output of refuse is estimated as seven tons. This could easily be disposed of by a two-cell destructor, with two men in attendance.

"The expenditure involved might be estimated thus :—

|  |       |    |           |
|--|-------|----|-----------|
| "Cost of a two-cell destructor (exclusive of   |       |    |           |
| "site) . . . . .   | £800  | 0  | 0         |
| "Making of roads and fencing site, say . . . . .   | 100   | 0  | 0         |
| "Contingencies, say . . . . .  | 100   | 0  | 0         |
|  | <hr/> |    | £1000 0 0 |
| "Wages of two men at 24s per week . . . . .  | £125  | 0  | 0         |
| "Interest and repayment of capital expenditure, at 6 per cent. . . . .   | 60    | 0  | 0         |
| "Feu-duty (say half an acre of ground) . . . . .   | 12    | 0  | 0         |
| "Cartage of clinkers to coup (say 500 tons, being about one-fourth of original bulk, at 1s 6d per ton) . . . . . | 37    | 10 | 0         |
|  | <hr/> |    | £234 10 0 |

"As the quantity of refuse to be disposed of annually is over 2000 tons, the cost per ton to dispose of the refuse in this manner would be about 2s.

"Mr. Dobson has been giving this subject careful consideration, and he is of opinion that the cost of construction should be considerably below what I have stated, so that the figures I have quoted may be considered as a maximum."

(3) DESCRIPTION OF A NEW COMBINED ASHBIN AND PRIVY.

In Inkermann a great improvement in the general sanitary condition has been made by the removal of all the old privies and ashpits which formerly were a continual source of complaint. A new style of combined privy and ashbin has been erected, and a new system of cleansing inaugurated. The space under the seat of the privy is utilised as an ashbin, an iron door hung in two halves being furnished at the back, the upper half to allow of the refuse being deposited in the receptacle, and the under half to be opened during the periodical removal of the contents. The floor of the receptacle under the seat is concreted, and sloped towards the front to enable the contents to be removed by means of an ordinary scavenger's shovel. Thirty-two of these privies have been erected in the village, being one to every three tenants—these tenants take their turn in washing out the interior. The receptacle for ashes, etc., is emptied three times a week by a scavenger. The people show their appreciation of the new state of matters by keeping the privies and surroundings very clean.

VACCINATION.

NO. 18.—REPORT BY SUPERINTENDENT OF CENTRAL VACCINE INSTITUTION FOR SCOTLAND, FOR YEAR ENDING 31ST JULY 1897.

*Central Vaccine Institution,
4 Royal Circus, Edinburgh,
1st August 1897.*

SIR,—I have the honour to submit to you my report for the year ended 31st July 1897. The supply of vaccine lymph has been adequate to meet the demand. Applications have in all cases been responded to without delay—whether only a few tubes have been applied for, as is usual, or several dozens at once, as sometimes happens where sporadic cases of small-pox occur. I have found it necessary, however, to obtain supplies from a public vaccinator in England in order to be able to meet sudden calls with prompt attention. There being no public vaccination properly so called in Scotland, vaccination is not made a specialty of; and hence few Scottish practitioners can be found willing to co-operate with the Institution by furnishing supplies of lymph at regular intervals, and still fewer to supply it in large quantity in cases of emergency.

The number of tubes distributed amounts to 2830 in reply to 423 applications—of which 371 were from Vaccinators, Medical Officers of Health, and Sanitary Inspectors, and 52 from Medical Practitioners not official vaccinators.—I have the honour to be, Sir, your most obedient servant,

WM. HUSBAND, M.D.,
Superintendent.

Local Government Board.*
